EDITION21 PERSONS CHARGED WITH INCITING RIOT

Arraigned at Chicago Today—
Police Forced to Draw Revolvers to Stop Parade

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—Twenty-one persons, members of a social settlement here, were to appear in court today charged with inciting a riot. Mrs. Lucy Parsons, widow of the anarchist hanged for murder after the Haymarket riot several years ago, was among those arrested. She did not spend the night in jail, however, as social workers obtained her release on bail. Seven others also were released on bail. Irwin Tucker, who said he was a preacher and an editor of a paper, was among the thirteen compelled to spend the night in a police station.

The riot was the result of an attempt of about 1500 unemployed men and women to parade. Some of the marchers carried black banners on which in large white letters was the word:

"Hunger." On other banners were: "We don't want charity; we want jobs" and "Give us this—our daily bread."

Police Draw Revolvers
Police demanded that the marchers halt as no permit had been issued for them to parade. The marchers, according to the police, began to push the banner bearers forward. Fighting started instantly. Police with revolvers and clubs drawn, rushed the crowd, felling all within their reach. Women marchers grabbed the policemen by the legs and threw them to the street, hitting and scratching at their faces with fingernails. A number of shots were fired by the police in their attempt to drive back the crowd. Reserves had to be called out before the police could take their prisoners to the station.

IRISH NATIONAL FORESTERS HELD INTERESTING MEETING AT THEIR HALL YESTERDAY

A well attended meeting of Branch O'Neill Crowley, Irish National Foresters, was held in the Rubels building yesterday afternoon with the new chief ranger, Hugh B. McGuade, presiding. It was voted to accept the report of the delegates to the St. Patrick's day convention. Eight propositions for membership were received and two new members were initiated.

The question of having a prominent lecturer come to Lowell in the near future and deliver an illustrated lecture under the auspices of the branch was discussed at considerable length, and the matter was laid over to come up again at the next meeting.

The following members were appointed on the arbitration committee: Thomas McNamara, James McCon, John Mullerkey, Daniel Burke, John Murray, John Groule, Thomas Kane and Maurice Hanlon.

The auditing committee for the ensuing year is as follows: Joseph Haudley, chairman; Terrence Quinn and Jas. Daley.

REP. D. A. MURPHY'S BILL

RADICAL CHANGE IN THE CITY
CHARTER IS PROPOSED BY REPRESENTATIVE MURPHY

Representative Dennis A. Murphy of this city has filed a bill in the legislature to amend Lowell's city charter. The bill would abolish the commission form of government and proposed a mayor at a salary of $3000 and a board of 12 aldermen. Ward aldermen would receive a salary of $750 and aldermen-at-large would receive $1500. There would be no party designation and only two candidates for mayor would be permitted for election day; six candidates for aldermen-at-large and two candidates for aldermen in each ward.

The school committee would be increased to nine members with no compensation, as at present. All terms would be for one year.

THE SHIP PURCHASE BILL

CHIEF INTEREST IN CONGRESS
OF CAUCUS OF DEMOCRATS

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Chief interest in congress today centered in the outcome of tonight's caucus of senate democrats on the government ship purchase bill for upon its action depends the fate of that measure on the shipping bill. Tonight's caucus, the second one, is for the purpose of passing upon a number of amendments. Democrats are divided over the form of the bill, vigorous opposition having developed to the government ownership feature at Saturday night's caucus. They are confronted also with the unalterable opposition of the republicans who have announced their intention of defeating the bill if possible.

2000 Soldiers Work on Ruins—Dead
at Avezzano Now Estimated at 20,-
000—Titled Women Aid Sufferers

AVEZZANO, Jan. 18.—More than 2000 soldiers are at work on the ruins here, which may be described as a wilderness of several square miles. Signor Sinfelt, minister of public works, estimates the dead in Avezzano will reach 20,000 and 10,000 injured. So ruined is the city that it is difficult for the inhabitants to recognize streets much less houses. Avezzano was an important manufacturing center. Prince Torleone, one of the greatest land proprietors in Italy, is the largest loser financially.

Titled Women Aid Sufferers

Among the titled women who have come here to aid the injured is the marchessa Di Sostegno of Florence. She is working as a nurse in one of the military hospitals. Incidents in which remarkable rescues were made are gradually coming to light. One tells of the experience of a lieutenant of engineers who came here and located the residence of his mother. He worked for some time alone pulling away stones, but presently he was assisted by some soldiers. After seven hours of labor he found his mother alive and not very badly injured. She had been protected by an unbroken piece of wall falling over the corner in which she was sleeping.

Mother Digs Out Daughter

In another instance, a mother who had escaped, believed her daughter must be alive under the fragments of her house. She organized a party of women and herself stimulated them to work at reducing a heap of limestone. The mother on Sunday heard a voice beneath where the women were working and they finally reached the young woman who had been protected by two parts of walls forming an angle. She had been without food or drink for four days and had been nearly suffocated by the dust of the mortar which sifted down through the crevices.

MATERIAL DAMAGE OF EARTH-

QUAKE WILL EXCEED

$50,000,000

PARIS, Jan. 18.—The Rome correspondent of the Matin telegraphing the scenes in the earthquake district says: "The rescue work continues with activity. A man still living was taken from the ruins of Avezzano Sunday morning. The railroad is now repaired and supplies are arriving regularly. Prince Borghese, who in an automobile was the first to reach the scene with blankets, food and bandages has undertaken the task of cabling the names of survivors to their relatives in the United States. The frequency of the shocks is diminishing. The seismograph has registered only 11 in the past 24 hours in the region of Avezzano and Sora and none in Rome. The material damage, it is estimated, will exceed 300,000,000 lire ($60,000,000.)"

WANT TO BE POSTMASTER THE THAW CASE

Candidates Out for the Position
—Major Crowley States Why
He Resigned

Because he believed that the longer he remained at the postoffice the more he was getting away from his law business, Robert J. Crowley, postmaster of Lowell, resigned Saturday to take the position of deputy district attorney of Middlesex county, the resignation to take effect upon the appointment of his successor. Mr. Crowley was appointed postmaster July 27, 1913. Since taking up the duties of the position, Postmaster Crowley has been active in his efforts to improve the service.

Speaking of his resignation, Mr. Crowley said: "To resign a position paying a greater salary than the position which a man is to accept is somewhat unusual. I have given the situation careful study, however, and am convinced that my return to the practice of law is necessary, in fairness to myself."

"District Attorney Corcoran has argued with me as to the uncertainty of a position, such as that of postmaster, and I have seen the force of what he has said. So with much reluctance I am leaving a loyal and efficient body of men at the postoffice, to accept a position which will bring me in direct touch with the profession, and will open the way to restoring a law practice that has been neglected since my appointment as postmaster."

Mr. Crowley says he hasn't the faintest idea as to his possible successor. The candidates mentioned include Hon. James B. Casey, Hon. John P. McLean, Lawyer Joseph O'Connor and D. J. O'Brien.

Postmaster Crowley hopes to be re-elected very soon, as this is a very busy time of the year for the district attorney and the services of the deputy are much in demand. The position was created by the legislature last year and the salary is said to be about $1500, although there are opportunities for general practice in connection with the office.

NEW CUSTOM HOUSE BASEBALL MEN ACTIVE

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE PLANS
ELABORATE PROGRAM FOR DEDICATION OF BOSTON BUILDING

BOSTON, Jan. 18.—The dedication of Boston's new custom house will take place next Friday, with formal exercises at the tower under the auspices of the Boston chamber of commerce. The ceremonies will begin at 11 a. m., the speakers being Gov. Walsh, Mayor Curley, Assistant Secretaries of the Treasury Andrew J. Peters and Byron Gilmore, Cardinal O'Connell and Bishop Lawrence are also expected to take part.

The keys of the building will be presented by Architect Peabody to Edmund Billings, collector of the port. Following the exercises, the speakers and others invited will be guests of the chamber at the Exchange Club, where luncheon will be served at 12.30. From 1.30 to 3.30 the members of the chamber of commerce who are provided with tickets will be privileged to ascend the tower and enjoy the unexcelled view from the highest accessible point.

Among the guests at the dedicatory exercises will be former Collectors Winslow Warren, George H. Lyman and Edmund U. Curtis, also members of the original chamber of commerce. Merchants' association and the board of trade committee which labored so successfully to obtain the custom house. In this committee are included Jerome Jones, chairman; Elwyn C. Preston, Robert S. Peabody, Wallace L. Pierce and Andrew G. Webster.

STATE FUMIGATORS GONE

SPENT FOUR WEEKS FUMIGATING THE BARNS OF O. J. COBURN IN DRACUT

The state fumigators who have been at work at the Oliver J. Coburn farm in Dracut for the past four weeks, fumigating the stables and other buildings on the farm have completed their work and left the premises. It was upon the Coburn farm that the first case of foot and mouth disease was found in this vicinity and after the state authorities had slaughtered 57 head of cattle, a large gang of men was sent on the premises to fumigate

PUTTING THE FINAL TOUCHES ON CASE WHICH WILL OPEN IN CHICAGO WEDNESDAY

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—With only two days remaining in which to prepare their arguments, counsel for the Federal league and organized baseball were in conference today putting the final touches on the case which will open before Judge Landis in the United States district court on Wednesday.

August Herrmann, chairman of the national baseball commission, is expected to be the most important witness for the defense. With him will be Dan B. Johnson, president of the American league, and John K. Tener, president of the National league, the remaining two members of the national commission. For the Federal league, counsel for the defense, are expected to be the chief witnesses. F. R. Ward, president of the Brooklyn Feds, and President Robertson of the Buffalo club with President Gilmore, who form the executive committee of the league will have complete charge of the case of the plaintiffs.

600 HENS ROASTED ALIVE

BOSTON, Jan. 18.—About 600 hens were burned to death in a fire that destroyed the building of the Cambridge Poultry company at 46 Bridge street, East Cambridge, and seriously damaged another building early yesterday morning.

The fire apparently started in the blacksmith shop of Splegt & Potas, their work and left the premises. It spread to the poultry company's building. The flames spread to the poultry company's building and the loud cackle of the 600 hens, which were crated ready for shipment, could be heard for some distance.

O'Dea; Secretary, James A. Doherty; Treasurer, Charles A. Clough; Board of trustees: William M. Burns, William H. Howard, Edward H. Welch.

RUSSIANS IN COMPLETE

Czar's Forces Inflict Serious Defeat on Turkish Army at Kara Urgan—Other War News

PETROGRAD, Jan. 18.—A late communication of the army of the Caucasus gives some details of the Russian victory at Kara Urgan. It says: During the last three days of the battle of Kara Urgan a violent snowstorm raged uninterruptedly. The conflict terminated in a complete victory for us. Thanks to the efforts of our Caucasian and Turkestan regiments the resistance of the enemy was broken up. The rear guards which covered his retreat were destroyed and the remainder of the Turkish army fled toward Erezum.

Our troops pursuing, found in the ravine parts of the Turkish cannon which the fleeing enemy had abandoned in their flight. The pursuit continues.

SERGT. GIROUX TAKES IN MAN

SUSPECTED OF CONNECTION

WITH HOLD-UP

As a result of an article published exclusively in The Sun last week giving an account of an alleged hold-up on Moody street on the evening of Jan. 8, Sergeant Groulx and Inspector Walsh made an investigation of the matter and yesterday arrested a man named Joseph Corbin, 41 Prince street, who was charged with having taken part in the robbery. The man was taken to the station.

Following the publication in The Sun, which stated that Joseph Corbin of 41 Prince street was held up and robbed of over two dollars in small change by three unknown men, while returning home late at night, Sergeant Groulx was detailed on the case and yesterday found Corbin, arrested, and taken to the station.

FISH AND GAME ASSOCIATION

Some time this month the Lowell Fish and Game association will receive from the state six cans of adult trout which will be distributed in Brook about Lowell. The association has also been offered 16 pairs of snowshoes or white rabbits, and these undoubtedly will arrive soon. The association will also receive a number of pheasants and, taking all in all, it looks like good sport and a lot of it for the hunters.

LIFE IN THE TRENCHES

GERMANS AND ENGLISHMEN
BACCO AND TOLD STORIES

PARIS, Jan. 18.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—The following is sent from the trenches in northern France by a correspondent who volunteered for service with the British army at the beginning of the war:

"Although there was no formal truce declared during the holiday season, the fighters here had several days of quiet, by tacit consent.

"German and Englishmen met on the plain field between the lines, shook hands, swapped tobacco, told stories, and were even planning an international football game when the weather turned bad. All day long there was much searching for souvenirs to send home, and hundreds of fragments of shell or broken equipment were picked up in sections of the field where ordinarily it would mean sure death for a soldier to show himself.

"All night long I stayed at the trench on Christmas eve. During the evening both sides placed candles and little bonfires as Christmas lights along the top of the trenches. When it was seen that neither side intended to take advantage of the temporary peace, the soldiers began to climb up of their trenches and took up positions in the bright moonlight on the flat ground in front. Back and forth across that two hundred yard field they greeted each other with wishes for a Merry Christmas. There was much cheering, speech-making, singing carols, and a little dancing. The Englishmen got out their hymn books, with which most of the soldiers are provided, and sang 'Lead Me Lightly,' 'Abide With Me,' and 'While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night.' The hymns were interspersed with such favorites as 'Mandela' and 'The Merry.'

"Everybody Unarmed
"Gradually a few of the groups from the two sides closed together. Everybody was unarmed. One of the foremost German groups waved a bottle of wine toward the nearest English group and invited them to join the party. After a moment or two the Englishmen started over, carrying a Christmas cake and a box of chocolates. The men shook hands all around, and immediately cheered and clapping came from both sides of the field, where English and Germans alike had been anxiously watching the meeting. The group had a smoke and drink together, and very soon large parties of the late enemies were seen chatting together. All the time in the distance could be heard the sound of artillery fighting.

"The Englishmen swapped pipe tobacco for German cigars, and British candles for German candles. Later in the evening the Germans sent over to the British trenches a small Christmas tree, with various cheerful messages and little gifts tied on its branches.

"Weather Stopped Game
"On Christmas day the British soldiers brought a football out in front of the trenches and invited the Germans to send a team over for a game during the afternoon. They promised to do this, but the weather—or their officers—prevented it.

"Soldiers unslinging their cameras and took snapshots of little groups of men from both sides hob-nobbing together. During the morning some of the German soldiers called a 'fantastic parade,' led by a German youth who had somehow obtained possession of a high hat and dress suit. Among the paraders were two soldiers mounted on old bicycles without tires.

"The happy scene was rudely interrupted about one o'clock in the afternoon by the arrival of a big shell fired from a battery several miles away, which sent everybody scurrying back to the trenches for a time.

"Later in the afternoon British soldiers helped the enemy bury ten German soldiers whose bodies were found in a ditch in front of the German trench. They were killed a few days ago in an attempt on the English outpost."

WOOD'S BUSINESS COLLEGE HAS GROWN RAPIDLY—HISTORY OF THE SCHOOL

One year ago today witnessed the establishment of the thriving institution for commercial education which at present occupies practically the entire floor of the Traders' Bank building at 40 Middlesex street and is favorably known throughout Lowell and vicinity as Wood's Business College.

The first step toward the opening of a business school was taken by Mr. Elliot F. Wood six years ago when he began teaching stenography and bookkeeping privately in his home. This modest beginning was successful to a degree that influenced Mr. Wood to

How to stop dandruff and loss of hair with Resinol

Here is a simple, inexpensive treatment that will almost always stop dandruff and scalp itching, and keep the hair thick, live and lustrous:

At night, spread the hair apart and rub a little Resinol Ointment into the scalp gently, with the tip of the finger. Repeat this until the whole scalp has been treated. Next morning, shampoo thoroughly with Resinol Soap and hot water. Work the creamy Resinol lather well into the scalp. Rinse with gradually cooler water, the last water being cold.

Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment easily heal eczema and similar skin eruptions. Sold by all druggists. For sample free, write to Dept. 27-S, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

engage rooms in the building at 40 Middlesex street and open an evening school for instruction in bookkeeping, stenography and typewriting, starting in September, 1913, with a large attendance.

Mr. Wood then realized the great opportunity which this field offered and accordingly on January 18, 1914, one year ago today, he established Wood's Business College. This met with even greater success and the school grew so rapidly in attendance that its founder was compelled to secure larger quarters on the fifth floor of the same building. In September, 1914, Mr. Wood resigned from a responsible position in a local bank to give his entire time to the college.

Such is the history of one of Lowell's most prominent educational institutions and the continued brilliant success of the college is certain.

Wood's Business College is most up-to-date in every particular, possessing the most approved conveniences for efficiency in teaching the commercial branches. In fact, efficiency is the keynote of the school's policy and is reflected in the progress of the students which has in every case been commendably rapid. Many of Mr. Wood's former students are now holding responsible positions in the business world.

The office of the school is a model business office. It is furnished in mahogany, while the walls, curtains and rugs are a rich green, producing an effect most pleasing. The main class room has individual desks and chairs for about 40 students and there is also a recitation room with lecture room chairs to accommodate about 20. The typewriting room contains about a dozen machines of various standard makes. One notable feature of the rooms is the abundance of light provided by the large windows, the large class room alone having nine of these. In the evening the class rooms are lighted in the latest approved manner by electric lamps which give a soft, though brilliant light.

The chief assistant to Mr. Wood is Miss Anna A. Conley, who has had a wide experience in business methods as well as in commercial instruction. She specializes in bookkeeping, in which she is an expert. Miss Lillian Ingalls and Miss Agnes Allen are both competent teachers in their respective branches. Careful instruction in all the commercial branches is afforded at Wood's Business College. The subjects include shorthand, Isaac Pitman and Gregg systems, typewriting, bookkeeping, business English, finishing course and civil service.

There can be no doubt that Mr. Wood will enjoy well deserved success in his institution, and the present Wood's Business College is a commercial school of which Lowell may well be proud.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

Tom Linton and his Jungle Girls, who will appear in front line position at the B. F. Keith Theatre this week, will provide the liveliest sort of entertainment. Their particular little musical sketch is "The Up-to-Date Missionary," in which Mr. Linton will appear as the individual who was sent into the heart of Africa, and who there met a lot of cannibals who didn't wish to be converted. They prepared to end the life of the missionary, who was saved only by falling in love with the queen of the cannibals. There are many chances for good comedy in the piece, and the musical numbers are specially selected because of their catchiness. The boys of active, pretty young women appearing in the production will add materially to the snap of the piece. Assisting Mr. Linton in the leading role will be Miss Grace Lindquist, who will be the beautiful queen of the cannibals, and Frank Austin.

Albert Perry & Co. will offer the satirical comedy, "Hone and Return," which has a very positive set of complications to it, and which will be well played. Mr. Perry has the role of the young man who fires of well-to-do and who starts for home. Scarcely there to have the bonds cut. How he chafes his mind, and decides to stick to his young wife in the little piece.

The situations are numerous. It is, in fact, a fine type of real comedy. As Bartholomew, star and creator of "Madame," who has a special attraction in Lowell's biggest theatre, will be seen in Henri Bernstein's "The Titled," in motion pictures. The Owl Theatre, which has been receiving with favor, and people have made many inquiries as to the time of performances, and will be shown number of them. It will be shown only at about 8 o'clock. No half-hearted attempts to show good comedy here, but the real article is always exhibited. Recently, if ever, has a cast of the uniform standing of that assembled by the producers of "The Thief," brought together this portrayal of characters called for no ordinary actors, in order to adequately portray the complicated conflict of emotions and passions. The play was secured at a great expense, as may be guessed, and to "play up" to their wonderful acting, an actor of sterling worth, and a richly talented, has been secured. The important male role, Miss Donnelly is probably the only actress in America capable of giving a worthy interpretation of this remarkable play. The other five roles are "Wild West Love," a droll Keystone comedy, and "The Serf," a delightful college play. A 10-cent show.

WHAT HORTENSE TOLD ME

Hortense says my hair is too oily and has been using the following lotion which she prepared herself, with splendid results:

Borate of soda, 1/2 oz.; Bicarborate of soda, 1/2 oz.; Eau de Cologne, 2 oz.; Alcohol, 3 oz.; Tincture of cochineal, 1 dram; water, 12 ozs.

My invaluable maid has also mixed for me a fine curling fluid which I enjoy very much. It is made of a tablespoonful of bruised quince seed to a pint of hot water. The water is poured over the seeds and the whole allowed to stand for several hours. The resultant mucilage may then be thinned with a few drops of essence of violet. The hair is moistened with the fluid before curling.

A splendid cleansing and softening liquid for the hands is recommended by Hortense. Use one tumbler of Indian meal, fifteen teaspoons of grated toilet soap, two teaspoons of orris root, two teaspoons of borax, one teaspoon of sachet powder. Mix well and sprinkle on the hands.

Another good lotion which she swears by is to put into a bottle two ounces of glycerine; two ounces of water; four tablespoons of lemon juice and a few drops of carbolic acid. Shake well. After washing and drying the hands, rub a little of the mixture into the hands. The hands will be bleached over them will whiten them and this treatment is perfectly harmless. It can also be used on the face and it removes fruit or vegetables from the hands. Let it remain on a few minutes, then rinse off in hot water.

Hortense discovered a little brown spot on my neck made from a too tight collar and immediately began to work. "First of all," she said, "get a warm water, an agreeable soap and a fine washcloth. Cleanse your neck. Rinse it with clear warm water and after drying it rub into the skin the cold cream for which the recipe is here given:

Rosewater, four ounces; almond oil, four ounces; spermaceti, one ounce; white wax, one ounce. Add the rosewater slowly, so that it will mix well. When the skin is thoroughly dry, it is possible to remove the remainder of it by a piece of muslin and rub slices of a freshly cut cucumber over the neck. An occasional application of diluted peroxide also helps to bleach the skin.

Hortense has a splendid set of directions for reducing the hips by exercise which she has very kindly allowed me to pass along to you. Stand erect, she says, with the arms straight out from the sides on a line with the shoulders. Now bend the body from the waist to the right as far as possible, keeping the arms perfectly right; try to make the arms touch the hips without lowering its position.

Then bend slowly back to the left side the same as the right. It will take a lot of practice before you can touch the hips, but each day you can bend a little further to the side and eventually be able to at last very nearly touch the hip.

Then stand on an ottoman on the left foot, let the right swing entirely clear of it. Now swing the right leg from the hip back and forth, gradually increasing the distance until it is as high as it can possibly be. Swing each leg the same way, twenty or thirty times each morning, keeping the knee perfectly straight.

Hortense knows of a simple home remedy which she says she is sure will reduce the bust and make it firm. Run a piece of ice over the breasts for three minutes daily. It is slow work reducing the bosom, but if you will keep it bandaged snugly in thin rubber by day as well as by night, inside of a few weeks you will be possessed of a small bust.

This bandage should be taken off for a few moments at bedtime and again arising in the morning, and the flesh rubbed over with alcohol. Unless you do this you will be apt to take cold.

Hortense has just made me some new hair bags with the most comforting mixture I ever used. Here is the recipe she uses: Four pounds of fine oatmeal, two quarts of clean bran; one and one-half pounds of powdered orris root, one and one-half pounds of almond meal, one pound of white castile soap, powdered and dried; three ounces of perfume sachet.

Instead of placing in cheesecloth bags, which is a wasteful way of using the delightful meal, sprinkle a little of the mixture on the moistened wash cloth.

This was a favorite bath with the ancients, says Hortense, for the emaciated. Mix one tablespoon of lavender water with several times the amount of pure olive oil. Apply to the hair with the ends of the fingers, and keep the body warm while taking the treatment.

Lowell Orchestra in the West
—ENTER VAUDEVILLE

Doyle's orchestra, composed of Lowell boys and one of the classiest groups of music dispensers that ever left this city on a concert tour will shortly enter vaudeville under the management of Mr. Bernard Maguire, who is also a well known Lowell boy. Their act is now being written by one of the leading writers of the country and will be decidedly musical. They will be known on the stage as "The Five Musical Doyles."

It will be remembered that this orchestra which had been meeting with phenomenal success playing dance music in and around this city, left about three months ago on a tour of the country with the Moose Carnival Co. and from the start it made a hit in every city and town in which it appeared. Starting out in Pennsylvania, the company wound its way through nearly every city and town of importance in the Middle Atlantic states and is now in the West. Everywhere Doyle's orchestra was the main attraction of the company, and by making good money it achieved a reputation unequalled by many traveling orchestras.

Stephen H. Doyle, the leader of the orchestra, is the son of Stephen H. Doyle, the prominent Liberty square barber, and it is made a name for himself as a musician with a student at the local high school as a member of Doyle's orchestra. He played with this orchestra about a year when he formed an orchestra of his own. While playing in Lowell he had the reputation of being one of the best cornetists in the state.

HATS AND COLDS

"I often wonder how I manage to catch so many colds," complained Mrs. Up-to-date Dresser. "I am always careful to wear my rubbers on these stormy days, and yet I am always sniffing and blowing. I can't understand it."

"Maybe your feet are properly dressed but your head is not always cared for," replied Mrs. Common Sense. "For instance, I saw you yesterday with your fur hat on, and today you are wearing a mere covering of gold lace and wire. Surely it is colder today than yesterday."

And Mrs. Common Sense was right. So many of us are careless about our throats being protected and our feet dry but we carelessly change our hats without a thought. No two hats are very often alike in weight. A velvet hat that fits the head closely is warmer than a flaring brimmed one of silk. A fur hat is warmer than lace, and so it goes. Today we took our head into a fur toque, and spend most of the time in the hot stores, and tomorrow we go to the bridge party wearing the lace

HAIR COMING OUT?

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a 25-cent bottle of Dandruffine at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it into the scalp. After a few applications the hair stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff.

REV. H. E. BENTON IS INSTALLED

Made Pastor of Grace
Universalist Church
Yesterday

Many Clergymen and Laymen Present—
Other Church News

Rev. Herbert Elmon Benton was formally installed as pastor of Grace Universalist church, yesterday. Rev. P. A. Hisebe, D. D., editor of the Universalist Leader, preached the morning sermon, his subject being "The Ways of God in the World of Man." Rev. Clarence R. Skinner, the former pastor, presided at the exercises in the evening. Rev. Charles T. Billings of the Unitarian church, made the prayer.

Rev. C. Guy Robbins of Lawrence gave the address to the people. Speaking of the relations between a church and its minister, he said:

"First of all, you have entered into a business relation with him. He has agreed to serve you, and you, on your part, have agreed to compensate him for that service, to the extent of paying him a salary. As the month comes around, let the check be ready to put in his hand, that he may keep his own credit good and be a credit to you. It will tend to his peace of mind, and better service on his part. If you will relieve him of any uncertainty as to when he will receive his check. Moreover, do not let the financial burden of the church rest entirely upon him."

"Second, you have entered into relationship with him as your preacher. He is to preach to you the word of life, which is the gospel of Jesus Christ. He will interpret that gospel to you, and show you how to order your life in your relations one with another and in your relations with God. He will come each Sunday well prepared for giving you his message. He will stand here not simply as a man, but as an instrument of God. He cannot give you the message, unless you fulfill your part. It is for you to be here, to hear the message. Let him catch the inspiration that will come from the knowledge that you are here and interested in the message that he has for you."

"Again, you have entered into relations with him as your pastor. He will visit you in your homes, and enter into social relations with you. Treat him as a man among men. Do not regard him as a minister, but as a practical value. Give him your fellowship, your sympathy and your confidence."

"Again, in being your pastor, Mr. Benton's services will not be limited to the parish. He will have a work to do outside the limits of this parish. As a citizen of this municipality, there will be duties for him to perform. Do not limit him in those duties. Think of him as the representative of Grace church and in every way possible, help him work; and together, go forward to larger and better fields."

Rev. G. W. Penniman of Peabody, was delayed by a slight accident to his train, and his address to the minister was supplemented at this point by a brief word from the presiding officer, Mr. Skinner, who said he was not going to give Mr. Benton advice because he does not need it.

Rev. G. L. Leighton, the new state superintendent of Universalist churches, gave the welcome to the state. Rev. Mr. Penniman having arrived, gave his address to the minister at this point. He spoke of his first parish, where Mr. Benton was a boy in the Sunday school, and of the occasion of Mr. Benton's first installation, when he also gave the charge to the minister.

Rev. A. C. Fisher, pastor of High Street Congregational church, representing the Federation of Churches, welcomed Mr. Benton to the city. Dr. G. Forrest Martin, vice chairman of the board of assessors, extended the welcome to the church to the new pastor. Rev. Caleb E. Fisher, D. D., brought greetings from the Universalist church. The service was closed with the benediction by the new pastor.

First Baptist Church

In banking and commercial circles a wise man would be considered one who had accumulated a large fortune in politics, one who had attained important public office; in military affairs, one who had become a great military general; and among many young people one would be thought wise who had found how to have the greatest amount of fun by day and the most amusement at night. But a higher and better definition is found, declared Rev. A. C. Archibald, at the First Baptist church yesterday morning, in the Book of Proverbs, 11th chapter, 30th verse, where we are told, "He that winneth souls is wise." Then the preacher proceeded earnestly to show that soul winning is the greatest work of Christians because it is the command of Christ; it was his own work and example; it is the only business in which can be claimed the fullness of the blessing of the Holy Spirit; it is the most beneficent work in the world and gives the largest returns; it is a work anyone can do. Pastor Archibald mentioned many of the church organizations by name, saying that everyone should be linked to the idea of winning and saving souls. The fame of men in this world does not last long, he said, but we are told that they who be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament and they that win souls shall shine forever and ever.

First Congregational Church

A meeting preliminary to the Sunday evening services which are to be conducted by Rev. W. A. Bartlett, D. D., was held at the First Congregational church, Sunday evening. The pastor, Rev. E. H. Newcomb, conducted the service and called attention to the three "I Ams" of St. Paul in Romans, 1: "I am a debtor," "I am ready," and "I am not ashamed." The chorus choir, under Alexander Leggett, sang very acceptably. Dr. Bartlett appealed to Christians to give up offering excuses for not being true to the master.

FRANKLIN NIGHT

Lowell Typos Observed
American Printer

The 209th anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin, father of printing in this country, was observed in a fitting manner by the members of the Lowell Typographical union Saturday evening, the affair taking the form of a "Franklin Night." The celebration was held in the union's quarters, Post 120 hall, Merrimack street, and was largely attended. The program consisted of a brief business meeting, supper, entertainment and an address on the life of Benjamin Franklin by the president of the organization, John V. Donoghue.

At the opening of the evening the following entertainment program was carried out much to the enjoyment of the large gathering:

WINGO AND DOON WILL BE CATCHERS
FOR CINCINNATI REDS THIS SEASON

CINCINNATI, Jan. 16.—Manager Herzog believes that the acquisition of Red Doon, formerly manager of the Phillies, gives him the best catching staff in the league. He had already signed Ivy Wingo, formerly with the Cardinals, and regarded as one of the real stars of the game. It is possible that Herzog will dispose of Wingo now that he has Doon, as there are weak spots on the Cincinnati team that need bolstering up. It is doubtful if he can trade Doon, as his salary is $6000 a year, one of the largest salaries paid to a catcher. Wingo also draws a good stipend, as he had jumped to the Buffalo Federal league team and was induced to jump back only by a substantial increase in pay.

high influence they exerted in the troublous and stormy days of this republic. Let us be worthy of their steel and be true to the ideals of that democracy which Carlyle said to be the result of printing! If we but hold fast to that which is good then God's church, God's school, God's method of gently leading men into commonwealth as brothers, shall endure until time shall be no more."

CATHOLIC NEWS

Notes of the Services at
the Various Churches
Yesterday Morning

Members of the Holy Family sodality of St. Patrick's church attended the 7 o'clock mass yesterday morning and received communion in a body. The celebrant of the mass was Rev. Monsignor William O'Brien, P. M., who was assisted in distributing communion by Rev. Joseph A. Curtin.

The parish mass was celebrated by Rev. Timothy P. Callahan, while the sermon on the gospel of the day was delivered by Rev. Joseph A. Curtin.

The members of the C. Y. M. L. have made arrangements for a Ladies' night to be held at their well appointed quarters in the parochial school building tomorrow evening and the affair promises to be one of the most successful of the season. An elaborate entertainment program has been arranged for the occasion and a feature of the evening will be dancing with music furnished by Miner's orchestra. The committee in charge has spared nothing to make the event one of the best of its kind in the history of the organization and it is being predicted that a record crowd will be in attendance. The committee is composed of the following: Gustavus Hart Murray, chairman, Patrick Harrington, Patrick Coady and John McDermott.

St. Peter's
The celebrant of the parish mass at St. Peter's church yesterday was Rev. P. L. Crayton, the sermon being delivered by Rev. W. George Mullin.

The members of the Children's sodality received communion in a body at the 8:30 o'clock mass, which was celebrated by Rev. Daniel J. Heffernan. Next Sunday the members of the Children of Mary sodality will receive their monthly communion. The regular devotion to St. Rita will be held Tuesday evening and on Wednesday evening the Married Women's sodality will hold a meeting.

St. Michael's
Rev. John J. Shaw, pastor, was the celebrant of the parish mass at St. Michael's church yesterday morning, while the sermon on the gospel of the day was delivered by Rev. Francis J. Mullin. In the afternoon the members of the Children of Mary sodality held an interesting meeting, during which considerable business was transacted.

Sacred Heart

At the 8:30 o'clock mass at the Sacred Heart church yesterday morning the members of the Holy Angels' sodality received communion in a body, the celebrant of the mass being Very Rev. T. Wade Smith, O. M. I. In the afternoon the members of the sodality assembled in the church and received valuable instructions from their spiritual director, Rev. T. Franklin Wood, O. M. I.

St. Columba's

The 9:15 o'clock mass at St. Columba's church yesterday morning was celebrated by Rev. Thomas F. Buckley, who also made the announcements. The parish mass was celebrated by the pastor, Rev. John A. Degan. The members of the Tabernacle sodality will meet this evening to elect officers.

The committee in charge of the annual parish reunion, which will be held at Associate hall on Feb. 9, held an interesting meeting and decided that the affair take the form of a Farmers' hall. The committee will meet again Wednesday evening at the parish hall and all members are requested to be present.

St. Margaret's

Rev. H. C. Reardon celebrated high mass and delivered the sermon at St. Margaret's church yesterday. A committee has recently been appointed to look after arrangements for the annual junior party to be held at Lincoln hall on the evening of Feb. 5, and arrangements are progressing rapidly. The affair will be held particularly for the young folks and a special program will be prepared for the occasion.

THE SWEDISH LUTHERANS

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CHURCH

CHOSEN

The members of the Swedish Lutheran church held their annual meeting yesterday and transacted considerable business, the feature of the meeting being the election of officers. The assembly was presided over by Rev. L. Hakenson of Quincy and the election of officers resulted as follows:

Clerk, Edward Wikstrom; deacons for three years, Carl V. Nelson and Olaf Lindquist; trustees for three years, N. J. Anderson and John Adolf Nelson; Sunday school superintendent, Frank E. Lindquist; organist and choir director, William C. Heller; delegate to New England conference, Frank E. Lindquist, and alternate, John Alfred Nelson; financial secretary, N. J. Anderson; treasurer, Oscar Wikstrom; collectors, H. E. Stromstedt, Frank E. Lindquist, Nystrom, Albert Valt, Manfred Phil and Helmer Nyberg.

Reports of committees were heard and the meeting adjourned until Feb. 16. It was announced that the pulpit at the church next Sunday will be occupied by Dr. Gustaf Anderson, president of Augustana college and theological school of Rock Island, Ill., who is coming east to attend a meeting of the committee making arrangements for the celebration of the 400th anniversary of the reformation.

WHAT THE FRENCH MAID SAID

CORRECT TABLE LINEN

"Father is going to have four men to a real dinner next week," excitedly burst out Marjorie to Marie who was in the dining room of Marjorie's aunt's house looking over some table doilies for possible holes or stains.

"Yes, you get it up?" asked Marie.

"Yes," answered Marjorie, "and I have it all planned out so far as the eating part is concerned, but I am not sure on how to dress the table. Will you tell me? Father is very particular on this occasion to have everything nice. I suppose I shall have to buy some new linen too."

"A fine damask tablecloth is always in order for dinner," began Marie, "and from the simplest—which, however, you should buy in the desired length with a woven border design."

"There is a wide range in values up to the elaborate dinner cloth, with a centre of heavy lace, a wide band of real linen falling well over the edge of the table and a deep edge of real lace bordering this."

"Dinner napkins, which are always very large, may be either with or without a monogram in the centre of one corner."

"Tell me about luncheon linen too while you are on the subject, won't you, Marie?" interrupted Marjorie.

"Providing the table itself is made of fine wood and kept in faultless condition," went on Marie, "it is most beautiful for breakfast and luncheon when left uncovered except for the doilies for plates and glasses at each place, and for the necessary centerpiece to match or harmonize with the doilies."

"These may be of linen with drawn-work or embroidery, or of old fashioned crocheted lace or of fine lace and embroidery, according to the other appointments of the table."

"No doilies are more generally satisfactory than those of good linen embroidered with a neat design and having a scalloped edge."

"I like, myself, hemstitched sets for breakfast and luncheon made of plain coarse linen, that is 'coarse' in the sense of loosely woven, not meaning to imply poor quality."

"You are a jewel," said Marjorie gratefully. "I shall be quite a perfect housekeeper soon with your help."

WHAT THE COOK SAYS

Cook is a regular walking encyclopedia on everything to do with housekeeping. Note the following: To test tea, burn a small quantity on a metal plate. With good tea the amount of ash remaining is small, then increasing in quantity as the quality of the sample tested deteriorates.

To keep the table salt dry and soft, dry it, then crush it under a rolling pin till perfectly free from lumps, and sift into a tablespoonful of cornstarch.

Keep a large salt shaker in the hot closet over the stove where it will be dry to have handy to salt meat and other things cooking on the stove.

Cook tells me that a pair of long wooden knitting needles are most excellent for draining doughnuts. As the doughnuts are fried sily them on a needle, and when it is full set it on the top of a pan to cool. The doughnuts do not crush and the lard drains off.

After cleaning brass or copper with salt and vinegar she says to rub it with olive oil and the metal will not tarnish for a long time.

If the top of the kerosene lamp becomes loosened, it may often be effectively tightened by applying a little melted alum.

To clean lamp glasses, Cook says, hold them over a pot of boiling water until well steamed, then polish with a dry duster. It is far less trouble than washing and the glasses very rarely break.

When two glass tumblers stick together put cold water in the inner one and set them into warm water; they will separate at once.

To clean windows satisfactorily a little turpentine dissolved in warm water is the best thing to use.

A great many women, Cook thinks, when preparing a meat for dinner which takes a long time to cook, never stop to consider that if they would cook enough at one time for two dinners, they would make a very material saving in their gas bills. The meat could be served in different form the second day, but the long period of cooking would not have to be repeated.

When frying pork chops, make a slash in the chop before frying; this enables the chop to lie flat to the pan.

Otherwise, the chop humps up and does not cook.

Potatoes are more nutritious if boiled in their skins after being scrubbed clean; they can be skinned before taking to the table.

Every woman knows how very difficult it is to remove a baked fish from the pan, without breaking it. Cook says if it is laid upon a piece of greased cotton cloth and then placed in the pan the cloth easily can be lifted out with the platter, then slipped from beneath the fish without danger to the latter.

To keep fish fresh, clean the fish and sprinkle the inside with brown sugar. Keep the fish in a horizontal position so that the sugar may soak into it as much as possible. Half an ounce of sugar will be found quite sufficient for three pounds of fish. If fish is treated by this method before salting and smoking the flavor is much improved.

Fish may be scaled much better by first dipping them into boiling water for a minute.

Cook wants me to give you this recipe for eggless coffee gingerbread which she thinks is especially good:

Use one and one-half cupsful of molasses, one level teaspoonful of salt, two and three-quarter cupsful of flour, one and one-half cupsful of soda dissolved, two-third cupsful of cold coffee, one-half cupful melted shortening and one teaspoonful ginger.

This quantity will make two loaves. Half a loaf will answer for a small family.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

five smock. At the lower edge, however, it was cut to form a point at the front and one at the back, and it was banded with the dark fur. Beneath it was a slip or lining with sleeves of the same silk, and with skirt of the same and in fact both sleeves and skirt were quite plain. But at the neck was posed an exceedingly becoming flaring collar of the fur, and around the neck and armhole edges was a little band of white chiffon embroidered in green. Over the hips was draped a sash which by virtue of confining the fullness of the over-garment, gave to it the long-waisted effect that is essential to the carrying out of the Mogen Age idea. A second gown, on the same general lines, was made of green velvet with long plain basque like bodice and full gathered skirt, but the skirt was quite unusual in that it had of bound scallops at the lower edge, and the basque was richly embroidered in gold and green threads below the waist-line. Although the upper part and sleeves were plain save for bands of fur upon the sleeves, and for the flaring collar of fur that finished the half-round neck, the front and back of the bodice was without fullness, but at the sides there was a little fullness, and these sides were cleverly extended to form a girdle that terminated with a single long sash end falling at the left of the front.

The scalloped edge is designed to be padded and button-holed, the flowers, leaves and circles can be worked either in solid embroidery or as eyelets, or in a combination of solid work and eyelets. The stems are to be outlined.

To pad the scallops rapidly and effectively, work chain stitch between the lines, heavier at the center, lighter at the points; or cut a skein of thread, apply two or more strands over the center of the stamped pattern, keeping within the lines, tack here and there in couching, gathering the threads closely together at each point of the scallops, then proceed to button-hole closely over the foundation. When making solid embroidery, first pad the stamped figures by darning backward and forward lengthwise, and then cover closely with over and over stitches worked in the opposite direction from the padding.

In a general way, it may be said that for all afternoon and morning occasions, the coat suit is the prevailing costume, although long coats and coats of fur are much worn over gowns of velvet and of heavy silk, of broadcloth, and of various other materials. Whether or not the military influence that is in the air, has had its effect, the tailored suit is a comparatively simple creation this season. The over-elaborate, dressy costume that has been put forth under such name during the past few years, is not conspicuous. While a great deal of fur trimming is used, and while braid of every kind is in evidence, there is a certain air of simplicity, and that simplicity always means a handsome and distinctive result.

At a first glance, the thought is that everything flares, that from being straight and narrow, we have suddenly grown voluminous, for in one way or another, in the coat, in the tunic or in the skirt breadth, width and ripple effect is to be found. But while this is true, a second glance assures recognition of the fact that in many instances women are clinging to straight lines, for they are loathe to give up all the slenderness which it has taken years to achieve. A very handsome coat suit seen during an afternoon session was, for example, made of black broadcloth with narrow skirt and oddly shaped tunic, and the tunic was laid in many plaits. Consequently, when the wearer walked, there was much flare and breadth, but when she stood, there were straight lines preserved. The coat extended only a little below the waist-line, but hung in straight lines and was trimmed with collar and cuffs of blue fox, while the accompanying hat was a real "tricorn" with crown of silver broadcloth velvet with upturned brim of plain velvet banded with fur of the same sort. An exceedingly handsome suit was made of combined broadcloth and baby lamb velvet in a wonderful shade of mole, the skirt or as much of the skirt as could be seen was made of the fur velvet with long flaring tulle of the cloth and the coat again was a short one of velvet to match the skirt, with sleeves of cloth, for this is a season of contrasting sleeves, and these appear in the coat suits of more elaborate sort as well as in the gowns. Beaver is more conspicuous than it has been in many years. A very elegant costume of green velour de lune was made with circular skirt finished with a wide band of beaver fur and a coat that hung in straight lines to below the hips where it was finished with a full skirt forming a deep band at each side and this skirt was edged with a narrow band of the beaver, the same fur being used for the collar collar and wide cuffs. Checkers are unquestionably a feature, and that they are becoming is true, but whether comfortable or not, under mild weather conditions, must be left for each wearer to decide for herself. A costume that gives evidence of the prevailing military effect and at the same time is far from being severe, was made of velour in a really wonderful shade of blue with trimming of opossum bands, and with real Bradenbergs closing, the simple coat, while above the fur, the tunic was richly embroidered in subtle shades. The skirt in this instance was narrow and plain, the tunic full and much flared, but open at the sides in a rather unusual way, and the fur was approximately four inches in width and the embroidery above perhaps a little more. The coat was the almost inevitable one for suits of the kind, simple, plain, but taking straight lines under the arms, with a band of fur finishing it at just about the hip line, and the choker and the bands on the sleeves were also of fur. Fur coats always are sumptuous and always can be trusted to appear at the horse show, let that occasion come when it may. An exquisite costume that is fairly typical of prevailing styles was made of Persian lamb with trimming of sable, the body portion being just loose enough for comfort with moderately wide sleeves, but below the waist it spread, and flared to reveal a lining of rich white satin brocade. One of sable skins made a choker collar, and there were two bands of equal width on each sleeve, with a brush finishing each one at the low waist-line was arranged entire skins that formed a belt. Beneath the coat was to be seen a skirt of black velvet, and there was a tiny little toque of soft pliable fur with trimming of paradise. Almost by its side, was seen a costume of heavy felle silk in a wonderful shade of chestnut brown with trimming of brown fox. The skirt was circular, generously flared and banded with fur, and the coat was in half length, with fur at its lower edge. But in this instance, in place of a collar was worn a fur scarf, although bands of fur finished the close fitting sleeves. The hat was again a tiny little close-fitting turban, with two little feathers that drooped, coquettishly at the back of the hat, in the place of standing upright.

Beneath the fur coats were worn a great many dresses in what is known as the Mogen Age style, and velvet is unquestionably a favorite for such, although velvet is often combined with other materials. A beautiful gown seen during an evening session, was of the favorite felle silk in a rich shade of green, with trimming of skunk, and the important feature unquestionably was an overdress or tunic in the real Mogen Age style, for it was cut with round neck and without sleeves, and was much after the manner of the primi-

THE RIVER ROAD

No truth has been emphasized more frequently of late by all who dwell on possible municipal improvements than that the arteries of traffic and travel leading into our city and out of it in every direction should be such as to create a good impression on the mind of the tourist, and if this be true of Rogers street, Gorham street and other streets, it is doubly true of the river road from Lawrence, leading out of the town river city a new and beautiful road skirts the river through a stretch of unrivalled scenery until Indian Orchard is reached. Here it connects with a very poor stretch of road or street which in the first street end, runs along a steep hill and makes a most unpromising entrance to the city after describing various dangerous curves.

In other words, the state has constructed a fine roadway to within a stone's throw of Lowell and left one unlovely and dangerous link over which our constantly increasing traffic must enter or depart. Lowell suffers in consequence, not only by comparison with the Lawrence approach but even more directly, owing to the dangerous condition of the first street entrance. Before the construction of the new state road the possible reconstruction of first street had been agitated, but experts declared that nothing could be done to make it entirely satisfactory. The logical thing for the city to do, therefore, is to agitate the construction of a new link to connect the city with the recently completed road which ends at Indian Orchard.

Senator Marchand has brought the matter to a head by introducing a bill in the present session of the legislature making provisions for such a new link along the river bank. This bill should be supported by all our legislators for the suggested improvement is a benefit that would react on the city and all its people. With the possibility of annexation and with the certainty of future development the riverside from here to the Dracont line is a splendid site for a riverside park, and the construction of a new road would be followed by property improvement that would justify any expenditure that may be made.

SOME GOOD SUGGESTIONS

If the municipal council should sit still for the coming year and refuse to do anything of a constructive nature, the stagnation cannot be attributed to a lack of good advice or remedial suggestion. Rarely have so many excellent reforms of a constructive and progressive nature been agitated, not only by the board of trade and by the press but even more directly by the chief executive. Many of the recommendations made by Mayor Murphy in connection with his recent statement of municipal finance are timely and the entire program that he outlined shows that he is awake to the needs of the city and recognizes the danger of municipal inactivity. Many of the suggestions he has given out have already been agitated by The Sun, and we may, therefore, consistently hope that they will not remain in theory but will be accepted by the council and acted on promptly, provided, however, they be carried out in a manner that will show satisfactory results for every dollar expended.

The problem of street lighting, to which the mayor devoted some space, certainly calls for improvement. A better arrangement for the business district would have a direct effect in making the city more attractive and making business better for our merchants, and a proportionate improvement in the residential district would remove certain dangers that are only too obvious to those who remember the many holdups of the past year. The Sun would gladly welcome a plan for the better lighting of the principal business streets of our city, as it has advocated such a plan in the past.

The recommendations for the improvement of the arteries of traffic to and from the city, for the smooth paving of Rogers street and other street repairs and reconstruction have also been advocated by this paper. They are in keeping with the spirit of the plans formulated and sent to the council by the board of trade and their adoption would be a decided public benefit. Another plan that would be generally approved, if the expense would not be too great, is the suggested seizing of the land opposite city hall and the extension of Dunmer street in line with the ideas of the "city beautiful."

There can be no two views of the excellence of the suggestion for the erection of a contagious hospital. This is a matter on which the last year's council bungled and retrograded shamefully and it is high time that the reproach be wiped out. By its procrastination and disregard for the law Lowell in this matter has attracted a most unsavory notoriety, and there is every incentive for our authorities to select some good site and build a contagious hospital in accordance with the state law.

The recommendation that two permanent street repair gangs be organized and kept at this specific branch of the city's activity is one that The Sun has preached until the subject is threadbare. With such a gang, composed of competent and industrious men the city would be safer for pedestrians and drivers of all manner of vehicles, our streets would look better and wear longer, money would be saved and there would be fewer lawsuits. Here is something that ought to be acted on without delay.

The recommendation that the sewer problems of Wigginsville and South Lowell be attended to outlines a decided requirement, but the project would be a very expensive one. Were it to be adopted that other clause which states that less money be appropriated for sewers generally would be nullified. Yet, many prominent and well-spirited citizens believe that the city does wisely in attending to the sewer problems of all its sections as the attention is generally followed by

TO AID B. AND M.

The one clause of Governor Walsh's inaugural which was universally commended was that which contained his suggestion that instead of opposing the reconstruction of the Boston and Maine railroad by passing obstructive legislation, the state should do everything possible to help its reorganization by aiding those who are striving to repair the wounds made by past mistakes and persistent public hoarding. The time has come when nothing is to be gained by further investigations or prohibitive laws, and when a great deal may be done by active and practical attention on the part of the legislature and friendly co-operation on the part of the public.

The governor has followed up his inaugural suggestion by standing sponsor for a bill which will present to the legislature in a few days, embodying his ideas of constructive legislative aid. Though the details have not yet been made public, the bill is said to be acceptable to the state officials, the trustees of the railroad and the federal department of justice. If so, it ought to be supported by the public which needs no further lesson on the effect of legislative activity on contrary lines, as demonstrated strikingly in the case of the New Haven railroad.

In explaining his bill, Governor Walsh said that what is most essential is that the trustees of the railroad be given authority to proceed with the reorganization of the property without having the shadow of an over-vigilant legislature forever before them. "There can be no great danger in this as the railroad has seen the results of unwise management and evasion of law too strikingly demonstrated to be ignored. All question of a receivership has apparently been abandoned and the keynote of the whole situation as seen by the trustees and as seen by the governor is optimism."

It is not often that the number of dead and injured, following a great natural catastrophe, mounts higher with each report, but this seems to be the case in accounts of the Italian earthquake. Were the misery and destruction in one city, as at many times in the past, it could be relieved the more easily, but in this instance scores of cities and towns scattered over a wide area have been almost entirely ruined with an amazing loss of life. The earthquake will go down in history as one of the most disastrous up to this time. Its direct effect will, in all probability, put all thoughts of participating in the war out of the minds of the Italian people.

STUDY AND EXERCISE

Study does not hurt a child unless the study time is taken from time that should be spent in out-of-door exercise.

Overstudy and lack of exercise make thin, bloodless children. It is a combination that provokes St. Vitus' dance.

If your child is thin and pale, listless, inattentive, has a feeble appetite, is unable to stand still or sit still, you must remember that health is even more important than education.

See to it at once that the patient does not overstudy, gets at least two hours out-of-door exercise every day, sleeps ten hours out of every twenty-four and takes a non-alcoholic tonic like Dr. Williams' Pink Pills until the color returns to cheeks and tips and the appetite becomes normal.

For growing children who become pale and thin Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are not only safe but in the great majority of cases they are the very best tonic that can be taken. They build up the blood and strengthen the nerves and assist nature in keeping pace with rapid growth.

The Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., will send you two books on the blood and nerves if you mention this paper. If your child is very young ask for the booklet "The Care of the Baby." Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

FOR FIRE PROTECTION

The plan submitted by the Locks and Canals corporation to the municipal council whereby the canal system and the municipal water system might be so combined that the danger of conflagrations in the mills would be lessened is worthy of deep consideration, and if found feasible and desirable, of adoption. Remembering the protests that followed the alleged merging of the two systems in the city mains in the past, the Lowell public will not approve of the present scheme until it is cleared of the slightest suspicion of danger, but if it is certain that the combination could be effected with sufficient safeguards to health, there is no good reason why the request of the Locks and Canals company should be refused.

As submitted by Engineer Safford of the Locks and Canals the proposed plan is for the adoption of such a system of valves as would entirely protect the city supply while permitting the city to turn its water freely into the pipes of the private company in emergencies. These valves would let the water run only in one direction and pressure from the other direction would close the valves. To provide for the proper supervision of the valves and connections a system of inspection would be arranged whereby it could be readily ascertained if any canal water was leaking into the city mains, if the system is absolutely reliable and if constant and regular supervision is possible, it might be adopted with advantage. If there is no danger to public health, Lowell should do everything in reason to prevent a great conflagration in the mills which might throw thousands out of employment and put a heavy burden on the community. The plan is one that the public would approve if backed by the support of disinterested experts.

SEEN AND HEARD

NO LAND WIRELESS

A Swiss officer who spends most of the year in an Alpine fortress says that wireless telegraphy is not being employed on land.

"In peace," he says, "we are constantly receiving wireless messages in the Alps from lines in the Atlantic, and at the beginning of the war we received (involuntarily) many military messages in cipher, both from Germany and France. But they have stopped. The armies have found that wireless messages are too dangerous, and they have been replaced by the telephone at the front."

GUNPOWDER NO RAIN PRODUCER

English scientists have again been compelled to assure the public that neither the smell of powder nor the effect of gun fire has the slightest connection with the rainfall.

Several sources it had been asserted that the heavy and persistent rains recently experienced in Southern England and Northern France were attributed to atmospheric disturbances produced by artillery fire at the seat of war.

"Like the supposed influence of the moon upon weather, the popular belief that powder brings rain is baseless," writes a scientist in the Times. "About four years ago the first asked in the House of Commons whether he would instruct the fleet to carry out its heavy gun practice at some other period of the year than in the middle of the harvest time, when the resultant heavy rains may cause serious loss to the farming community. The idea was absolutely without foundation. Experiments were made in America and on the continent showing that in dry weather no amount of

WAY TO FORTUNE

"The Germans, lacking gasoline, are making a substitute for their automobiles out of fat," said a local automobile dealer the other day. "The Germans with their submarines and Zeppelins and Taubers and what not, certainly put modern progress to good use."

"In this knack of turning all sorts of modern things to good use the Germans are like the inventor who visited the capitalist and said: 'I've got an invention here that will make our fortunes. It is an alarm clock that we can guarantee—that we can positively guarantee—for it will make every single purchaser jump out of bed like a shot.'

"'Humph. That's what they all say. But let's have her ring,' said the skeptical capitalist."

"She don't ring," said the inventor, smiling proudly. She hanks,"—Exchange.

THE DANCING LESSON

One, two, three, four—slide—step—turn. Watch the professor, it's nothing, you see? Now take your partner and dance it, oh, gee! What in the world has got into your feet? Dance to the music—now, wait for the beat. One, two, three—that's it—now four and a slide. Turn—oh, the dickens!—don't turn to that side. Keep off my feet, there is room on this floor. Now you are out again—count—two, three, four. One, two, three—watch it—a slide. Isn't it simple and easy to learn? —Springfield Union.

LADY LOOKABOUT

The Boston board of health has taken a very wise move in issuing an order to prevent children from picking over rubbish in the various dumps of the city. Not only are children who are thus employed liable to contract and spread disease, but a greater injury both to them and to the community is bound to follow. Students of sociology have followed cases and have learned that many pickers and sneak thieves received their training on dumps. A few cents given a small boy for a bit of lead pipe or a few rows of tin cans will continue his pickering in new fields, and eventually we find him in police court.

A short time ago, The Sun published an able editorial on this subject, calling the attention of parents to the ways of wrong-doing which offer themselves to children who are allowed to pick over the rubbish on dumps.

Getting Out the Vote

I am glad Governor Walsh has considered the matter of convincing voters to the polls in carriages and automobiles on election day, of sufficient importance to dwell upon it in his inaugural address. It has always struck me as lazy on the part of a voter in good health to be seen on election day in the conveyance of a candidate who, in order to secure his vote must tote the elector to and from his home. Only a lazy man would allow it, and he who has the franchise is wasted on electors who must be coaxed, wheedled, bribed, practically, to make them use it.

In the case of the aged and infirm, it is, of course, another matter, and they deserve it as a matter of courtesy, but even in these cases, it seems that the city should provide the conveyance, and thus relieve the candidate of the expense, and the voter of the compulsion it must place upon him to vote as his benefactor dictates.

I have in mind two or three able-bodied men in my own neighborhood who boldly assert that if their vote is worth anything to a candidate it is worth coming after. And the real part of it is that the vote of one of these men counts just the same as the vote of a weak while man who would scorn to ride to the polling booth. Why cannot the different candidates make an agreement among themselves to eliminate this feature of their campaigns?

It can be done.

The Immigration Question

In connection with the controversy between many sides in regard to the literacy test proposed against immigrants, it may be interesting to note that two leading citizens of our country, one representing wide experience with the practical phases of immigration, and the other, a man whose position on matters of education should command the respect of the world, have declared themselves opposed to the bill. These men are Charles Nagel, secretary of commerce and labor, and Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard university, the latter seen on every subject save that of literacy on which he appears to be as much a pagan as any of the old Romans.

Mr. Nagel places himself on record as being unqualifiedly opposed to the literacy test. To quote his exact words: "I care more for the sound body and sound mind and the straight look out of the eye, and the ability and willingness to work, than for any other test that can be given."

Mr. Eliot says: "The only questions which are appropriate are: is he healthy, strong, desirous of earning a good living? Many illiterates have common sense; sound bodies, and good characters. Indeed, it is not clear that education increases intelligence to the amount of common sense which nature gave the individual."

These two opinions, coinciding as they do, should carry weight in the deciding of the question.

It is curious for the rank and file of the American people to close the doors of our country to the immigrant who fails to pass a literacy test, when some of us need so very far back to find his ancestors, many of them in the present of the very railroads of the West, standing at Castle Garden, or some other equally historic point, and making good from the start.

Give us the foreigner, who, if he cannot himself be fully Americanized, is anxious to have his children assimilate all we can offer them, with a view to becoming the citizens of the United States, and while they are straight look out of the eye. This is the part of Mr. Nagel's opinion I like the best.

Billboard Nuisance

That the billboard has become frankly a nuisance, not only to the eye, but the planning board may deny, and then in removing it from the urban landscape, we pray. At the same time, the existence is no inordinant with the law or ordinance. We have a right to assume that their owners have a vested interest in the rule of the public highways, and that the billboards are a constitutional and not in restraint of trade to advertise placing such a high tax on these unsightly objects that their use must be discontinued. Now none is more opposed to these disagreeable adjuncts to our city buildings and streets than I, and more than once I have berated them with my pen, presenting so humbly to the attention of our respectable children and youths, beer, tobacco, cigarettes and cheap shows. Yet a sense of fairness compels me to observe that the recommendation of the planning board that they be taken out of existence, favors the high-handed landlordism of a worthy of a republican form of government. Hereafter, the city has not met with any particular difficulty in passing an ordinance when it was considered necessary to the public welfare. We do not resort to this means of getting rid of the billboard?

As to Fire Prevention

Since the Salem fire many building restrictions, some new, others simply revised, are being enacted to prevent a repetition of the disaster. Boston's fire commissioner is trying to secure legislation against the use of the wooden shingle, not only in Boston, but in the 22 cities and towns which comprise the metropolitan district. Now New York city has been the scene of a dreadful subway accident, for which wooden street cars were largely responsible, the city government is legislating the wooden car out of existence. When a fire of any consequence occurs in Lowell for a few days following there is an unusual number of fire trucks, and then the incident is forgotten.

It is too bad a dreadful accident must occur before we rouse ourselves to an appreciation of our laxity in the way of prevention.

Votes for Women

Jan. 11, 9:30 a. m. I have just finished perusing the evening papers and they report that the vote on the suffrage amendment which is to be voted on tomorrow. Antis have come from all over the country to preach their doctrine of "Home-keeping hearts are happiest." Walking paradoxes, I call them. They assert that the resolution will be defeated by more than two-thirds majority, while the suffragists are making no claims. They know they will lose. They realize that the time is hardly ripe for success as yet. The campaign of educating the male voter to recognize in his womankind help-mates in affairs of any kind which touch on the welfare of home and family, and therefore of state, has not as yet progressed sufficiently far to insure the passage of the amendment. Victory not ultimately, but at the present time, is as far from their minds as from the minds of the antis, yet they willingly go forth to defeat knowing not only the meaning of their action, but all times before the attention of the law-makers, can they eventually attain success.

Personally I do not think the amendment will be defeated by so large a majority. It is safe to assume that the representatives from those states where suffrage for women has been passed successfully the experimental stage, will vote for the resolution, and surely the champions of the cause, even though in the minority, are not confined to those states alone.

More than one paper, I observe, commented President Wilson's irreverent pronouncement he has now made for the sixth time that suffrage for women is a question each state should settle for itself.

This project of "state rights" on issues purely national has been tried before now. As long ago as 1835, the South asserted that any state had the right to refuse to pay duty on imported goods as required by national law. This was when Governor Hayne of South Carolina threatened that if the government should use force in executing so distasteful a law, his state should secede. The result was the famous "Reply to Hayne," to this day known as "the most remarkable speech ever made in the American congress," and by which the execution of the national tariff law was accomplished. South Carolina and the Union remained intact.

Again, later, when slavery was the burning issue, each state tried to maintain that she alone held the right to decide whether she would be a slave for a free state. In asserting the authority of the nation in issues national, the states standing at Castle Garden, or some other equally historic point, and making good from the start.

Give us the foreigner, who, if he cannot himself be fully Americanized, is anxious to have his children assimilate all we can offer them, with a view to becoming the citizens of the United States, and while they are straight look out of the eye. This is the part of Mr. Nagel's opinion I like the best.

Billboard Nuisance. That the billboard has become frankly a nuisance, not only to the eye, but the planning board may deny, and then in removing it from the urban landscape, we pray. At the same time, the existence is no inordinant with the law or ordinance. We have a right to assume that their owners have a vested interest in the rule of the public highways, and that the billboards are a constitutional and not in restraint of trade to advertise placing such a high tax on these unsightly objects that their use must be discontinued. Now none is more opposed to these disagreeable adjuncts to our city buildings and streets than I, and more than once I have berated them with my pen, presenting so humbly to the attention of our respectable children and youths, beer, tobacco, cigarettes and cheap shows. Yet a sense of fairness compels me to observe that the recommendation of the planning board that they be taken out of existence, favors the high-handed landlordism of a worthy of a republican form of government. Hereafter, the city has not met with any particular difficulty in pass-

For a while, equal suffrage may hang fire as a state issue, but sooner or later I believe it will receive recognition as a national issue, as was the enfranchisement of the negro, and be treated accordingly.

January 12, 5:24 a. m. Low hanging clouds and a cold, heavy rain falling. In local politics these are omens of a democratic victory, and as I recall the democratic majority in the house at the present time, I am encouraged. Perhaps the same spirit that influences the local democrat to emulate Ajax and defy the elements, may also have the same effect on his national brother, for democrats as a body are not wholly opposed to suffrage, at least as a state issue.

If only I knew if it is raining in Washington! If only I knew if the weather man is an anti! With impatience I await the evening papers.

Same day, 1:30 p. m. Such a long day! I have just learned that the suffrage amendment was killed, 204 to 174. I protest the word "killed." It was not killed. It was only beaten and there is a great difference. If you are killed, you are done for forever, but if you are only beaten, your chances of "coming back" are excellent.

As I look over the returns tabulated by parties, I conclude that it was a fair day in Washington, and that the weather man is an anti, for I find that 171 democrats voted against and 53 for the resolution. It must have been an exceptionally good day in the capital city. Still there is an excuse for the delinquent vote. Their leader, without commenting on the merits of the cause, spoke for his party when he asserted that he considered suffrage a state issue.

The republican party leader was one of the chief speakers in favor, and his party voted 72 for and 33 against. A two-thirds vote is required to pass the resolution.

The measure, therefore, really was defeated by 75 votes, but the antis failed of the two-thirds vote they claimed by 18 votes.

Well, the cause may be defeated, beaten, if you will, for the present, but "killed," never!

ATHLETES AND ATHLETICS

Don Lippincott, captain of the Penn track team and one of the greatest sprinters in the world today, is training on a dirt track in Brooklyn on the way to the Boston Olympics.

According to reports, Lippincott looks to be all right again. The Penn team suffered a breakdown last spring when it pulled a doubleheader in Brooklyn and the injured team will be back on him this year.

Don Sam Langford will have to find another place to make his home. He has outlived his welcome with the public, especially as an opponent for the Boston "Fat Baby" and the two who followed him will probably never meet again. Eight times they succeeded in pulling down a big cat, but on the ninth time there's nothing doing.

However, we can rest assured that Harry Woodman will find somebody else to furnish the lunch money for himself and Sam. The Boston news is not so far from the truth as it will be putting dents in white hair aspirations for a long time to come.

President Joe Lamin of the Red Sox and Connie Mack, manager of the Boston Red Sox, are expected to testify at the coming trial of the federal suit against organized ball.

Joseph P. Sullivan, the new owner of the Lawrence club, is a Somerville lawyer who will be in the city for some time. He has entered the baseball line of the down river city Sullivan has held a large amount of the stock in the city since he has taken over the club.

Now Sullivan will have to find his own way in Lawrence. It will be his choice for manager who leads this season's team and it will be his play to play with the team.

Tom Halpin and Ted Meredith have once more been matched. These two with Dave Caldwell, who finished fourth

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN

If Kempton and Connon were to be entered in a Quaker bowling league?

If the Reds should suddenly rise to power in New England and push O. B.'s minions off the baseball map?

If Al Winn were to be made president of the proposed outlying league and the league decided that the job should be purely an honorary one?

If Dan Noonan should turn around and win a pennant with the Haverhill team next season?

If Huber Baker should fail to carry the hook through an entire season in every game the St. Nick's play?

If Ban Johnson should burst forth into a eulogy upon the merits of his dear Federal League brothers?

If the rising white hopes should grab Sam Langford as the surest stepping stone to success and tuckie Boston's Fat Baby as a clinch?

If Connie Mack should come back with another championship team next season after his general house-cleaning of last fall?

If the Lowell owners did not sell their club after all and Jim Kennedy lose my job and not worry much about it?

If Herzog did not now he is independent. His farm of 200 acres raises enough crops each year to support Herzog and his family without the aid of his baseball savings. His home is one of the finest farm houses in Maryland. He has a benzine car, money in bank and he owns gilt-edged stocks.

"Got it all in baseball," says Herzog. Herzog was lucky enough to be in the Giant roster while the club slugged in three world series combats. His divvy for the three series was about $5,500.

Herzog's new contract with the Reds will run for two years, is said to call for $3,000 a year, so that means that Herzog, before 1917 will add another $16,000 to his bankroll, provided, of course, that Garry Hermann and the fellow directors don't get obstreperous in the meantime.

RESCUE WORK UNDER GREAT DIFFICULTIES

Many Living Victims Being Released From Their Prisons of Plaster and Fallen Timbers

ROME, Jan. 18.—Rescue work throughout the wilderness created by the earthquake last Wednesday continues slowly and under great difficulties. Each reported excavation serves to verify earlier reports of the probable casualties, though here and there despite the fact that five days have elapsed since the catastrophe living victims are being released from their prisons of crumbling plaster and fallen timbers.

Thousands of soldiers and civilians in great numbers including many members of the nobility gradually are systematizing the relief work and are getting food and shelter supplies over the obstructed roads to stricken towns and villages.

Pope Has Fund of $4,000,000

Relief work now, however, overshadows the rescue efforts.

The pope, according to the Osservatore Romano, has sent aid to all the bishops of the dioceses in the earthquake zone. A fund of 20,000,000 lire ($4,000,000) has been received by the pontiff and will be used in the alleviation of suffering.

The property loss involved is indicated by one estimate that it might exceed 300,000,000 lire ($60,000,000). No accurate figures are yet available.

Four New Shocks

In dozens of villages citizens who escaped with their lives suffer poignant fear that new shocks will shatter their buildings about their heads.

The shocks, however, are lessening and none have been reported since yesterday.

The greatest care is being exercised to avert any epidemic of disease.

Rescuers at work in several towns have removed many living victims from the ruins.

The German attack on the allies' front has shifted northward from Sion and yesterday there was a severe encounter in the region of Albert.

Today's official notice says that the Germans attacking with bayonets drove the allies from positions north-east of Albert in the Olsens region.

There is little activity. Several French trenches in the Argonne are said to have been captured.

Victories For Allies

The official statement from Paris disputes the German claim of victories in the Argonne saying that the attacks were repulsed. Several minor victories for the allies are reported, mostly in artillery engagements.

Where Fighting Along Aisne

Detailed reports of the battle along the Aisne supplementing the brief announcements of the French and German offices showed that the fighting raged in ferocity that which occurred along the Yser canal in Flanders when the Germans attempted to break through to the English channel, although the number of men engaged was smaller.

Hand to Hand Encounters

There were hand to hand encounters of the most desperate nature in which the French Moroccan regiments distinguished themselves, using their rifles as clubs after their bayonets had been bent or broken in the pitiless struggle.

Allied Front Stronger Than Ever

Advances from French sources say that the allied front in the positions taken up after the retreat, is stronger than ever. London suggests that the Germans may follow up their victory by inaugurating another forward movement. Berlin considers that the general offensive movement of the allies, said to have been ordered a month ago by General Joffre has broken down.

Russians' Victory Complete

Late reports from Petrograd emphasize the completeness of the victory said to have been gained over the Turkish troops. Of the four British capital troops, according to the Russian war office large numbers were killed and the survivors were put to flight.

Germans Attack Russians

In Poland the Germans have again attacked the Russians west of Warsaw but apparently have been unable thus far to break through the line of defense. In northern Poland the Russians continue to advance toward the Prussian border.

44TH ANNIVERSARY OF PROCLAMATION OF WILHELM I. OF GERMANY

LONDON, Jan. 18.—London is recalling that this is the 44th anniversary of the proclamation of Wilhelm I. as German emperor and in the British capital it is expected that the day may bring to follow up with a still more important movement the success achieved last week in the neighborhood of Soissons.

Germans on Defensive Near Warsaw

In London it is believed that the Germans adopted what is virtually a defensive role to the west of Warsaw—some British observers arguing that this has been forced upon them by superior Russian numbers—and that these defensive tactics synchronize with the movement of many thousands of troops from Poland to the French and Belgian battlefields.

Attempt to Cross Aisne

The fighting at Soissons some British commentators declare to be the precursor of the entry of these new troops upon a vigorous offensive, perhaps an attempt to cross the River Aisne. At Soissons the French failed to hold their positions on the northern bank of the river and for the Germans to attempt to gain the southern bank is regarded as a development to be expected. As to future engagements in this region it appears to be a fact that the French artillery on the hills south of the Aisne commands all approaches to the river and that it will have to be reckoned with.

Germans Driven Back

In the eastern arena of the war the steady Russian pressure which the arrival of one million of last year's recruits has enabled the Muscovites to exert upon the Germans, according to news despatches reaching London, has been slowly pushing back the German line to the west of Warsaw. News despatches today reported the Russian occupation of Plock. This report has not been confirmed officially, but the Russians on Saturday crossed the Skrwa river a few miles below that point and may have been able to occupy the city. Russian forces already had reached Sierpce and Gombin, lying respectively directly north and south of this provincial capital.

Defeat of Turks by Russians

The Russian defeat of the Turks, if the claims of Petrograd are fully borne out, was so decisive that it may mark the close of the Ottoman attempt to invade Russia in the Caucasian region. The Russian victory probably will free enough of the Caucasian army to oppose effectively the Turkish forces, which are approaching the frontier further eastward, through Persia.

BERLIN REPORT THE FRENCH TRENCHES CAPTURED AND OTHER SUCCESSES

BERLIN, Jan. 18.—The German war office today gave out an official announcement as follows:

"In the neighborhood of Neuport yesterday there were artillery duels but nothing else. No attacking movements have been undertaken by the enemy in the last few days."

"At La Holselle, northeast of Albert, our troops, who again had established themselves in the churchyard of Holselle and in the hamlet to the southwest attacked the French with the bayonet and drove them from their positions. We took prisoners three officers and 100 men. Several French trenches have been captured in the Argonne forest."

Fighting Still On

The French attack on our positions to the northwest of Pont A. Mousson, against a hill which is a mile and one-fifth south of Velecy, advanced as far as our trenches. This fighting is still going on.

"In the Vosges and in Upper Alsace a heavy snowstorm and fog have prevailed interfering with the fighting."

"The situation in East Prussia has undergone no change. In northern Poland the Russians attempted an advance across a branch of the river Skrwa near Radzano but were repulsed. Nothing of importance has transpired on the Polish Vistula."

"British mines have been washed ashore at several places along the coast."

PARIS REPORTS RECITE FRENCH SUCCESSES AT VARIOUS POINTS

PARIS, Jan. 18.—The French official statement given out this afternoon recites French successes yesterday at various points along the battle line: most of them artillery engagements. None of the actions seems to have been of great importance. There was stormy weather, yesterday in Flanders as well as in the Vosges. The text follows:

"From the sea to the Oise there was a violent storm, particularly in Belgium. The day saw artillery fighting at certain points. Near Autrech to the northeast of Vic-sur-Aisne two German attacks were repulsed. In the sectors of Soissons and of Rheims there was no change."

"In the region of Perthes there was very efficient marksmanship on the part of our artillery on the positions of the enemy."

"In the Argonne on hill 367 to the west of Bourlémont brought no result. We took possession of several German positions and the battle of the forest of La Prele which is still in the hands of the enemy. We have later repulsed a counter attack and maintained all our gains."

"In the Vosges there has been a heavy fall of snow. The enemy has been repulsed but without inflicting serious damage."

VALUATION IS PLACED ON PUBLIC PROPERTY

Assessors Complete Inventory of City Property Giving Personal and Real Estate Values

The board of assessors has completed an inventory of city property; the first actual and accurate inventory of city property ever taken.

The work in connection with the inventory was begun early last summer and was pursued by the assessors at every opportunity. They were unable to go through with it at once, and could tackle it only when the general work of the office did not require their immediate attention.

The report on city property was requested by Everett E. Tarbox of the state bureau of statistics, who, in his letter requesting the inventory, said: "I know this is quite a job, and I am sorry to be obliged to ask it of you, but perhaps I can be of service to you some day; if so I shall be pleased to reciprocate."

The first step toward itemizing the valuation of city property was the installation, by the assessors, of a card system, identical with the card system used in connection with taxable property, the only difference being that the city property cards are marked "exempt."

After the cards were prepared the assessors took them out and went over each item of city property, placing valuations, and these valuations appear on the cards that are marked "exempt," so that if one wants to know the value of any public building in the city the assessors can turn to the cards which, by the way, are gotten out under department heads, and tell at a glance the valuation asked for. This was not possible under the old system. The report includes schools, library, city hall, police station, and other city buildings, also parks, fire department, water works, charity department, and divided into real estate and personal valuation. The report represents no small amount of work on the part of the assessors in connection with it. One has but to see the report in its entirety to realize what Mr. Tarbox's request meant to the assessors and their clerk. The report was sent to Mr. Tarbox Saturday. It was prepared by Miss McGlothlin and is now in construction as it is complete in detail.

WOMAN IS IDENTIFIED

SHE HAD $170 IN HER POSSESSION WITH OTHER VALUABLES—SENT TO HOSPITAL

The woman found sitting in the rear room of the Bon Marche early Saturday evening and later taken to the police station where she was held for safe keeping, has been identified as Mattie A. Bethel, aged 65 years, formerly a house-keeper for a family named Heland on Main street. She was taken to the Chelmsford street hospital for further investigation.

When Mrs. Bethel was booked at the police station it was found that she carried over $170 in money, a lady's gold watch with the name "H. A. Bethel" engraved on it, besides a thimble and other articles. LIFE IN THE TRENCHES

BACCO AND TOLD STORIES

PARIS, Jan. 18.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—The following is sent from the trenches in northern France by a correspondent who volunteered for service with the British army at the beginning of the war:

"Although there was no formal truce declared during the holiday season, the fighters here had several days of quiet, by tacit consent.

"Germans and Englishmen met on the plain field between the lines, shook hands, swapped tobacco, told stories, and were even planning an international football game when the weather turned bad. All day long there was much searching for souvenirs to send home, and hundreds of fragments of shell or broken equipment were picked up in sections of the field where ordinarily it would mean sure death for a soldier to show himself.

"All rifle firing stopped at twilight on Christmas eve. During the evening both sides placed candles and little bonfires as Christmas lights along the top of the trenches. When it was seen that neither side intended to take advantage of the temporary peace, the soldiers began to climb out of their trenches and took up positions in the bright, moonlight on the flat ground in front. Back and forth across that two hundred yard field they greeted each other with wishes for a Merry Christmas. There was much cheering, speech-making, singing carols, and a little dancing. The Englishmen got out their hymn books, with which most of the soldiers are provided, and sang 'Lead Kindly Light,' 'Abide With Me,' and 'While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks By Night.' The hymns were interspersed with such favorites as 'Mandela' and 'Lipercery.'

Everybody Unarmed

"Gradually a few of the groups from the two sides drifted closer together. Everybody was unarmed. One of the foremost German groups waved a bottle of wine toward the nearest English group and invited them to join the party. After a moment or two the Englishmen started over, carrying a Christmas cake and a box of chocolates. The men shook hands all around, and immediately cheer and clapping came from both sides of the field, where English and German alike had been anxiously watching the meeting. The group had a smoke and drink together, and very soon large parties of the late enemies were seen chatting together. All the time in the distance could be heard the sound of artillery fighting.

"The Englishmen swapped pipe tobacco for German cigars, and British candles for German chocolates. Later in the evening the Germans sent over to the British trenches a small Christmas tree, with various cheerful messages and little gifts tied on its branches.

Weather Stopped Game

"On Christmas day the British soldiers brought a football out in front of the trenches and invited the Germans to send a team over for a game during the afternoon. They promised to do this, but the weather—or their officers—prevented it.

"Soldiers unslinging their cameras and took snapshots of little groups of men from both sides hobnobbing together. During the morning some of the gayer spirits organized what they called a 'fantastic parade,' led by a German youth who had somehow obtained possession of a high hat and dress suit. Among the paraders were two soldiers mounted on old bicycles without tires.

"The happy scene was rudely interrupted about one o'clock in the afternoon by the arrival of a big shell, fired from a battery several miles in the rear, which sent everybody scurrying back to the trenches for a time.

"Later in the afternoon British soldiers helped the enemy bury ten German soldiers whose bodies were found in a ditch in front of the German trench. They were killed a few days ago in an attempt on the English outpost."

OPENED ONE YEAR AGO

WOOD'S BUSINESS COLLEGE HAS GROWN RAPIDLY—HISTORY OF THE SCHOOL.

One year ago today witnessed the establishment of the thriving institution for commercial education which at present occupies practically the entire top floor of the Traders' Bank building at 40 Middlesex street and is favorably known throughout Lowell and vicinity as Wood's Business College.

The first step toward the opening of a business school was taken by Mr. Elliot P. Wood six years ago when he began teaching stenography and bookkeeping privately in his home. This modest beginning was successful to a degree that influenced Mr. Wood to

How to stop dandruff and loss of hair with Resinol

Here is a simple, inexpensive treatment that will almost always stop dandruff and scalp itching, and keep the hair thick, live and lustrous:

At night, spread the hair apart and rub a little Resinol Ointment into the scalp gently, with the tip of the finger. Repeat this until the whole scalp has been treated. Next morning, shampoo thoroughly with Resinol Soap and hot water. Work the creamy Resinol lather well into the the scalp. Rinse with gradually cooler water, the last water being cold.

Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment easily heal eczema and similar skin eruptions. Sold by all druggists. For sample letter, write to Dept. 27-S, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

enage rooms in the building at 40 Middlesex street and open an evening school for instruction in bookkeeping, stenography and typewriting, starting in September, 1913, with a large attendance.

Mr. Wood then realized the great opportunity which this field offered and accordingly in January 8, 1914, one year ago today, he established Wood's Business College. This met with even greater success and the school grew so rapidly in attendance that its founder was compelled to secure larger quarters on the fifth floor of the same building. In September, 1914, Mr. Wood resigned from a responsible position in a local bank to give his entire time to the college.

Such is the history of one of Lowell's most prominent educational institutions and the continued brilliant success of the college is certain.

Wood's Business College is most up-to-date in every particular, possessing approved conveniences for efficiency in teaching the commercial branches. In fact, efficiency is the keynote of the school's policy and is reflected in the progress of the students which has in every case been commendably rapid. Many of Mr. Wood's former students are now holding responsible positions in the business field.

The office of the school is a model business office. It is furnished in mahogany, while the walls, curtains and rugs are a rich green, producing an effect most pleasing. The main class room has individual desks and chairs for about 40 students and there is also a recitation room with lecture room chairs to accommodate about 30. The typewriting room contains about a dozen machines of various standard makes. One notable feature of the rooms is the abundance of light provided by the large windows, the large class room alone having nine of these.

In the evening the class rooms are filled by electric lamps which give a soft, though brilliant light. The chief assistant to Mr. Wood is Miss Anna A. Conley, who has had a wide experience in business methods as well as in commercial instruction. She specializes in bookkeeping. In which she is an expert. Miss Lillian Triggs and Miss Agnes Allen are both competent teachers in their respective branches. Capable instruction in all the commercial branches is afforded at Wood's Business College. The subjects include shorthand, Isaac Pitman and Gregg systems, typewriting, bookkeeping, business English, English composition and civil service.

There can be no doubt that Mr. Wood will enjoy well deserved success in his institution, and the present Wood's Business College is a commercial school of which Lowell may well be proud.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

Tom Linton and his Jungle Girls, who will appear in front line position at the B. F. Keith Theatre this week, will provide the liveliest sort of entertainment. Their particular little musical sketch is "The Up-to-Date Missionary," in which Mr. Linton will appear as the individual who was sent into the heart of Africa, and who there met a lot of cannibals who didn't wish to be converted. Instead they prepared to end the life of the missionary, who was saved only by falling in love with the queen of the cannibals. There are many chances for good comedy afforded by the piece, and the musical numbers are specially selected because of their catchiness. The boys of action, pretty strong women appearing in the production will add materially to the snap and pizzazz of the piece. Assisting Mr. Linton in the leading role will be Miss Grace Lindquist, who will be the jungle queen; George Townsend and Frank Austin.

Albert Perry & Co. will offer the satirical comedy "Helen and Return," which has a very positive set of complications to it, and which will be well played. Mr. Perry has the role of the who tries to win a woman named Helen, who starts for Reno, Nevada, there to have the bonds cut. How he changes his mind, and decides to stick to his young wife is told in the little piece. There is much delicious comedy, and the situations are numerous. It is, in fact, a fine type of real comedy. As-

WHAT HORTENSE TOLD ME

Hortense says my hair is too oily and has been using the following lotion which she prepared herself, with splendid results:

Borate of soda, ½ oz.; Bicarbonate of soda, ½ oz.; Eau de Cologne, 2 oz.; Alcohol, 3 oz.; Tincture of cochineal, 1 dram; water, 12 ozs.

My invaluable maid has also mixed for me a fine curling fluid which I enjoy very much. It is made of a tablespoonful of bruised quince seed to a pint of hot water. The water is poured over the seeds and the whole allowed to stand for several hours. The resultant mudlage may then be thinned with a few drops of essence of violet. The hair is moistened with the fluid before curling.

A splendid cleansing and softening liquid for the hands is recommended by Hortense. Use one tumbler of Indian meal, fifteen teaspoons of grated toilet soap, two teaspoons of orris root; two teaspoons of borax; one teaspoon of sachet powder. Mix well and sprinkle on the hands.

Another good lotion which she swears by is to put into a bottle two ounces of glycerine; two ounces of water; four tablespoons of lemon juice and a few drops of carbolic acid. Shake well. After washing and drying the hands, rub a little of the mixture into them.

To bleach the hands raw tomato rubbed over them will whiten them and this treatment is perfectly harmless. It can also be used on the face and it removes fruit or vegetable marks from the hands. Let it remain on a few minutes, then rinse off in hot water.

Hortense discovered a little brown spot on my neck made from a too tight collar and immediately began to work. "First of all," she said, "with warm water, an agreeable soap and a rough washcloth, cleanse your neck. Rinse it with clear warm water and after drying it rub into the skin the cold cream for which the recipe is here given:

Rosewater, four ounces; almond oil, four ounces; spermaceti, one ounce; white wax, one ounce. Add the rosewater slowly, so that it will mix well. When the skin is thoroughly cleansed, remove the remainder with a soft piece of muslin and rub slices of freshly cut cucumber over the neck. An occasional application of diluted peroxide also helps to bleach the skin.

Hortense has a splendid set of directions for reducing the hips by exercise which she has very kindly allowed me to pass along to you. Stand erect, she says, with the arms straight out from the sides on a line with the shoulders. Now bend the body from the waist to the right as far as possible, keeping the arms perfectly rigid; try to make the arms touch the hips without lowering its position.

Then bend slowly back to the left side the same as the right. It will take a lot of practice before you can touch the hips, but each day you can bend a little further to the side and eventually be able to at last very nearly touch the hip.

Then stand on an ottoman on the left foot, let the right swing entirely clear of it. Now swing the right leg from the hip back and forth, gradually increasing the distance until it is as high as it can possibly be. Swing each leg the same way, twenty or thirty times night and morning, keeping the knee perfectly straight.

Hortense knows of a simple home remedy which she says she is sure will reduce the bust and make it firm.

Run a piece of ice over the breasts for three minutes daily. It is slow work reducing the bosom, but if you will keep it bandaged snugly in thin rubber by day as well as by night, inside of a few weeks you will be possessed of a small bust.

This bandage should be taken off for a few moments at bedtime and upon arising in the morning, and the flesh rubbed over with alcohol. Unless you do this you will be apt to take cold.

Hortense has just made me some new hair bags with the most comforting mixture I ever used. Here is the recipe she uses: Four pounds of fine oatmeal, two quarts of clean bran; one and one-half pounds of powdered orris root, one and one-half pounds of almond meal, one pound of white castile soap, powdered and dried; three ounces of primrose sachet.

Instead of placing in cheesecloth bags, which is a wasteful way of using the delightful meal, sprinkle a little of the mixture on the moistened wash cloth.

This was a favorite bath with the ancients, says Hortense, for the emaciated. Mix one tablespoon of lavender water with several times the amount of pure olive oil. Apply a little at a time and rub it well into the body with the entire hand, using a rotary motion. Keep the body warm while taking the treatment.

attention, as well as the very best photographs are causing more and more discriminating motion picture lovers to become regular patrons at the Academy of Music. The main feature today, Tuesday and Wednesday is a Paramount in four reels. "The Aftermath," telling a splendid heart interest story, and featuring Owen Moore. The Warner feature today and Tuesday, produced in two parts, is "Lost in London," and featuring Ivy Close, who, in a contest recently held, was pronounced the most beautiful woman in all England. These two big photographs are well worth seeing, and in addition to them will be shown three single reel pictures. Tomorrow night will be another night and this will furnish additional amusement for the patrons.

Elizabeth Otto is bound to make many friends. Miss Otto entertains at the piano, just as George Grossmith, Sr., was wont to entertain in the older days, and much after the style which Richard Willmott Wakfield famous. Miss Otto just goes to her piano and chatters away, the meanwhile she flits from one kind of music to another, only occasionally straying and just found to possess so keen a sense of real humor as does Miss Otto. She is sure of a warm reception here.

George Stone, who was formerly a member of the Boston Opera House orchestra, and who but a short time ago was one of the big hits of the bill at the Keith theatre in Boston, will start his uncommonly good vaudeville act this week. Mr. Stone is a thorough musician, and who has selected the xylophone for his vaudeville act.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE That local lady theatregoers know a good thing when they see it, and that they are equally fast in grasping it is evidenced by the splendid manner in which they have taken up the "bargain performance" which is to be given tonight at the Merrimack Square theatre. It is sure there is little to marvel at that a lady should jump at the chance of getting her choice of any seat to-night for the one price—25 cents—but some of the bargain hunters have failed to work. Not this time, however. Seats for other performances are also selling rapidly and they should, too, for "Eloping a Husband" which is to be given all this week, is one of the best plays which the company have yet appeared in. "The play is a comedy in four acts. One of the best moving plays which has been brought to the stage by the different members of the company. Seats are now on sale.

"THE OWL THEATRE Dorothy Donnelly, star and creator of "Madame X," who has appeared on the stage in Lowell's biggest drama theatre, will be seen in Henri Bernstein's "The Thief," in motion pictures, at the Owl theatre today and tomorrow. This extraordinary announcement has been received with favor, and people have made many inquiries as to the time of performance, and also the number of shows. It will be shown only at about 3 and 5 o'clock. No half-hearted attempts to show good stuff here, but the real article is always exhibited. Rarely, if ever, has a cast of the uniform standing of that assembled by the producers of "The Thief" been brought together. This portrayal of feminine psychology and elating nature called for no ordinary actors, in order to adequately portray the complicated conflict of emotions evolved. So Miss Donnelly was secured, and to "play up" to her wonderful acting, an actor with a strong, vigorous character has been assigned the important male role. Miss Donnelly is probably the only actress in America capable of giving a really convincing portrayal of this remarkable character. Among the other five reels are "Wild West Love," a droll Keystone comedy, and "The Scrub," a delightful college play. A 10-reel show.

FIVE MUSICAL DOYLES

LOWELL ORCHESTRA IN THE WEST WITH THE MOOSE CARNIVAL CO. —ENTER VAUDEVILLE

Doyle's orchestra, composed of Lowell boys and one of the classiest groups of music dispensers that ever left this city on a concert tour will shortly enter vaudeville under the management of Mr. Bernard Maguire, who is also a well known Lowell boy. Their act is now being written by one of the leading writers of the country and will be decidedly musical. They will be known on the stage as "The Five Musical Doyles."

It will be remembered that this orchestra which had been meeting with phenomenal success playing dance music in and around this city, left about three months ago on a tour of the country with the Moose Carnival Co. and from the start it made a hit in every city and town in which it appeared. Starting out in Pennsylvania, the company won a big way through nearly every city and town of importance in the Middle Atlantic states and is now in the west. Everywhere Doyle's orchestra has the same attraction offered by the management of the company, and besides making good money it achieved a reputation unequalled by many traveling orchestras.

Stephen R. Doyle, the leader of the orchestra, is the son of Stephen H. Doyle, the prominent literary square barber, and has made a name for himself as a musician while a student at the local high school as a member of Miner's orchestra. He played with this orchestra about a year when he formed an orchestra of his own. While playing in Lowell he had the reputation of being one of the best cornetists in the state.

THE RABBIT'S FOOT

BY GWEN SEARS

HATS AND COLDS

"I often wonder how I manage to catch so many colds," complained Mrs. Up-to-date Dresser. "I am always careful to wear my rubbers on these stormy days, and yet I am always sniffing and blowing. I can't understand it."

"Maybe your feet are properly dressed but your head is not always steel for," replied Mrs. Common Sense. "For instance, I saw you yesterday with your fur hat on, and today you are wearing a mere covering of gold lace and wire. Surely it is colder today than yesterday."

And Mrs. Common Sense was right. So many of us are careful about our throats being protected, and our feet, but we carelessly change our hats without a thought. No two hats are very often alike in weight. A velvet hat that fits the head closely is warmer than a flaring brimmed one of silk. A fur hat is warmer than lace, and so it goes. Today we took our head into a fur toque, and spend most of the time in the hot stores, and tomorrow we go to the bridge party wearing the lace

QUAIL DISEASE APPEARS AGAIN WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 18.—The third known outbreak of quail disease has been discovered by the bureau of animal industry in quail sent for examination from the National Zoological park. These birds were received a few days ago from two of the principal importers in widely separated parts of the country. Most of the quail now on the market are imported from Mexico and are entered at the port of Brownsville, Texas. Under these circumstances all outstanding permits have been cancelled and further importations suspended for this season.

REV. H. E. BENTON IS INSTALLED

Made Pastor of Grace
Universalist Church
Yesterday

Laymen Present —
Other Church News

Rev. Herbert Elmon Benton was formally installed as pastor of Grace Universalist church, yesterday. Rev. P. A. Bisbee, D. D., editor of the Universalist Leader, preached the morning sermon, his subject being "The Ways of God in the World of Man." Rev. Clarence R. Skinner, the former pastor, presided at the exercises in the evening. Rev. Charles T. Billings of the Unitarian church, made the prayer.

Rev. C. Guy Robbins of Lawrence gave the address to the people. Speaking of the relations between a church and its minister, he said:

"First of all, you have entered into a business relation with him. He has agreed to serve you, and you, on your part, have agreed to compensate him for that service, to the extent of paying him a salary. As the month comes around, let the check be ready to put in his hand, that he may keep his own credit good and be a credit to you. It will tend to his peace of mind, and better service on his part. If you will relieve him of any uncertainty as to when he will receive his check. Moreover, do not let the financial burden of the church rest entirely upon him."

"Second, you have entered into relationship with him as your preacher. He is to preach to you the word of life, which is the gospel of Jesus Christ. He will interpret that gospel to you, and show you how to order your life in your relations one with another and in your relations with God. He will come each Sunday, well prepared for giving you his message. He will stand here not simply as a man, but as an instrument of God. He cannot give you the message, unless you fulfill your part. It is for you to hear and hear his message. Let him catch the inspiration that will come from the knowledge that you are here, and interested in the message that he has for you."

"Again, you have entered into relations with him as your pastor. He will visit you in your homes, and enter into social relations with you. Treat him as a man among men. Do not regard him as a monument, of no practical value. Give him your fellowship, your sympathy and your confidence."

"Again: In being your pastor, Mr. Benton's services will not be limited to the church. He will have a work to do outside the limits of this parish. As a citizen of this municipality, there will be duties for him to perform. Do not limit him in those duties. Think of him as the representative of Grace church and in every way possible, help him work; and together, go forward to larger and better fields."

Rev. G. W. Penniman of Peabody, was delayed by a slight accident to his train, and his address to the minister was supplemented at this point by a brief word from the presiding officer, Mr. Skinner, who said he was not going to give Mr. Benton advice because he does not need it.

Rev. G. E. Leighton, the new state superintendent of Universalist churches, gave the welcome to the state. Rev. Mr. Penniman having arrived, gave his address to the minister at this point. He spoke of his first parish, where Mr. Benton was a boy in the Sunday school, and on the occasion of Mr. Benton's first installation, when he also gave the charge to the minister.

Rev. A. C. Ferrin, pastor of High Street Congregational church, representing the Federation of Churches, welcomed Mr. Benton to the city. Dr. G. Forrest Martin, vice chairman of the board of assessors, extended the welcome to the church and the new pastor, Rev. Caleb E. Fisher, D. D., brought greetings from the First Universalist church. The service was closed with the benediction by the new pastor.

First Baptist Church

In banking and commercial circles a wise man would be considered one who had accumulated a fortune; in politics, one who had attained important public office; in military affairs, one who had become a great military general; and among many young people one would be thought wise who had found time to have the greatest amount of fun by day and the most amusement by night. But a higher and better definition is found, declared Rev. A. C. Archibald, at the First Baptist church yesterday morning, in the book of Proverbs, 11th chapter, 30th verse, where we are told, "He that winneth souls is wise." Then the preacher proceeded earnestly to show that soul winning is the greatest work of Christians because it is the command of Christ; it was his own work and example; it is the only business in which can be claimed the fullness of the blessing of the Holy Spirit; it is the most beneficial work in the world and gives the largest returns; it is a work anyone can do. Pastor Archibald mentioned many of the church organizations by name, saying that everyone should be linked to the idea of winning and saving souls. The fame of men in this world does not last long, he said, but we are told that they who be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament and they that win souls shall shine forever and ever.

First Congregational Church

A meeting preliminary to the Sunday evening services which are to be conducted by Rev. W. A. Bartlett, D. D., was held at the First Congregational church Sunday evening. The pastor, Rev. E. H. Newcomb, conducted the service and called attention to the three "I Am's" of St. Paul in Romans, 1: "I am a debtor," "I am ready," and "I am not ashamed." The chorus choir, under Alexander Leggett, sang very acceptably. Dr. Bartlett appealed to Christian people to give up offering excuses for not being true to the master.

FRANKLIN NIGHT

Lowell Typos Observed
American Printer

The 209th anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin, father of printing in this country, was observed in a fitting manner by the members of the Lowell Typographical union Saturday evening, the affair taking the form of a "Franklin Night." The celebration was held in the union's quarters, Post 120 hall, Merrimack street, and was largely attended. The program consisted of a brief business meeting, supper, entertainment and an address on the life of Benjamin Franklin by the president of the organization, John V. Donoghue.

At the opening of the evening the following entertainment program was carried out much to the enjoyment of the large gathering:

Vocal solos by Cleveland K. Nobles; songs, "She's the Lass" and "Sandy McNabb" by James E. Donnelly; song, "Astoria," Francis R. Connor, and solos, "A Perfect Day," "Rosary," and "The Little Gray House in the West," by Andrew McCarthy. The musical

WINGO AND DOOIN WILL BE CATCHERS
FOR CINCINNATI REDS THIS SEASON

CINCINNATI, Jan. 16.—Manager Herzog believes that the acquisition of Red Dooin, formerly manager of the Phillies, gives him the best catching staff in the league. He had already signed Ivy Wingo, formerly with the Cardinals, and regarded as one of the real stars of the game. It is possible that Herzog will dispose of Wingo now that he has Dooin, as there are weak spots on the Cincinnati team that need bolstering up. It is doubtful if he can trade Dooin, as his salary is $6000 a year, one of the largest salaries paid to a catcher. Wingo also draws a good stipend, as he had jumped to the Buffalo Federal league team and was induced to jump back only by a substantial increase in pay.

sign influence they exerted in the troublous and stormy days of this republic. Let us be worthy of their steel and be true to the ideals of that democracy, which Carlyle said to be the result of printing? If we but hold fast to that which is good then God's church, God's school, God's method of gently blinding men into commonwealths as brothers, shall endure until time shall be no more."

CATHOLIC NEWS

Notes of the Services at
Yesterday Morning

Members of the Holy Family sodality of St. Patrick's church attended the 7 o'clock mass yesterday morning and received communion in a body. The celebrant of the mass was Rt. Rev. Monsignor William O'Brien, P. R., who was assisted in distributing communion by Rev. Joseph A. Curtin.

The parish mass was celebrated by Rev. Timothy P. Callahan, while the sermon on the gospel of the day was delivered by Rev. Joseph A. Curtin.

The members of the C. Y. M. L. have made arrangements for a Ladies' night to be held at their well appointed quarters in the parochial school building tomorrow evening and the affair promises to be one of the most successful of the season. An elaborate entertainment program has been arranged for the occasion and a feature of the evening will be dancing with music furnished by Miner's orchestra. The committee in charge has spared nothing to make the event one of the best of its kind in the history of the organization and it is being predicted that a record crowd will be in attendance. The committee is composed of the following: Harriet Murray, chairman, Patrick Harrington, Patrick Coody and John McDermott.

St. Peter's
The celebrant of the parish mass at St. Peter's church yesterday was Rev. P. J. Crayton, the sermon being delivered by Rev. W. George Mullin.

The members of the Children's sodality received communion in a body at the 8.30 o'clock mass, which was celebrated by Rev. Daniel J. Heffernan. Next Sunday the members of the Children of Mary sodality will receive their monthly communion. The regular devotions to St. Rita will be held Tuesday evening and on Wednesday evening the Married Women's sodality will hold a meeting.

St. Michael's
Rev. John J. Shaw, pastor, was the celebrant of the parish mass at St. Michael's church yesterday morning, while the sermon on the gospel of the day was delivered by Rev. Francis J. Mullin. In the afternoon the members of the Children of Mary sodality held an interesting meeting, during which considerable business was transacted.

Sacred Heart
At the 8.30 o'clock mass at the Sacred Heart church yesterday morning the members of the Holy Angels' sodality received communion in a body, the celebrant of the mass being Very Rev. T. Wade Smith, O. M. I. In the afternoon the members of the sodality assembled in the church and received valuable instructions from their spiritual director, Rev. T. Franklin Wood, O. M. I.

The parish mass was celebrated by Rev. John P. Flynn, O. M. I. The sermon, which was on the gospel of the day, was delivered by Rev. Bernard Fletcher, O. M. I.

St. Columba's
The 9.15 o'clock mass at St. Columba's church yesterday morning was celebrated by Rev. Thomas F. Buckley, who also made the announcements. The parish mass was celebrated by the pastor, Rev. John A. Degan. The members of the Tabernacle sodality will meet this evening to elect officers.

The committee in charge of the annual parish reunion, which will be held at Associate hall on Feb. 9, held an interesting meeting and decided that the affair take the form of a Farmers' ball. The committee will meet again Wednesday evening at the parish hall and all members are requested to be present.

St. Margaret's
Rev. H. C. Beardon celebrated high mass and delivered the sermon at St. Margaret's church yesterday. A committee has recently been appointed to look after arrangements for the annual Junior party to be held at Lincoln hall on the evening of Feb. 5, and arrangements are progressing rapidly. The affair will be held particularly for the young folks and a special program will be prepared for the occasion.

THE SWEDISH LUTHERANS

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CHURCH HELD YESTERDAY—OFFICERS CHOSEN

The members of the Swedish Lutheran church held their annual meeting yesterday and transacted considerable business. The feature of the meeting being the election of officers. The assembly was presided over by Rev. L. Hakenson of Quincy and the election of officers resulted as follows:

Clerk, Edward Wikstrom; deacons for three years, Carl V. Nelson and Olof Lindquist; trustees for three years, N. J. Anderson and John Adolf Nelson; Sunday school superintendent, Frank E. Lindquist; organist and choir director, William C. Heller; delegate to New England conference, Frank E. Lindquist, and alternate, John Alfred Nelson; financial secretary, N. J. Anderson; treasurer, Oscar Wikstrom; collectors, H. E. Stromquist, Tams Glinson, Erno Nystrom, Albert Fahn, Mansfred Phil and Helmer Nyberg.

Reports of committees were heard and the meeting adjourned until Feb. 10. It was announced that the pulpit at the church next Sunday will be occupied by Dr. Gustaf Andren, president of Augustana college and theological school of Rock Island, Ill., who is coming east to attend a meeting of the committee making arrangements for the celebration of the 40th anniversary of the reformation.

WHAT THE FRENCH MAID SAID

CORRECT TABLE LINEN

"Father is going to have four men to a real dinner next week," excitedly burst out Marjorie to Marie who was in the dining room of Marjorie's aunt's house looking over some table doilies for possible holes or stains. "Are you to get it up?" asked Marie.

"Yes," answered Marjorie, "and I have it all planned out so far as the eating part is concerned, but I am not sure on how to dress the table. Will you tell me? Father is very particular on this occasion to have everything nice. I suppose I shall have to buy some new linen too."

"A fine damask tablecloth is always in order for dinner," began Marie, "and from the simplest—which, however, you should buy in the desired length with a woven border design."

"There is a wide range in values up to the elaborate dinner cloth, with a centre of heavy lace, a wide band of real linen falling well over the edge of the table and a deep edge of real lace bordering this."

"Dinner napkins, which are always very large, may be either with or without a monogram in the centre of one corner."

"Tell me about luncheon linen too while you are on the subject, won't you, Marie?" interrupted Marjorie.

"Providing the table itself is made of fine wood and kept in faultless condition," went on Marie. "It is most beautiful for breakfast and luncheon when left uncovered except for the doilies for plates and glasses at each place, and for the necessary centerpiece to match or harmonize."

"These may be of linen with drawn-work or embroidery, or of old fashioned crocheted lace or of fine lace and embroidery, according to the other appointments of the table."

"No doilies are more generally satisfactory than those of good linen embroidered with a neat design and having a scalloped edge."

"I like, myself, hemstitched sets for breakfast and luncheon made of plain coarse linen, that is 'coarse' in the sense of loosely woven, not meaning to imply poor quality."

"You are a Jewell," said Marjorie gratefully. "I shall be quite a perfect housekeeper soon with your help."

WHAT THE COOK SAYS

Cook is a regular walking encyclopedia on everything to do with house-keeping. Note the following: To test tea, burn a small quantity on a metal plate. With good tea the amount of ash remaining is small, then increasing in quantity as the quality of the sample tested deteriorates.

"If the top of the kerosene lamp is too dry, it then crush it under a rolling pin till perfectly free from lumps, and sift into a tablespoonful of cornstarch. Keep a large salt shaker in the hot closet over the stove where it will be dry to have handy to salt meat, and other things cooking on the stove."

Cook tells me that a pair of long wooden knitting needles are most excellent for draining doughnuts. As the doughnuts are fried slip them on a needle, and when it is full set it on the top of a pan to cool. The doughnuts do not crush and the lard drains off.

After cleaning brass or copper with salt and vinegar she says to rub it with olive oil and the metal will not tarnish for a long time.

If the top of the kerosene lamp becomes loosened, it may often be effectively tightened by applying a little melted alum.

To clean lamp glasses, Cook says, hold them over a pot of boiling water until well steamed, then polish with a dry duster. It is far less trouble than washing and the glasses very rarely break.

When two glass tumblers stick together put cold water in the inner one and set them into warm water; they will separate at once.

To clean windows satisfactorily a little turpentine dissolved in warm water is the best thing to use.

A great many women, Cook thinks, when preparing a meal for dinner which takes a long time to cook, never stop to consider that if they would cook enough at one time for two dinners, they would make a very material saving in their gas bills. The meat could be served in different form the second day, but the long period of cooking would not have to be repeated.

When frying pork chops, make a dash in the chop before frying; this enables the chop to lie flat to the pan.

luxe smock. At the lower edge, however, it was cut to form a skirt at the front and one at the back, and it was banded with the dark fur. Beneath it was a slip or lining with sleeves of the same silk, and with skirt of the same and in fact both sleeves and skirt were quite plain. But at the neck was posed an exceedingly becoming flaring collar of the fur, and around the neck and armhole edges was a little band of white chiffon embroidered in green. Over the hips was draped a sash which, by virtue of confining the fullness of the over-garment, gave to it the long-waisted effect that is essential to the carrying out of the Mogen Age idea. A second gown, on the same general lines, was made of green velvet with long plain basque like bodice and full gathered skirt, but the skirt was quite unusual in the finish of bound scallops at the lower edge, and the basque was richly embroidered in gold and green threads below the waist-line. Although the upper part and sleeves were plain save for bands of fur upon the sleeves and for the flaring collar of fur that finished the half-round neck, the front and back of the bodice was without fullness, but at the sides there was a little fullness, and these sides were cleverly extended to form a girde that terminated with a single long sash end falling at the left of the front.

The scalloped edge is designed to be padded and button-holed; the flowers, leaves and circles can be worked either in solid embroidery or as eyelets, or in a combination of solid work and eyelets. The stems are to be outlined.

To pad the scallops rapidly and effectively, work chain stitch between the lines, heavier at the center, lighter at the points; or cut a skein of thread, apply two or more strands over the center of the stamped pattern, keeping within the lines; then, here and there in couching style, gathering the threads closely together at each point of the scallops, then proceed to button-hole closely over the foundation. When making solid embroidery, first pad the stamped figures by darning backward and forward, lengthwise, and then cover closely with over and over stitches worked in the opposite direction from the darning.

In a general way, it may be said that for all afternoon and morning occasions, the coat suit is the prevailing costume, although long coats and coats of fur are much worn over gowns of velvet and of heavy silk, of broadcloth, and of various other materials. Whether or not the military influence that is in the air, has had its effect, the tailored suit is a comparatively simple creation this season. The over-elaborate, dressy costume that has been put forth under such name during the past few years, is not conspicuous. While a great deal of fur trimming is used and while braid of every kind is in evidence, there is a certain air of simplicity, and that simplicity always means a handsome and distinctive result.

At a first glance, the thought is that everything hares, that from being straight and narrow, we have suddenly grown voluminous, for in one way or another, in the coat, in the tunic or in the skirt breadth, width and ripple effect is to be found. But while this is true, a second glance assures recognition of the fact that in many instances women are clinging to straight lines, for they are loathe to give up all the slenderness which it has taken years to achieve. A very handsome coat suit seen during an afternoon session was for example, made of black broadcloth with narrow skirt and oddly shaped tunic, and the tunic was laid in many plaits. Consequently, when the wearer walked, there was much flare and breadth, but when she stood, there were straight lines preserved. The coat extended only a little below the waist-line, but hung in straight lines and was trimmed with collar and cuffs of blue fox, while the accompanying hat was a real "tricorn" with crown of silver broadcloth velvet with up-turned brim of plain velvet banded with fur of the same sort. An exceedingly handsome suit was made of combined broadcloth and baby lamb velvet in a wonderful shade of mole, the skirt or as much of the skirt as could be seen was made of the fur velvet with long flaring tunic of the cloth and the coat again was a short one of velvet to match the skirt, with sleeves of cloth, for this is a season of contrasting sleeves, and these appear in the coat suits of more elaborate sort as well as in the gowns. Beaver is more conspicuous than it has been in many years. A very elegant costume of green velvet de laine was made with circular skirt finished with a wide band of beaver for a coat that hung in straight lines to below the hips where it was finished with a full skirt forming a deep band at each side and this skirt was edged with a narrow band of the beaver, the same fur being used for the choker collar and wide cuffs. Chokers are unquestionably a feature, and that they are becoming is true, but whether comfortable or not under mild weather conditions, must be left for each wearer to decide for herself. A costume that gives evidence of the prevailing military effect and at the same time is far from being severe, was made of velvet in a really wonderful shade of blue with trimming of opossum bands, and with real Bradenburs, closing the simple coat, while above the fur tunic was richly embroidered in subdued colors. The skirt in this instance was narrow and plain, the tunic full and much flared, but open at the sides in a rather unusual way, and the fur was approximately four inches in width and the embroidery above perhaps a little more. The coat was the almost inevitable one for suits of the kind, simple, plain, but taking straight lines under the arms, with a band of fur finishing it at just about the hip line, and the choker and the bands on the sleeves were also of fur. Fur coats always are sumptuous and always can be trusted to appear at the horse show, let that occasion come when it may. An exquisite one that is fairly typical of prevailing styles was made of Persian lamb with trimming of sable, the body portion being just loose enough for comfort with moderately wide sleeves, but below the waist it spread, and flared to reveal a lining of rich white satin brocade. One of sable skins made a choker collar, and there were two bands of equal width on each sleeve, with a brush finishing each, and at the low waist-line was arranged entire skins that formed a belt. Beneath the coat was to be seen a skirt of black velvet, and there was a tiny little tunic of soft pliable fur with trimming of rich white satin brocade. The hat was again a tiny little close-fitting turban, with two little feathers that drooped coquettishly at the back of the hat, in place of standing upright.

Beneath the fur coats were worn a great many dresses in what is known as the Mogen Age style, and velvet is unquestionably a favorite for such, although velvet is often combined with other materials. A beautiful gown seen during an evening session, was of the favorite fall silk in a rich shade of green, with trimming of skunk, and the important feature unquestionably was an overdress or tunic in the real Mogen Age style, for it was cut with round neck and without sleeves, and was much after the manner of the primi-

THE RIVER ROAD

No truth has been emphasized more frequently of late by all who dwell on possible municipal improvements than that the arteries of traffic and travel leading into our city and out of it in every direction should be such as to create a good impression on the mind of the tourist, and if this be true of Rogers street, Gorham street and other streets, it is doubly true of the river road from Lawrence. Leading out of the down river city a new and beautiful road skirts the river through a stretch of unrivalled scenery until Indian Orchard is reached. Here it connects with a very poor stretch of road or street which in the first street end, runs along a steep hill and makes a most unpromising entrance to the city after describing various dangerous curves.

In other words, the state has constructed a fine roadway to within a stones throw of Lowell and left one unlovely and dangerous link over which our constantly increasing traffic must enter or depart. Lowell suffers in consequence, not only by comparison with the Lawrence approach but even more directly, owing to the dangerous condition of the first street entrance. Before the construction of the new state road the possible reconstruction of First street had been agitated, but experts declared that nothing could be done to make it entirely satisfactory. The logical thing for the city to do, therefore, is to agitate the construction of a new link to connect the city with the recently completed road which ends at Indian Orchard.

Senator Marchand has brought the matter to a head by introducing a bill in the present session of the legislature making provisions for such a new link along the river bank. This bill should be supported by all our legislators for the suggested improvement is a benefit that would reach on the city and all its people. With the possibility of annexation and with the certainty of future development the riverside from here to the Dracut line is a splendid site for a riverside park, and the construction of a new road would be followed by property improvement that would justify any expenditure that may be made.

SOME GOOD SUGGESTIONS

If the municipal council should still for the coming year and refuse to do anything of a constructive nature, the stagnation cannot be attributed to a lack of good advice or remedial suggestion. Rarely have so many excellent reforms of a constructive and progressive nature been agitated, not only by the board of trade and by the press but even more directly by the chief executive. Many of the recommendations made by Mayor Murphy in connection with his recent statement of municipal finance are timely and the entire program that he outlined shows that he is awake to the needs of the city and recognizes the danger of municipal inactivity. Many of the suggestions he has given out have already been agitated by The Sun, and we may, therefore, consistently hope that they will not remain in theory but will be accepted by the council and acted on promptly, provided, however, they be carried out in a manner that will show satisfactory results for every dollar expended. The problem of street lighting, to which the mayor devoted some space, certainly calls for improvement. A better arrangement for the business district would have a direct effect in making the city more attractive and making business better for our merchants, and a proportionate improvement in the residential district would remove certain dangers that are only too obvious to those who remember the many holdups of the past year. The Sun would gladly welcome a plan for the better lighting of the principal business streets of our city, as it has advocated such a plan in the past.

The recommendations for the improvement of the arteries of traffic to and from the city, for the smooth paving of Rogers street and other street repairs and reconstruction have also been advocated by this paper. They are in keeping with the spirit of the plans formulated and sent to the council by the board of trade and their adoption would be a decided public benefit. Another plan that would be generally approved, if the expense would not be too great, is the suggested seizing of the land opposite city hall and the extension of Dummer street in line with the ideals of the "city beautiful."

There can be no two views of the excellence of the suggestion for the erection of a contagious hospital. This is a matter on which the last year's council bungled and retrograded shamefully and it is high time that the approach be wiped out. By its procrastination and disregard for the law Lowell in this matter has attracted a most unenviable notoriety, and there is every incentive for our authorities to select some good site and build a contagious hospital in accordance with the state law.

The recommendation that two permanent street repair gangs be organized and kept at this specific branch of the city's activity is one that The Sun has preached until the subject is threadbare. With such a gang, composed of competent and industrious men the city would be safer for pedestrians and drivers of all manner of vehicles, our streets would look better and wear longer, money would be saved and there would be fewer lawsuits. Here is something that ought to be acted on without delay.

The recommendation that the sewer problems of Wigginsville and South Lowell be attended to outlines a decided requirement, but the project would be a very expensive one. Were it to be adopted that other clause which states that less money be appropriated for sewers generally would be nullified. Yet, many prominent and well-spirited citizens believe that the city is wisely in attending to the sewer problems of all its sections as attention is generally followed by

TO AID B. AND M.

The one clause of Governor Walsh's inaugural which was universally commended was that which contained his suggestion that instead of opposing the reconstruction of the Boston and Maine railroad by passing disruptive legislation, the state should do everything possible to help its reorganization by aiding those who are striving to repair the wounds made by past mistakes and persistent public hounding. The time has come when nothing is to be gained by further investigations or prohibitive laws, and when a great deal may be done by active and practical attention on the part of the legislature and friendly co-operation on the part of the public.

The governor has followed up his inaugural suggestion by standing sponsor for a bill which he will present to the legislature in a few days, embodying his ideas of constructive legislative aid. Though the details have not yet been made public, the bill is said to be acceptable to the state officials, the trustees of the railroad and the federal department of justice. If so, it ought to be supported by the public which needs no further lesson on the effect of legislative activity on contrary lines, as demonstrated strikingly in the case of the New Haven railroad.

In explaining his bill, Governor Walsh said that what is most essential is that the trustees of the railroad be given authority to proceed with the reorganization of the property without having the shadow of an over-vigilant legislature forever before them. There can be no great danger in this as the railroad has seen the results of unwise management and evasion of law too strikingly demonstrated to be ignored. All question of a receivership has apparently been abandoned and the keynote of the whole situation as seen by the trustees and as seen by the governor is optimism.

It is not often that the number of dead and injured, following a great natural catastrophe, mounts higher with each report, but this seems to be the case in accounts of the Italian earthquake. Were the misery and destruction in one city, as at many times in the past, it could be relieved the more easily, but in this instance scores of cities and towns scattered over a wide area have been almost entirely ruined with an amazing loss of life. The earthquake will go down in history as one of the most disastrous up to this time. Its direct effect will, in all probability, put all thoughts of participating in the war out of the minds of the Italian public.

STUDY AND EXERCISE

Study does not hurt a child unless the study time is taken from time that should be spent in out-of-door exercise. Overstudy and lack of exercise make thin, bloodless children. It is a combination that provokes St. Vitus' dance. If your child is thin and pale, listless, inattentive, has a flickle appetite and is unable to stand still or sit still, you must remember that health is even more important than education.

See to it at once that the patient does not overstudy, gets at least two hours out-of-door exercise every day, sleeps ten hours out of every twenty-four and takes a non-alcoholic tonic like Dr. Williams' Pink Pills until the color returns to cheeks and lips and the appetite becomes normal. For growing children who become pale and thin Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are not only safe but in the great majority of cases they are the very best tonic that can be taken. They build up the blood and strengthen the nerves and assist nature in keeping pace with rapid growth.

The Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., will send you two books on the blood and nerves if you mention this paper. If your child is very young ask for the booklet "The Care of the Baby." Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

FOR FIRE PROTECTION

The plan submitted by the Locks and Canals corporation to the municipal council whereby the canal system and the municipal water system might be so combined that the danger of conflagrations in the mills would be lessened is worthy of deep consideration, and if found feasible and desirable, of adoption. Remembering the protests that followed the alleged merging of the two systems in the city mains in the past, the Lowell public will not approve of the present scheme until it is cleared of the slightest suspicion of danger, but it is certain that the combination could be effected with sufficient safeguards to health, there is no good reason why the request of the Locks and Canals company should be refused.

As submitted by Engineer Safford of the Locks and Canals the proposed plan is for the adoption of such a system of valves as would entirely protect the city supply while permitting the city to turn its water freely into the pipes of the private company in emergencies. These valves would let the water run only in one direction and pressure from the other direction would close the valves. To provide for the proper supervision of the valves and connections a system of inspection would be arranged whereby it could be readily ascertained if any canal water was leaking into the city mains. If the system is absolutely reliable and if constant and regular supervision is possible, it might be adopted with advantage. If there is no danger to public health, Lowell should do everything in reason to prevent a great conflagration in the mills which might throw thousands out of employment and put a heavy burden on the community. The plan is one that the public would approve if backed by the support of disinterested experts.

When you catch cold, or begin to cough, the first thing to do is to take Dr. Bell's Pine Tar Syrup. It penetrates the lining of the throat and lungs and fights the germs of the disease, giving quick relief and natural healing. Williams, Lowell, Mass., for a free trial bottle. You will find it in your home or in your business by The Sun. Write for it now.

dent Wilson has temporarily forgotten the war, the shipping bill, the Mexican troubles, the army and navy agitation, and all the other cares of state, and goes around with a broad smile instead of a care-worn expression. The White House baby explains it all. May the boy live long and may his grandpa live long enough to teach him a great many things, including the fundamentals of politics.

SEEN AND HEARD

NO LAND WIRELESS

A Swiss officer who spends most of the year in an Alpine fortress says that wireless telegraphy is not being employed on land. "In peace," he says, "we are constantly receiving wireless messages in the Alps from lines in the Atlantic and at the beginning of the war we received (naturally) many military messages in cipher, both from Germany and France. But they have stopped. The armies have found that wireless messages are too dangerous, and they have been replaced by the telephone at the front."

CONSENSUS HAS THE SLIGHTEST EFFECT IN THE PRODUCTION OF RAIN.

"The Germans, lacking gasoline, are making a substitute for their automobiles out of fat," said a local automobile dealer the other day. "The Germans with their submarines and Zeppelins and what not, certainly put modern progress to good use."

"In this knack of turning all sorts of modern things to good use the Germans are like the inventor who visited the capitalist and said: 'I've got an invention here that will make our fortunes. It is an alarm clock that we can guarantee—that we can positively guarantee—for it will make every single purchaser jump out of bed like a shot.' 'Hump. What's what they all say? Butler's here her ring,' said the skeptical capitalist. 'Smiling proudly,' said the inventor, 'he says: "Bunk!"'—Exchange.

Keep off my feet, there is room on the floor; Now you are out again—count—two, one, two, three—watch it—a slide—step and turn. Isn't it simple and easy to learn?—Springfield Union.

LADY LOOKABOUT

The Boston board of health has taken a very wise move in issuing an order to prevent children from picking over the rubbish in the various dumps of the city. Not only are the children who are thus employed liable to contract and spread disease, but a far greater injury both to them and to the community is done by their example. Students of sociology have followed cases and have learned that many pickers and sneak thieves received their training on dumps. A few cents given a small boy for a bit of lead pipe or a few rags, encourages him to continue his pilfering in new fields, and eventually we find him in police court.

A short time ago, The Sun published an able editorial on this subject, calling the attention of parents to the ways of wrong-doing which offer themselves to children who are allowed to pick over the rubbish on dumps. They deserve it as a matter of courtesy, but even in these cases, it seems that the city should provide the conveyance, and thus relieve the candidate of the expense, and the voter of the temptation. It must place him under to vote as his benefactor dictates.

GETTING OUT THE VOTE

I am glad Governor Walsh has considered the matter of conveying voters to the polls in carriages and automobiles on election day. It is of sufficient importance to dwell upon it in his inaugural address. It has always struck me as lazy on the part of a voter in good health to be seen on election day in the conveyance of a candidate who, in order to secure his vote must take the voter to and from his house. Only a lazy man would allow it. It is too bad the franchise is wasted on electors who must be coaxed, wheeled, bribed, practically, to make them use it.

THE IMMIGRATION QUESTION

In connection with the controversy heard from many sides in regard to the literacy test proposed against immigrants, it may be interesting to note that two leading citizens of the country, one representing wide experience with the practical phases of immigration, and the other, a man whose opinion on matters of citizenship should command the respect of the world, have declared themselves opposed to the bill. These men are Charles Nagel, secretary of commerce and labor, and Charles W. Eliot, president of Harvard University.

QUICKLY YIELDED TO LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.

Bridgeport, N.J.—"I want to thank you a thousand times for the wonderful good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered very much from a female trouble. I had bearing down pains, was irregular and at times could hardly walk across the room. I was unable to do my housework or attend to my baby. I was so weak. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did me a world of good, and now I am strong and healthy, can do my work and tend my baby. I advise all suffering women to take it and get well as I did."—Mrs. FANNIE COOPER, R.F.D., Bridgeport, N.J.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

THE AMERICAN PEOPLE TO CLOSE THE DOORS OF OUR COUNTRY TO THE IMMIGRANT WHO FAILS TO PASS A LITERACY TEST.

It is absurd for the rank and file of the American people to close the doors of our country to the immigrant who fails to pass a literacy test, when none of us need go very far back to find his ancestors, many of them immigrants of the very same stock as the three R's landing at Castle Garden, or some other equally historic point, and making good from the start.

Give us the foreigner, who, if he cannot himself be fully Americanized, is anxious to have his children assimilated, and we can offer them, with a view to becoming citizens, the same next generation, and who has the straight look out of the eye. That is the part of Mr. Nagel's opinion I like the best.

BILLIONAIRE NUISANCE

That the billionaire has become frankly a nuisance, you can see by the planning board may be successful in removing it from the urban landscape, we pray. At the same time, the existence of the billionaire is not in any way or ordinance. We have a right to assume that their owners have contributed to the public good by their buildings department and of the first commissioners. Therefore, is it not unconstitutional and is it not in restraint of trade to advocate placing such a high tax on these unsightly objects that their use must be discontinued? Now none is more opposed to these disagreeable adjuncts to our city buildings than I, and more than once have I hated them with my pen, for presenting so swiftly to the attention of our impressionable children and youths, beer, tobacco, cigarettes and cheap shoes. Yet a sense of fairness compels me to observe that the recommendation of the planning board that they be taxed out of existence, is not a high handed landlordism, nor worthy of a republican form of government. Therefore, the city has not met with any particular difficulty in pass-

AS TO FIRE PREVENTION

Since the Salem fire many building restrictions, some now, others simply revived, are being enforced in order to prevent a repetition of the disaster. Boston's fire commissioner is trying to secure legislation against the use of wood shingles, not only in Boston, but in the 22 cities and towns which comprise the metropolitan district. Now that New York city has been the scene of a dreadful street car accident, for which wooden street cars were largely responsible, the city government is considering legislation to banish them from the city. When a fire of any consequence occurs in Lowell for a few days following there is an unusual sale of fire extinguishers, and then the incident is forgotten.

It is too bad a dreadful accident must occur before we rouse ourselves to an appreciation of our laxity in the way of prevention.

VOICES FOR WOMEN

Jan. 11, 5.30 a. m. I have just finished perusing the evening papers and they report that all Washington is agog with excitement over the suffrage amendment which is to be voted on tomorrow. Antis have come from all over the country to preach their doctrine of "Home-keeping," hear, are impatient. They want to see the resolution. They assert that the resolution will be defeated by more than two-thirds majority, while the suffragists are making no claims. They know they will lose. They realize that the time is hardly ripe for success as yet. The campaign of educating the masses to recognize the value of woman's vote in affairs of any kind which touch on the welfare of home and family, and therefore of state, has not as yet progressed sufficiently far to insure the passage of the amendment. Victory not ultimately, but at the present time, is in his woman's mind. As for the minds of the antis, yet they willingly go forth to defeat, knowing that only by keeping their cause at all times before the attention of the law-makers, can they eventually attain success.

Personally I do not think the amendment will be defeated by so large a majority. It is safe to assume that the representatives from those states where suffrage for women has already passed successfully the experimental stage, will vote for the resolution, and surely the champions of the cause, even though in the minority, are not confined to those states.

More than one paper, I observe, comments President Wilson for the irreparable pronouncement he has now made for the sixth time that suffrage for women is a question each state should settle for itself.

This protest of "states rights" on issues purely national has been tried out before now. As long ago as 1836, the south asserted that any state had the right to refuse to pay duty on imported goods as required by national law. This was when Governor Hayne of South Carolina threatened that if the government should use force in exacting so distasteful a law, his state should secede. The ensuing controversy was the occasion of Daniel Webster's famous "Reply to Hayne," to this day known as "the most remarkable speech ever made in the American congress," and by which the execution of the national tariff law was accomplished in South Carolina and the Union remained intact.

Again, later, when slavery was the burning issue, each state tried to maintain that she alone held the right to decide whether she would be a slave state or a free state. In asserting the authority of the nation in issues national, the Civil war resulted, and when the smoke of battle had cleared, slavery had been abolished, national law prevailed over state rights and again the nation was intact.

Thus it may be seen that from time to time the states have attempted to settle for themselves questions of national moment, and while things went on in a make-shift style for a time, in every case the United States government was at length compelled to step in and settle the question once for all.

brother, for democrats as a body are not wholly opposed to suffrage, at least as a state issue.

If only I knew if it is raining in Washington! If only I knew if the weather man is an anti! With impatience I await the evening papers.

Same day, 7.30 p. m.: Such a long day! I have just learned that the suffrage amendment was killed, 264 to 171. I protest the word "killed." It was not killed. It was only beaten and there is a great difference. If you are killed, you are done for forever, but if you are only beaten, your chances of "coming back" are excellent.

As I look over the returns tabulated by parties, I conclude that it was a fair day in Washington, and that the weather man is an anti, for I find that 171 democrats voted against, and 264 republicans voted for the amendment. An exceptionally good day in the capital city. Still there is an excuse for this delinquency. Their leader, without commenting on the merits of the cause, spoke for his party when he asserted that he considered suffrage a state issue.

The republican party leader was one of the chief speakers in favor, and his party voted 72 for and 33 against. A two-thirds vote is required to pass the resolution. The measure, therefore, really was defeated by 78 votes, but the anti failed of the two-thirds vote they claimed by 18 votes.

With the cause may be defeated, beaten, if you will, for the present, but "killed," never.

WANT TO BE POSTMASTER

Candidates Out for the Position—Major Crowley States Why He Resigned

Because he believed that the longer he remained at the postoffice the more he was getting away from his law business, Robert J. Crowley, postmaster of Lowell, resigned Saturday to take the position of deputy district attorney of Middlesex county, the resignation to take effect upon the appointment of his successor.

Mr. Crowley was appointed postmaster July 22, 1913. Since taking up the duties of the position, Postmaster Crowley has been active in his efforts to improve the service.

Speaking of his resignation, Mr. Crowley said:

"To resign a position-paying a greater salary than the position which a man is to accept is somewhat unusual. I have given the situation careful study, however, and am convinced that my return to the practice of law is necessary, in fairness to myself."

"District Attorney Corcoran has argued with me as to the uncertainty of a position, such as that of postmaster, and I have seen the force of what he has said. So with much reluctance I am leaving a loyal and efficient body of men at the postoffice, to accept a position which will bring me in direct touch with the profession, and will open the way to restoring a law practice that has been neglected since my appointment as postmaster."

Mr. Crowley says he hasn't the faintest idea as to his possible successor. The candidates mentioned include Hon. James B. Cady, Hon. John P. McLean, Lawyer Joseph O'Connor and D. J. O'Brien.

Postmaster Crowley hopes to be relieved very soon, as this is a very busy time of the year for the district attorney and the services of the deputy are much in demand. The position was created by the legislature last year and the salary is said to be about $1500, although there are opportunities for a general practice in connection with the office.

NEW CUSTOM HOUSE BASEBALL MEN ACTIVE

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE PLANS ELABORATE PROGRAM FOR DEDICATION OF HOSTON BUILDING

BOSTON, Jan. 18.—The dedication of Boston's new custom house will take place next Friday, with formal exercises at the tower under the auspices of the Boston chamber of commerce. The ceremonies will begin at 11 a. m. the speakers being Gov. Waleh, Mayor Curley, Assistant Secretaries of the Treasury Andrew J. Peters and Byron J. Newcomb. Cardinal O'Connell and Bishop Lawrence are also expected to take part.

The keys of the building will be presented by Architect Timothy D. Edwards, collector of the port.

Following the exercises, the speakers and others invited will be guests of the chamber at the Exchange club, where luncheon will be served at 12.30. From 1.30 to 3.30 the members of the chamber of commerce who are provided with tickets will be privileged to ascend the tower and enjoy the unexcelled view from the highest accessible point.

Among the guests at the dedicatory exercises will be former Collectors Winslow Warren, George H. Lyman and Edmund W. Curtis, also members of the original chamber of commerce, Merchants association and the board of trade committee which labored so successfully to obtain the custom house. In this committee are included Jerome Jones, chairman; Elwyn G. Preston, Robert S. Penhaly, Wallace L. Pierce and Andrew G. Webster.

PUTTING THE FINAL TOUCHES ON CASE WHICH WILL OPEN IN CHICAGO WEDNESDAY

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—With only two days remaining in which to prepare their arguments, counsel for the Federal league and organized baseball men are in conference today putting the final touches on the case which will open before Judge Landis in the United States district court on Wednesday.

August Horrmann, chairman of the national baseball commission, is expected to be the most important witness for the defense. With him will be Ben E. Johnson, president of the American league, and John K. Tener, president of the National league, the remaining two members of the national commission. For the Federal league, which seeks to prevent organized baseball from interfering with its players or operations, James Gilmore, president of the organization, is expected to be the chief witness. E. F. Ward, president of the Brooklyn Reds, and President Robertson of the Buffalo club with President Gilmore, who form the executive committee of the league will have complete charge of the case of the plaintiffs.

600 HENS ROASTED ALIVE

BOSTON, Jan. 18.—About 600 hens were burned to death in a fire that destroyed the building of the Cambridge Poultry company at 45 Bridge street, East Cambridge, and seriously damaged another building early yesterday morning.

The fire apparently started in the blacksmith shop of Spiegel & Pollas, next door to the poultry company's building. The flames spread to the poultry company's building and the loud cackle of the 600 hens, which were roasted ready for shipment, could be heard for some distance.

INSTALLED NEW OFFICERS

IRISH NATIONAL FORESTERS HELD INTERESTING MEETING AT THEIR HALL YESTERDAY

A well attended meeting of Branch O'Neill Crowley, Irish National Foresters, was held in the Runels building yesterday afternoon with the new chief ranger, Hugh B. McQuade, presiding. It was voted to accept the report of the delegates to the St. Patrick's day convention. Eight propositions for membership were received and two new members were initiated.

The question of having a prominent lecturer come to Lowell in the near future and deliver an illustrated lecture under the auspices of the branch was discussed at considerable length, and the matter was laid over to come up again at the next meeting.

The following members were appointed on the arbitration committee: Thomas McManis, James McCue, John Mullarkey, Daniel Burke, John Murray, John Grouke, Thomas Kane and Maurice Hanniffa.

The auditing committee for the ensuing year is as follows: Joseph Hamilton, chairman; Terrence Quinn and Jas. Daley.

MARKET ST. FIRE

Blaze at Mr. Turcotte's Saloon and Kittredge's Bowling Alleys

A fire which threatened for a time to develop into a conflagration broke out a few minutes before 1 o'clock Sunday morning in the basement of the saloon of L. P. L. Turcotte & Co. on Market street, and rapidly spread through the partitions upstairs into the second floor where Kittredge's bowling alleys are located. Box 26 was rung in by Officer Kiley and prompt work on the part of Chief Saunders and his men prevented the spreading of the flames.

When the firemen arrived on the scene smoke was pouring from the windows in the basement of the building as well as from the first floor. Shortly afterward huge clouds of black smoke began to curl out from the bowling alleys and Chief Saunders at once sent a detachment of fire fighters into the two top floors of the building. The fire had eaten its way through the partitions and was already in evidence upon the second floor. The practically new alleys were ripped up by the firemen's axes and the water played down through the partitions, finally quenching them.

The origin of the fire is unknown, Turcotte's establishment was damaged principally by smoke and water, although the flames ate their way into the saloon in several places. Harry Kittredge's loss was quite severe owing to the playing of water upon his alleys in the second floor. The entire loss will probably be somewhere in the neighborhood of $3000.

Fire on Wilder Street

Fire broke out in the bathroom of a dwelling at 284 Wilder street, occupied by Mrs. E. J. Holton, late Sunday afternoon and did considerable damage before it was extinguished by the members of the Branch street firehouse. The blaze was discovered by a neighbor, Walter Parker, who telephoned the fire department and a quick response prevented more serious results. The origin of the blaze is not known.

REP. D. A. MURPHY'S BILL

RADICAL CHANGE IN THE CITY CHARTER IS PROPOSED BY REPRESENTATIVE MURPHY

Representative Dennis A. Murphy of this city has filed a bill in the legislature to amend Lowell's city charter. The bill would abolish the commission form of government and proposed a mayor at a salary of $2000 and a board of 12 aldermen. Ward aldermen would receive a salary of $750 and aldermen-at-large would receive $1500. There would be no party designation and only two candidates for mayor would be permitted for election day; six candidates for aldermen-at-large and two candidates for aldermen in each ward. The school committee would be increased to nine members with no compensation, as at present. All terms would be for one year.

Another bill filed by Mr. Murphy would permit appeals to the superior court in fire insurance cases.

THE SHIP PURCHASE BILL

CHIEF INTEREST IN CONGRESS TODAY CENTERED IN OUTCOME OF CAUCUS OF DEMOCRATS

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Chief interest in congress today centered in the outcome of tonight's caucus of senate democrats on the government ship purchase bill for upon its action depends the fate of that measure on the shipping bill. Tonight's caucus, the second one, is for the purpose of passing upon a number of amendments. Democrats are divided over the form of the bill, vigorous opposition having developed to the government ownership feature at Saturday night's caucus. They are confronted also with the unalterable opposition of the republicans who have announced their intention of defeating the bill if possible.

MORGAN AT WHITE HOUSE

FINANCIER ON PRES. WILSON'S LIST OF CALLERS TODAY—TO ALSO VISIT SEC. LANE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—J. P. Morgan was on President Wilson's list of callers today. The financier declined to reveal what matters he would discuss but declared the principal object of his visit was in connection with a meeting of the advisory council of the federal reserve system, of which he is a member. Problems in connection with the Alaska railroad with particular reference to the Copper river and North-western railroad which Mr. Morgan has offered to sell the government as a part of the proposed railroad to connect the Alaska coast to the coal fields was said to be one of the objects of the visit to the White House. Mr. Morgan was to discuss the matter with Secretary Lane also.

GRANDSON TO WILSON BORN IN WHITE HOUSE

First Birth in Jefferson's Term

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—A son was born at the White House yesterday to Mrs. Francis Bowes Sayre, President Wilson's second daughter. Mrs. Sayre and the child were reported doing well.

The infant was born at 4.30 yesterday afternoon, but the fact was not formally announced until 6 o'clock, when Secretary Tammily gave out the following statement:

"Dr. Grayson, the White House physician, states that at 4.30 o'clock Mrs. Sayre gave birth to a fine boy. Everything went perfectly and both are doing well."

The boy weighed 11-12 pounds. He announced his arrival by a series of cries which gave assurance that his lungs were in excellent condition.

The president made no effort to conceal his joy when informed that the child was a boy and that Mrs. Sayre was well. His face was wreathed in smiles for hours afterwards. It was his first grandchild and the president had no boys of his own.

Mr. Sayre Arrives Late

Mr. Sayre, who is assistant to President Garfield of Williams college, was not at the White House when his son was born. Dr. Grayson reached him on the telephone at Williamsstown at 12 o'clock yesterday morning and he arrived here last night.

The president did not go to church yesterday morning and Mrs. Sayre's sisters, Mrs. William G. McAdoo and Miss Margaret Wilson, with their cousin, Miss Helen Woodrow Bones, remained at the White House throughout the day.

A corps of special nurses were in attendance. Dr. E. P. Day, a specialist in Philadelphia, was called in by Dr. Grayson.

Mr. and Mrs. Sayre were married at the White House Nov. 25, 1913. After a honeymoon to Europe, they went to Williamsstown to make their home. Mrs. Sayre has been visiting at the White House since Christmas.

Ten other children—six girls and four boys—have been born in the White House, most of them being the grandsons or granddaughters of presidents.

GARZA, NEW PRESIDENT OF MEXICO, TAKES OFFICE

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 18.—Gen. Roque Gonzalez Garza was Saturday night named provisional president of Mexico by the convention in session here, over which he has presided. The former provisional president, Gen. Emilio Gutierrez, together with Gen. Blanes, Robles and Jose Vasconcelos, left Mexico City yesterday morning at 4 o'clock for Pachuca.

Martial law has been declared by Gen. Garza and the city is patrolled by mounted police. In electing Garza the convention declared itself to be supreme, and until a new president is elected has assumed all the legislative, executive and judicial powers.

THE MANHATTAN CLUB

HELD INTERESTING MEETING YESTERDAY—ENJOYABLE PROGRAM

The Manhattan Social club held a very enthusiastic meeting in their rooms in upper Gorman street yesterday afternoon with all members present. President Charles Emerson presided and gave an interesting address on the welfare of the organization. He mapped out plans for the social season and told of the great progress made by the committee in charge of the cabaret show which will be held in the Apollo hall on January 29. The speaker said that this feature is an innovation for the club, but present indications point to a most successful entertainment. Remarks were also made by John Ward, John Ready, Thomas Spencer and others. Several of the artists who will appear at the cabaret show were present and rehearsed their parts and a musical program of rare excellence was greatly enjoyed by those present.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

With a large number of members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians present, the annual installation of officers of the five local divisions was held in A. O. H. hall yesterday afternoon. The following officers were inducted into office by State President Donnelly: Division 1, President, Martin McCarthy; vice president, Michael Casey; secretary, Homer Verville; treasurer, Thomas McCann; financial secretary, James Sheahan. Division 2, President, J. J. McCann; vice president, J. J. Gilbride; secretary, John Harrington; treasurer, J. P. Mahoney; financial secretary, John P. Sheahan. Division 3, President, Daniel F. Auction Sale

$2,832.00 Worth of Upholstery Goods for $1,257.00

FROM THE NEW YORK AUCTION ROOMS OF WILMERDING, MORRIS AND MITCHELL.

It is a very interesting story—how the great upholstery manufacturers dispose of their surplus stocks and discontinued lines. It is not possible for them to forecast exactly the quantity of merchandise needed to supply the season's demand.

Consequently overproduction is inevitable. All big manufacturers prefer to make more goods than are needed and take a loss on their surplus than to run the risk of running short and having to turn away customers. So the surplus lots are put "under the hammer" and "knocked down" to the bidders (department store buyers) in the auction rooms.

Our Upholstery Department should be crowded today and Tuesday, and these prices should bring the crowds early.

JUDGE McPHERSON DEAD

Southern Iowa Federal Justice for 15 Years, Had Been Republican Leader and Congressman

RED OAK, Ia., Jan. 18.—Smith McPherson, for 15 years judge of the federal court in the southern Iowa district, died last night at his home. He had been ill for six months.

Judge McPherson was 65 years old. He had been one of the republican leaders of Iowa since 1870, as district attorney, attorney general and judge. He served in congress only one year. He was a widower and had no children.

His decisions on rate cases brought him into controversy with Atty.-Gen. Barker of Missouri and with other prominent public men.

FISH AND GAME ASSOCIATION

Some time the Lowell Fish and Game association will receive from the state six cans of adult trout which will be distributed in brooks about Lowell. SAVED FROM SHIPWRECK

19 Lassoed in Gale—Men From Steel Bark Pilgrim Tell of Disaster Off Virginia Capes

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Thirteen men of the American steel bark Pilgrim, which originally was the old British bark Gael and was transferred to American registry several months ago, arrived here yesterday by the American liner St. Louis. They abandoned the Pilgrim about 350 miles east of the Virginia capes on Dec. 14 while she was almost on her beam ends in a heavy southeast gale.

All hands, save the cabin boy, Earl Boyd of Boston, 17, who was swept from the forward rigging and lost when the blast drove the ship down, were lassoed from the wreck by the Norwegian cotton steamer Tholma, from Malmö to Copenhagen.

When the Tholma saw the Pilgrim's signal of distress, a tar barrel blazing from the poop deck, a living gale prevented her from putting out a boat. It took six hours to get lines aboard the wreck and rescue all the 19 men. Every one leaped himself in a bowline, jumped and was dragged through the combbers to the Tholma, which was hoisted to about 30 yards away. All were landed at Kirkwall on Jan. 4.

The men who told yesterday the yarn of the Pilgrim's tribulations said she was making an effort to leave to sea and was rolling and pitching violently when her rattle ballast shifted and she was knocked down to port almost on her beam ends. The skipper, Capt. A. A. Sora, and Mate B. C. Treffrey were aft and Second Mate Bleckwith was forward. The men say the second mate was the most cheerful man in the ship's company and the skipper was inclined to pessimism.

The port watch was below and the optimistic mate made his way to the forecastle companion way and yelled, "All hands on deck!" They had been turned out of their bunks by the heeling of the ship and they were on the way to the deck even before the second mate had shouted.

The blast increased and the old bark reeled further over to port. The cabin boy was snapped from the forward rigging into the tumult and soon disappeared. For more than an hour the men were walking along the plates of the starboard side of the vessel. The skipper remarked that it was no use trying to do anything, as the ship was gone. The cheerful second mate volunteered to make an effort and he lowered men on lines down the clanking deck in the carpenter shop. They came up with axes and hauled at the weather or starboard shrouls. It was expected the masts, relieved of the support of the starboard rigging, would go by the board and the ship would right. The masts of steel did not go, but the ship came up about four feet.

At 1 o'clock the next morning in response to the blazing tar barrel signal the Tholma came within hauling distance and arranged the rescue. The eastern gale blew from the north, and soon found her, but they heard before sailing from Liverpool that the derelict was still afloat on Jan. 5, when almost on even keel she was sighted, decks awash, by the Italian steamship Ticino in the path of navigation, about 125 miles from the scene of her mishap.

DOCKET IN POLICE COURT

Alleged Holdup Man Sentenced Today—Several Cases of Larceny—The Drunkards

Charged with the larceny of forty dollars from his room mate, Christos Preveras was arraigned before Judge Bright in the local court this forenoon and through his attorney, William A. Hogan, entered a plea of not guilty. The case was continued until Saturday for trial.

The complainant in the case is Vasilius Photopoulos. It will be recalled that Preveras and Photopoulos were recently adjudged guilty of assault and battery on a young woman in that they seized her as she was returning from work about 5:30 o'clock one evening and carried her off in an automobile. The case was a mystery to the police for a time but later the young woman appeared in the clerk's office and asked for warrants against the two men, stating that they attempted to take her to a nearby city in the automobile but her strenuous objection caused them to return to this city. Photopoulos, it was alleged, had been keeping company with the young woman and Preveras was assisting him in carrying out his plans of matrimony.

Since that time, the police allege, the two men have been very good friends, rooming together and spending much time in each other's company. Last Saturday morning, according to the complainant, he left his room to go to work leaving the sum of $40 tucked away in a corner of his room. Upon his return from work he missed the money and reported the matter to the police. Sergeant Petrie was detailed on the case and yesterday arrested Preveras, who was this morning accused of the larceny.

ing him through Gorham street to Appleton street, where Patrolman Conney joined him. The defendant was apprehended and placed under arrest.

When questioned relative to his home, the defendant admitted that he registered at the station under a fictitious name. He said this was done so that his mother would not hear of his wrong doings. He pleaded with the court not to notify his parents of his whereabouts and was informed that he would be given as much right in this respect as possible. The case was continued until Wednesday for further investigation.

Disorderly Conduct

Two complaints were lodged against Philip Pussett and Charles Queller, both aged about 21 years, one accusing them with drunkenness and the other with being idle and disorderly persons. Each denied the latter count but after Patrolmen Breault, Hession, Regan and Lemay had testified his Honor was convinced that the young men spent too much time in barrooms and he ordered each sentenced to the house of correction for four months.

Larceny and Non Support

Charles Lafavey pleaded guilty to the larceny of $40 from Edmund Berger. It was announced that an agreement between the parties was about to be reached and the case was continued for two months.

John C. Cox was arraigned charged with drunkenness and non-support of his wife Catherine E. Cox. Cox testified that she had received no money from her husband since October 1. She said that he drinks heavily and neglects his two children. He was sent to the house of correction for four months on the non support charge.

Albert Chaput was brought before the court on continuance for the alleged larceny of goods from A. G. Pollard's store. A representative of the store informed Judge Bright that the case had been investigated and Mr. Pollard did not wish to prosecute the defendant. The case was ordered placed on file.

Sent to State Farm

Joseph E. Knight and Paul Verasalles pleaded guilty to charges of vagrancy and were ordered committed to the state farm. A young man was committed to a disturbance in a dance in Prescott hall last Saturday night. He was pronounced guilty of drunkenness and ordered to pay a fine of $10. Five other drunken offenders were called before the court and received sentences while Probation Officer Stetney released 18 after ascertaining that they had no past records.

Y. M. C. I. HOWLING LEAGUE

The Y. M. C. I. howling league will start with a rush tonight when Trains and street cars will be filled with the howling crew. The league will meet at the institute alleys in Stark-pole street. The alleys have been put in splendid condition for the league and some high marks must be set up during the season. Charlie Curry, the boy who was mainly instrumental in winning the championship in the city league for the last twelve boys some years back will be out strong again as well as many of the other old hands. The usual howling will be heard in the league and it is stated that the pastime will prove even more enjoyable than during the past two seasons. Games will be held every night in the week except Saturday. After a hard fight the "Police" succeeded in capturing all the Wednesday night howlers. Thinking perhaps that many forfeitures will result the other teams not showing up on this well known visiting night. Charles Curry is a candidate for captain of the team. Tony Doyle and Jack McTaffrey having decided not to run.

NO SCHOOL THIS AFTERNOON

Box 292, the no-school signal, sounded at 12:15 o'clock this afternoon, notifying that there would be no school in the public schools.

TOO PROUD TO BEG

Couple Starved to Death—Man Found Clasp Body of Wife

PASSAIC, N. J., Jan. 15.—Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Stevens Farley of 178 Passaic street, who had not seen them for several days and who found the house apparently locked and deserted when they called, became uneasy and Frank McGuire, owner of the house, suggested to Policeman Vanierhoven that he investigate. He knew that Farley was a bookbinder, but not until yesterday did he suspect that all might not be well, for Farley never complained, and Mrs. Farley had always seemed cheerful when McGuire saw her.

With Vanierhoven, Mr. McGuire broke into the house yesterday. There was no one in the front room, but they heard someone in bedroom breathing heavily and they stepped eagerly toward the room, thinking to surprise Farley asleep. They found him, not asleep, but in coma. In his arms was clasped the body of his wife.

Starved to Death

A doctor later said Mrs. Farley had been dead for several days and that she had starved to death. There was not a bit of food in the house. The Farleys, too proud to beg or to acknowledge their predicament to their friends, had eaten the last of their food and had lain down together to die.

Farley was taken in an ambulance to St. Mary's hospital. He was conscious as the automobile rushed along, but as it drew up before the hospital, he died.

The Farleys had lived in this town for years. Farley came from New York and worked in various mills here, but made good wages and both he and his wife were members of St. Nicholas' church. Years ago they had been active in church work, but of late their interest in this line had been more limited and their friends in the church saw less and less of them.

There were many persons who called occasionally on the couple and when they learned that Farley had lost his employment they made veiled hints at helping the couple. The offers never were accepted. The Farleys gave the impression that they were well able to weather the financial storm, and not one of their friends ever suspected that they could be without food.

According to the doctors, Mrs. Farley had been dead for three days at least, and it was supposed that all this time Farley held her body in his arms while he waited for death himself. Farley was 50 years old and his wife two years younger. That he should have lived several days after his wife showed he was strong enough to call help had he wished. Apparently, while he made no attempt on his life, he had determined to make no further effort to save it after weeks of searching for work had proved unavailing.

KILLED FATHER

New York Youth Shot Parent for Abusing His Mother

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Angered over the treatment accorded his mother, Vincent Carriello, aged 21, shot and killed his father, Michael, 50, in their home at No. 597 President street, Brooklyn, yesterday. Five shots were fired into the elder man's body, any one of which would have caused death. Following the shooting, young Carriello walked to the Bergen street police station and gave himself up.

There had been trouble between Michael Carriello and his wife, Colomina, for weeks. On several occasions, it is said, the man beat the woman until her screams aroused the neighborhood. Saturday night they quarreled and the man struck her on the head. Young Vincent, who was present, remonstrated and hot words followed.

At breakfast yesterday morning trouble broke out anew. Again the elder Carriello tried to strike his wife. The son drew a revolver from his pocket and fired five shots in rapid succession into his father's body.

"I have just killed my father," he informed Lieut. Murphy at the police station. "I am here to give myself up."

Capt. Himmel, who was summoned to the station house and sent two patrolmen to the President street address, where they found the elder Carriello lying dead on the floor. Young Carriello was locked up on a charge of homicide. He will be arraigned today in the Butler street court. Asked by Capt. Himmel why he had fired the shots, he said: "I could not stand by and see my mother abused any longer."

CONGRESSMEN ARRESTED

ANNAPOLIS JAIL CROWDED AS RESULT OF RAID IN WHICH 148 MEN WERE CAPTURED

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 18.—The Annapolis jail contained yesterday 171 prisoners though its accommodations are only 135, 445 of these being the result of a raid made Saturday by a detachment of Baltimore police at Myers Station on the Baltimore and Washington electric line just inside the boundaries of Anne Arundel county, in which Annapolis is situated, where racetrack betting is alleged to have gone on for some time.

Most of the prisoners are Washingtonians and there is a rumor that the number includes two congressmen though this could not be confirmed. Certainly it is that many appear to be professional and business men.

Forty were released on bail yesterday afternoon, but the jail is still overcrowded.

FIRE EXPERTS ARRIVE

REPRESENTATIVES OF UNDERWRITERS FROM NEW YORK AT BOARD OF TRADE CONFERENCE

A. S. Hutson, a member of the National Board of Underwriters of New York and an expert on fire apparatus and water supply, and Ralph Sweetland, chief engineer for the New England Insurance exchange, and an expert on insurance matters, were the guests of the fire prevention committee of the Lowell board of trade this afternoon.

The two experts came at the request of the fire prevention committee and will be in the city for a few days. The matter in which they are both deeply interested. The addresses were given at a meeting of the fire prevention committee at which the members of the municipal council were invited to attend. The meeting was held at 2 o'clock.

NOT CANNON FIRE

HAVANA, Jan. 18.—The reports that cannon fire had been heard at sea last night off Havana were promptly investigated and turned out to be without foundation. It seems that some blasting work was being done along the shore and that these sounds were taken for artillery.

COLLISION ON CROSSING

FOUR INJURED IN AUTO CRASH AT MALDEN YESTERDAY—ONE MAN IS DYING IN HOSPITAL

A heavy seven-passenger touring car was wrecked, one of its occupants had both legs broken, and sustained probably fatal injuries, while three other men were severely hurt, when the touring car of Alexander M. Burnside of 16 Everett street, Everett, skidded into a truck of the H. P. Hood Co., loaded with milk, at the Saugus branch railroad crossing on Main street, Malden, yesterday afternoon.

William Jackson, 24 years, who was riding on the running board of the Burnside car, was jammed between two machines when the crash occurred, both legs being broken. Mr. Leroy Burnside, 19, son of the owner and driver of the touring car, suffered severe gashes above and below the left eye, when he was tossed through the windshield. His father's upper lip was lacerated from the blow that drove his teeth nearly through the lip, and the driver of the truck, Albert Langill, 11 Shawmut street, Malden, was cut about the face and hands by flying glass.

The accident occurred in a precarious condition at the Malden hospital, where he was taken in the police ambulance, the doctors fearing that he may have sustained internal injuries beside the fractured legs. He was unconscious about the face and body and was unconscious when taken from beneath the wreckage of the touring car.

PRICE OF COAL SOARS

SEVERAL BOSTON DEALERS ADVANCE PRICE OF HARD COAL 25 CENTS A TON

BOSTON, Jan. 18.—Several local dealers advanced the price of certain grades of hard coal 25 cents a ton today, making the third advance since last April. Increased freight rates and labor charges, according to the dealers, made the advance necessary.

THE COUNTY COMMISSION

BRIEF MEETING AT COURT HOUSE THIS MORNING BUT NO BUSINESS PRESENTED

The county commissioners, Messrs. Gould, Williams and Barlow held their regular monthly meeting at the local jail house this forenoon. The meeting was called at 10 o'clock by Chairman Gould but no business was transacted, for after waiting about 15 minutes for any business to be presented without any result, the commissioners adjourned to Cambridge.

IMMACULATE CONCEPTION

Large congregations were present at all the masses at the church of the Immaculate Conception yesterday. The sermon preached at the 9 o'clock mass was by Rev. Lawrence F. Tighe, O. M. I., the pastor, who prefaced his remarks by a number of suggestions of a businesslike nature. He called attention to the fact that many have not paid their new rent and announced that the church would not be taking up next Sunday at all the masses. His sermon was on the marriage feast of Cana, which, said Fr. Tighe, reflects the dignity of all Christian marriages. Those who think the young couple whose marriage Christ attended, highly honored, forget that He is present at every marriage contracted according to the teaching of His church.

The sermon at the 10 o'clock mass was preached by Rev. Dennis A. Sullivan, O. M. I., who spoke forcefully on the triumphs of Christianity and at the 11 o'clock mass, by Fr. McCarthy who preached on the gospel of the day with his usual eloquence and sincerity. His usual announcements of socially needy persons were made and a collection was set apart as communion day for the junior branches of the Children of Mary and the Holy Name society.

O'Donnell & Sons are in charge of funeral arrangements.

NEW WAR DEVICE

Invention by Germans Proves Valuable Assistant to Soldiers

BERLIN, Jan. 6 (Correspondence)—At no time has the military observation system been developed as in the present war.

The "Aid Intelligence service" is an institution as old as warfare itself, but never before has it been employed so generally and thoroughly. Cavalry scouting and reconnaissance, "aeronautic" messengers, the field telegraph and telephone have been extensively employed as have the signal lamp, the telegraph, rocket and searchlight.

The war has established the fact that the aeroplane is the most efficient means of modern field intelligence work. Scouting above positions and troops, observation from an aeroplane are able to report minutest details. This has led to a new development in warfare—finding cover from observation above.

No longer is the trench a mere ditch, as was the case formerly. Today it is roofed off not against shell and shrapnel, but against the eyes of the men who sail above.

Almost from the start it was demonstrated in France and Belgium that accepted notions on reconnaissance and communication would have to be modified, and some of them wholly discarded. When the lines on the Aisne and in Belgium became fixed it was discovered that the sphere of the cavalry patrol and reconnaissance party had disappeared. Distances between the trenches of the opponents became so small that only infantry could be used for field intelligence purposes. Today these spaces between the lines have shrunk so much that even this can no longer be done.

Now has come a brand new innovation for which the German is responsible. This is the so-called "laucheposten," a term of which "listening outpost" is the English equivalent.

The laucheposten differ from the ordinary observation station in many respects. The latter is placed in the direction of artillery fire, though naturally, all other data of interest is also carefully gathered.

The purpose of the laucheposten is to gain from the conversation in the trenches information of military value. Needless to say this is no easy task. At first German officers would frequently slip through his own lines at night and seek the shelter of a bush or other natural cover near the trenches of the French or English. He had with him a small telephone instrument and a reel of light wire which he would unroll when the wire behind rolled out behind him from a reel in the foremost German trench became too heavy to drag.

In some manner the allies learned of the scheme, and thereafter cover offering advantages to a laucheposten was given special attention. As the adversaries began to bring their trenches closer together the system of approaching the allies' trenches was reduced to its proportions. The submarine passage to the enemy's trench became shorter.

Today the "listening sentinel" overhears the conversation in the French and English lines without much risk of being caught. He enters a tunnel through the narrow passage to where it ends in front of the French trench and takes note of the commands, conversations and other noises that may indicate that an attack on the German line is imminent.

It is impossible to marshal the troops for a sortie from a trench without giving some indication of what is intended. The "laucheposten" takes notice of this and acquaints headquarters.

Officers and men with whom the correspondent discussed this interesting phase of warfare were of the opinion that the laucheposten had proven an institution of the greatest value. In the end the tunnel could be used for introducing the enemy's trench, they said. In many cases the tunnel was used only when either an advance or retreat on their part was thought certain.

Since the French and English have not been slow in imitating their enemy, it is absolutely prohibited to speak in a whisper in the German trenches. It is possible, however, that the laucheposten will lose its place in warfare, because nothing can be learned from men that are silent.

SENATE TODAY DEFEATED MOTION TO SUSPEND ITS RULES FOR CONSIDERATION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The senate defeated today a motion to suspend its rules for consideration of a prohibition rider to the district of Columbia appropriation bill. A two-thirds majority was necessary to suspend the rules prohibiting general legislation in appropriation bills and the motion failed to receive even a minority. Debate has lasted five days.

ON PROHIBITION RIDER

SENATE TODAY DEFEATED MOTION TO SUSPEND ITS RULES FOR CONSIDERATION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The senate defeated today a motion to suspend its rules for consideration of a prohibition rider to the district of Columbia appropriation bill. A two-thirds majority was necessary to suspend the rules prohibiting general legislation in appropriation bills and the motion failed to receive even a minority. Debate has lasted five days.

PRICE ONE CENT

RUSSIANS IN COMPLETE VICTORY OVER TURKS

PETROGRAD, Jan. 18.—A late communication of the army of the Caucasus gives some details of the Russian victory at Kara Urgan. It says: During the last three days of the battle of Kara Urgan a violent snowstorm raged uninterruptedly. The conflict terminated in a complete victory for us. Thanks to the efforts of our Caucasian and Turkish regiments the resistance of the enemy was broken up. The rear guards, which covered his retreat were destroyed and the remainder of the Turkish army fled toward Erezum. Our troops pursuing, found in the ravines parts of the Turkish cannon which the fleeing enemy had abandoned in their flight. The pursuit continued.

GEN. VON HOHENBORN APPOINTED QUARTERMASTER GENERAL OF GERMAN ARMY

BERLIN, Jan. 18.—The appointment of Gen. Von Hohenborn as quartermaster general of the German army in succession of Major Gen. Voigts Rhetts, who died suddenly of heart failure on Nov. 14, has just been announced.

WOULD NOT WORK KILLED BY FALL

Girl Who Eloped With Young Knox to Sue for Divorce

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Phlander Chase Knox, Jr., son of the former secretary of state and United States senator, and his young wife, who, before he eloped with her from Providence in March, 1910, was Miss Mary G. Bolter, a shopgirl, have separated. Both have left their charming little home in Charleston, W. Va., and come to New York. Mrs. Knox for the purpose of beginning an action for separation and filing a theatrical engagement and young Knox for the purpose of inducing his wife to forgive and begin all over again.

It was while he was a student at the Morris Heights Preparatory school that young Knox met and fell in love with the Auburn-haired salesgirl. After a whirlwind courtship they eloped and traveled vainly through three states before they could find a clergyman to perform the marriage ceremony. Finally a minister in Burlington, Vt., united the runaways.

The elder Knox refused to receive the elopers and the young couple returned to Providence, where they gave out many have interviews, in which young Knox declared his intention of going to work to support his bride, and she insisted that she would stand by her "Dear Tip" through thick and thin.

Young Knox got a job selling automobiles, but something must have gone wrong with the trade that year because he soon turned to other lines of business.

About this time the elder Mr. Knox, pleased with his son's endeavors, forgave the young couple and took them to his handsome country home at Valley Forge to live. The young pair had a little trouble last year, but finally made up and went to live in Charleston.

Mrs. Knox, when found in a little apartment on Madison avenue yesterday, reluctantly admitted she had engaged counsel and was preparing to sue for separation.

"It is true that I have left Mr. Knox," she said, "and this time it is for good. I cannot discuss the matter; everything is confidential. My attorney, William Allan Tillman, I have been so miserably unhappy that it breaks my heart to even talk about the matter."

"While the newspapers were printing stories of my being received by my husband's family and entertained, I was suffering terribly. The whole cause of our trouble is money. Ever since our marriage my husband has been declaring he would go to work to support me but he never did. We were entirely dependent on the generosity of his parents for our support, and it was horribly humiliating; I could not stand it."

"My husband's parents were kinder to me. They gave us a fairly good allowance, and Mr. Knox provided me with money for dresses. But Tip had no idea of the value of money. He was dreadfully extravagant. His foolishness in spending money annoyed his father. I dare say he grew tired of paying our bills, because just a year ago he cut off our allowance."

MISS HORNE BURNED

Haverhill Young Woman Victim of Explosion in Gas Range—Sister Swears During Accident

HAVERHILL, Jan. 18.—Miss Pearl Horne of 114 1/2 avenue was badly burned on the face and head yesterday by flames from a gas range in her home. Miss Horne, who is a teacher, attempted to light the gas in the range and did not notice that the oven was filled with vapor.

As she stooped over the range the gas in the oven caught fire and exploded with a blast which enveloped her. Her younger sister, Theresa, who was in the house and swooned, Miss Horne ran to the yard where her plight attracted the attention of neighbors, who extinguished the flames. Because the flame struck her with full force in the eyes it was at first feared that her sight would be ruined, as well as her unusual beauty; but it was stated that the flames would leave no traces.

The open burners filled the house with gas until neighbors entered and found there was no danger of fire.

PATHETIC SCENES IN DEVASTATED DISTRICTS

2000 Soldiers Work on Ruins—Dead at Avezzano Now Estimated at 20,000—Titled Women Aid Sufferers

AVEZZANO, via Rome, Jan. 18.—Though buried in the debris for three days, 15 persons were taken alive from the ruins caused by the earthquake here. Some of the rescued were buried more than 30 feet and when extricated were in such condition that they immediately collapsed.

Rescuers believe there are many still living beneath the tons of debris and desperate efforts are being made to reach them.

Most of the irregular masses of stone have not yet been touched with pick or shovel. This is the fault of no one, because it would take a thousand workmen several days to turn over and excavate what has been slowly quarried and built up during centuries.

The earth shook again yesterday for about 10 seconds. The shock occurred at 2:10 a. m. and consisted of a gentle rocking movement. The people left their shelters and gathered in the streets, where they remained, fearing to return.

Capit. Pisani Vettori, who has charge of the relief work here, estimates that there are 15,000 dead in Avezzano, Cappelletti, Magliano and the villages in this immediate district.

Up to midnight Saturday only $500 bodies had been taken from the ruins. They were laid irregularly in open spaces all over the city. It was semi-officially estimated that there are 12,000 bodies buried in the ruins of Avezzano alone.

Supplies Pouring In.—Supplies are now pouring into Avezzano. On Saturday there were received 25,000 cans of preserved meat, nearly 20 tons of rice, nearly a ton of coffee, a ton and a half of sugar and a ton of salt. Whole train-loads of finer goods arrived, as well as tents for 12,000 persons and materials for illumination.

Scores of survivors were half-starving yesterday before food arrived from outside, although under the walls of Prince Torlonia's granary there were 100,000 bushels of wheat.

In the midst of the desolation, which reminded correspondents who had been at the battle front of Soissons after 100 days' bombardment by German and French artillery, are campfires around which parties of survivors are cooking army rations distributed to them.

They sit shivering in the sharp winter air on the high tableland of the Apennines. An eight-day clock, hanging on the only fragment of a wall which remains standing, was still striking the hours.

A Father's Sad Story.—A dozen bodies ready for burial are lying in the square of Torlonia. "In this square," said Capit. Vettori, "I saw a father who so terribly afflicted stares vacantly at those who speak to him. He has not eaten for two days."

The correspondent, going about last night with two soldiers bearing torches, came across the bodies of a family of seven, father, mother and five children.

There was a ghastly row of more than 100 lying near the splendid villa of Prince Torlonia, in which were found the bodies of 32 domestics and employees on his estate. Neither the prince nor any member of his family was in the great country house, which was destroyed.

There were 31 schoolmasters in Avezzano before the earthquake and only four survived, while only one of the 16 schoolmistresses is living. All the professors are dead.

Levelled in 31 Seconds.—Churches with massive walls, the ancient castle of Orsini, new structural steel and brick business blocks, all were levelled by the earthquake, which lasted only 31 seconds.

The castle of Orsini was used as a local administrative building. Twelve gendarmes happened to be in the guardroom when the earth rocked. Eleven were killed and the 12th was seriously injured.

A railway carriage has been transformed into a residence and office for the authorities, who wish to leave all available tents for the survivors. Another car is used as a telegraph office.

Valuables already removed from the ruins are estimated to be worth $400,000 and it is expected that the excavation continues for several important banks have branches here.

Looking After the Injured.—Deputy Frederico di Palma of the Italian parliament, whose wife was Miss Rosalie Agnes Williams of Lowell, and his colleague, Deputy Francesco Ciccarone, are directing the work of looking after the injured. Dr. Sabatino, more than 70 years old, for three days and three nights ceaselessly nursed and treated the wounded at Cencio and then collapsed. His son, also a physician, hastened from Rome to take his place. No other doctor has yet reached Cencio.

SAYS DEAD IN AVEZZANO WILL REACH 20,000 AND INJURED 10,000

AVEZZANO, Jan. 18.—More than 2000 soldiers are at work on the ruins here, which may be described as a wilderness of several square miles. Signor Surfelli, minister of public works, estimates the dead in Avezzano will reach 20,000 and 10,000 injured. So ruined is the city that it is difficult for the inhabitants to recognize streets much less houses. Avezzano was an important manufacturing center. Prince Torlonia, one of the greatest land proprietors in Italy, is the largest loser financially.

Titled Women Aid Sufferers

Among the titled women who have come here to aid the injured is the Marchesa Di Sostegno of Florence. She is working as a nurse in one of the military hospitals. Incidents which remarkably rescues were made are gradually coming to light. One tells of the experience of a lieutenant of engineers who came here and located the residence of his mother. He worked for some time alone pulling away stones, but presently he was assisted by some soldiers. After seven hours of labor he found his mother alive and not very badly injured. She had been protected by an unbroken piece of wall falling over the corner in which she was sleeping.

Mother Digs Out Daughter

In another instance, a mother who had escaped, believed her daughter must be alive under the fragments of her house. She organized a party of women and herself stimulated them to work at reducing a heap of limestone. The mother on Sunday heard a voice beneath where the women were working and they finally reached the young woman who had been protected by two parts of walls forming an angle. She had been without food or drink for four days and had been nearly suffocated by the dust of the mortar which sifted down through the crevices.

MATERIAL DAMAGE OF EARTHQUAKE QUAKE WILL EXCEED $50,000,000

PARIS, Jan. 18.—The Rome correspondent of the Matin telegraphing the scenes in the earthquake district says: The rescue work continues with activity. A man still living was taken from the ruins of Avezzano Sunday morning. The railroad is now repaired and supplies are arriving regularly. Prince Borghese, who in an automobile was the first to reach the scene with blankets, food and bandages has undertaken the task of cubbing the names of survivors to their relatives in the United States. The frequency of the shocks is diminishing. The seismograph has registered only 11 in the past 24 hours in the region of Avezzano and Sorra and none in Rome. The material damage, it is estimated, will exceed $50,000,000 lire ($50,000,000).

INDUSTRIAL AND STORE NEWS

The Loomfixers union will hold an important meeting in Carpenters hall tonight and business of much importance will come up for transaction. President Pierre Coutu, who attended the convention of the United Textile Workers held in New York last week, is expected back and he will have a very interesting report for the members.

Freight Handlers Union

The members of the Freight Handlers union held a largely attended and enthusiastic meeting in Trades & Labor hall in Middle street yesterday afternoon, at which a list of routine business was transacted. Several interesting reports were also read and the secretary's report showed the union to be progressing rapidly.

Barry for Governor

FORMER LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR FAVORED BY SPRINGFIELD MEETING

SPRINGFIELD, Jan. 18.—At a meeting of the Western Massachusetts Democratic Chairmen's association yesterday afternoon, in the Hotel Worthington, Edward P. Barry was informally suggested as a leader of the party ticket next fall, the second place being delegated to Henry J. Bowles of this city, a member of the executive council last year.

When asked as to the reason for the so-called boom, Mr. Barry refused to comment himself. He praised Mr. Bowles as a valuable member of any party, however, and stated that he would make a fine lieutenant governor.

Mr. Barry arrived here yesterday afternoon in company with Michael O'Leary, chairman of the democratic state committee. Mr. Bowles is present in Florida. The meeting was attended by more than 30 chairmen of cities and towns in this part of the state.

21 PERSONS CHARGED WITH INCITING RIOT

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—Twenty-one persons, members of a social settlement here, were to appear in court today charged with inciting a riot. Mrs. Lucy Parsons, widow of the anarchist hanged for murder after the Haymarket riots several years ago, was among those arrested. She did not spend the night in jail, however, as social workers obtained her release on bail. Seven others also were released on bail. Irwin Tucker, who said he was a preacher and an editor of a paper, was among the thirteen compelled to spend the night in a police station.

Police Draw Revolvers

Police demanded that the marchers halt as no permit had been issued for them to parade. The marchers, according to the police, began to push the banner bearers forward. Fighting started instantly. Police with revolvers and clubs drawn, rushed the crowd, felling all within their reach. Women marchers grabbed the policemen by the legs and threw them to the street, billing and scratching at their faces with fingernails. A number of shots were fired by the police in their attempt to drive back the crowd.

Reserves had to be called out before the police could take their prisoners to the station.

NATURALIZATION COURT

Large Crowd at Court House for Second Papers Today—Other Sessions

A naturalization session for second papers is being held at the local court house today and although the first session had been advertised for 10 o'clock, long before the hour set for the meeting, the corridor of the court house was filled with men, some of whom were desirous of filing their petitions for second papers, while others were there to act as witnesses. About 150 men applied for their second papers and Clerk Dillingham who was in charge issued papers at the rate of about 25 per hour.

The crowd of men was composed of representatives of numerous nationalities, and all were very anxious to go through the necessary mode of procedure in order to file their petitions, and in their anxiety they crowded at the door of the room, where Clerk Dillingham and his assistant, F. C. Bean of Boston were stationed to receive them.

One of the busiest men was certainly Mr. Bean who distributed petition forms to the large gathering who called out the names of the various candidates. Each time Mr. Bean came out of the clerk's room he was surrounded by a large group of men seeking information as to what they should do.

In conversation with the writer Mr. Bean said today's session for filing petitions for second papers was one of the most largely attended of the kind time, but despite the rush Clerk Dillingham managed to release about 25 men per hour. After adjourning for one hour for luncheon this noon the session was resumed this afternoon. A similar session will be held tomorrow and on Wednesday petitions for first papers will be received.

HUSBAND OF FAMOUS SINGER DIES; SHE WROTE SCANDALOUS NOTES

NOTES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—President Wilson was asked by Samuel Gompers and the executive council of the American Federation of Labor to approve the immigration bill now before him and to do everything in his power to secure the final passage of the seamen's bill, a bill to regulate the use of convict labor and a workingmen's compensation bill for employees in interstate commerce.

The president made no definite promises regarding any of the bills, but afterward Mr. Gompers said he was "greatly encouraged" and that the president's attitude had been "very cordial and sympathetic."

The president informed the delegation that a public hearing on the immigration bill would be held one day this week. He is expected to veto the bill because of the literary test feature, but has not definitely announced his intention.

The seamen's bill has passed the senate and house in different forms and is now pending in the senate, and several bills having been introduced providing for workingmen's compensation for employees in interstate commerce.

The executive council of the federation finished today a meeting which has been in session here for several days and will return to their various legislative and internal affairs of the organization were taken up. Among communications received was one from the Federation of Trades Unions of Holland, asking assistance for the Belgian victims, and it was decided to publish the letter in full in the American Federationist.

400 LETTERS SEIZED

POLICE RAID UNION SQUARE WHOLESALE COMPANY OFFICE AT SOMERVILLE

BOSTON, Jan. 18.—Investigation by the Somerville police into the status of the Union Square Wholesale company of that city resulted yesterday in the arrest at Cheshire of Joseph Kozadel, alias Joseph Miller, aged thirty-four, and the seizure in his office in the Hill building, Union square, Somerville, of 400 letters and various papers which he had received from the company. Kozadel was arrested on a charge of having violated the statutes in that he had failed to file with the city clerk of Somerville a certificate showing the character of the business he was conducting under the name of the Union Square Wholesale company.

GEORGE W. YOUNG

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The Lillian Nordica will case again occupied the attention of Surrogate Chohan and of Justice Lehman of the supreme court when the "scandalous and irrelevant" letters were the subject of argument, but were not to be seen. There was a great deal of talk, but the upshot of the matter was an indefinite adjournment. George W. Young, the banker, husband of the famous singer, appeared in the surrogate's court ready to testify concerning the alleged "scandalous" letters, the authenticity of which is doubted by Young and his counsel, Bainbridge Colby. On motion of Zimble Dreyfus of counsel to George S. Baldwin, nephew of the singer and one of those opposing Young's claims to the estate, the examination was adjourned, the date to be fixed later. In the supreme court two motions affecting the Nordica will were argued, and decision was reserved. The first of these, made by Colby, was for an order making permanent the temporary injunction granted by Justice Goff prohibiting the publication of the letters which, Baldwin alleges, were written by the prima donna concerning her family affairs. The second was a motion made by Baldwin for an order restraining Young and others from proceeding in the orphan's court of Monmouth county, N. J., with any action looking toward the probate of another alleged will of the singer's than that in the New York courts.

TWO EXPERTS TALK ON FIRE PREVENTION

Conference at Board of Trade —Mr. Hutson of New York Gives Views—Other Speakers

A very interesting conference of the members of the fire prevention committee of the Lowell board of trade was held this afternoon in the quarters of the association in Central street, for the purpose of discussing fire prevention in relation to the water and fire departments of this city with A. S. Hutson of the National Board of Underwriters of New York, expert on fire apparatus and water supply, and Ralph Sweetland, chief engineer of the New England Insurance exchange.

Present at the meeting were the following members of the committee: Daniel P. Carroll, chairman; Fred C. Church, Joseph F. Donohoe, Col. James H. Carmichael, commissioner of fire and water; Edward P. Saunders, chief of the fire department; Arthur T. Safford, engineer at the Locks and Canals Co.; John E. Bouton, P. Hildreth Parker, Birger Peterson, Nelson D. Keables and G. Hawthorne Perkins. Newell F. Putnam and Frank Connor, commissioner and superintendent of the buildings department, and several outside parties interested in the discussion were also present.

The meeting was called to order at 2.15 o'clock by Chairman Carroll, who stated that at the last meeting of the committee it was voted to invite experts from the National Board of Underwriters and the New England exchange to discuss questions pertaining to fire prevention in motorizing the fire department and improving the water system. He introduced as the first speaker Mr. Hutson, who spoke at length on the report of the committee of the fire department and the water supply of this city.

Mr. Hutson said he was pleased to note in looking over the map that a number of new mains had been installed since the visit of the engineers, and he said the mains were larger and more expensive than the underwriters could conscientiously call for. Lowell, he said, has a very good water supply, but according to the report one test at the corner of Gorham and Winter streets reduced the pressure from 67 pounds to 20 pounds after 8,000 gallons had been pumped. That reduction he held to be excessive.

In speaking of the fire apparatus, Mr. Hutson said at the time the report was written the city had four engines, some of which showed up very poorly and if the city depends on hose streams a complete preservo will be needed. He said a complete motor distributing system is much more desirable to the underwriters. At this point Mr. Thomas of the water department informed the speaker that all the dead ends in the city had been eliminated.

Mr. Hutson said the high service was particularly weak. "This can be remedied with more or less expense with two hydrants on each side of the gates of the high service, and at this rate fire service could be obtained."

Supt. Thomas asked the speaker if gasoline pumps for the high district of the city which includes about 200 houses would be of any benefit. He also asked if this would be better than improving the reservoir and the reply was in the affirmative. Mr. Hutson said the larger storage you get on an elevation the better it is for your city. Insurance companies consider five days' storage as a real good supply, and they don't care whether the price is higher or lower, providing the water is available with effective pressure in case of fire.

"As to fire department," continued Mr. Hutson, "I think it is recognized that motor apparatus is more economical than horse drawn vehicles. We do not recommend complete motorizing on account of the large expense involved, but we would like to see all cities completely motorized. We talk it but do not insist on it. The savings of money

GERTRUDE GEORGE RUSHED TO ST. JOHN'S HOSPITAL IN THE AMBULANCE THIS AFTERNOON

A woman who said she was Gertrude George and that her husband is a barber with a place of business in Middlesex street rushed into Frye & Crawford's drug store in Merrimack street about 1 o'clock this afternoon and said she had taken poison. The ambulance was summoned and the woman was taken to St. John's hospital.

Asked what kind of poison she had taken she said that she had swallowed a bicloride of mercury tablet. No report as to her condition was obtainable at the hospital as she had just arrived there at the time of going to press.

ALLIES DRIVEN BACK NORTHEAST OF ALBERT

French Trenches in Argonne Captured — Paris Disputes German Claim — Fighting Along the Aisne Rivalled in Ferocity That Along Yser

The German attack on the allies' front has shifted northward from Sion and yesterday there was a severe encounter in the region of Albert. Today's official notice says that the Germans attacking with bayonets drove the allies from positions northeast of Albert. In the Oissons region there is little activity. Several French trenches in the Argonne are said to have been captured.

Victories For Allies
The official statement from Paris disputes the German claim of victories in the Argonne saying that the attacks were repulsed. Several minor victories for the allies are reported, mostly in artillery engagements.

Fierce Fighting Along Aisne
Detailed reports of the battle along the Aisne supplementing the brief announcements of the French and German offices showed that the fighting rivalled in ferocity that which occurred along the Yser canal in Flanders when the Germans attempted to break through to the English channel although the number of men engaged was smaller.

Hand to Hand Encounters
There were hand to hand encounters of the most desperate nature, in which the French Moroccan regiments distinguished themselves, using their rifles as clubs after their bayonets had been bent or broken in the pitiless struggle.

Allied Front Stronger Than Ever
Advices from French sources say that the allied front in the positions taken up after the retreat, is stronger than ever. London suggests that the Germans may follow up their victory by inaugurating another forward movement. Berlin considers that the general offensive movement of the allies, said to have been ordered a month ago by General Joffre has broken down.

Russians' Victory Complete
Late reports from Petrograd emphasize the completeness of the victory said to have been gained over the Turkish troops. Of the forces at Karakish troops. Of the forces at Karakish troops. Of the forces at Karakish troops.

German Attack Russian
In Poland the Germans have again attacked the Russians west of Warsaw but apparently have been unable to break through the line of defense. In northern Poland the Russians continue to advance toward the Prussian border.

Gov. Carlson's Mate Will Act as "Assistant Governor"
DENVER, Col., Jan. 18.—Colorado is to have a woman "assistant governor."

Gov. George A. Carlson announced yesterday that he had appointed his wife to this position, and she will serve during his entire administration, putting in as many hours each day as does the governor.

Mrs. Carlson's chief duties will be to look after legislation relating to women and children, and the governor said yesterday that he would abide by her judgment in the disposition of these measures.

In addition to handling legislation, Mrs. Carlson will meet all women interested in legislation, hold conferences and perform the same duties in her particular sphere as will the governor in his own.

Mrs. Carlson is well fitted for the work, having been trained for a teacher, and she also is thoroughly conversant with law, because she has been her husband's confidante during his career as a lawyer and district attorney of Weld county, which he held at the time of his election.

"You see," said Mrs. Carlson, "the governor believes that the feminine viewpoint is as necessary in the administration of the state's affairs as the masculine. Both points of view are necessary in running a household, so why not in running a state?"

"I leave a large part of my boys' training to Mr. Carlson and he leaves the training of the girls of the family to me. Following the same theory he believes I am better fitted to look after the needs of the women and children of the state than he, a man."

"Don't you think that a woman who is competent to be the mother of four children is competent to have a hand in the affairs of state? I do."

"I am glad that my husband wants my help and I hope I shall be of real service to the women. Of course, he and I shall consult together. We always have."

INVESTIGATE WHEAT PRICES
WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—President Wilson, it became known today, included pooling agreements in the possible causes for the recent rise in the price of wheat and flour which he has directed Attorney General Gregory to investigate.

RAISE IN PRICE OF WHEAT
LONDON, Jan. 18.—An increase of 70 per cent in the price of wheat as compared with a year ago and similar advances in other foodstuffs are giving rise to a demand for some form of state control of the food supplies. The price of wheat is now higher than at any previous time in 30 years.

OSWALD VON UNTZ, FOR 60 YEARS A CARRIAGE PAINTER, WAS A NOBLEMAN
WILMINGTON, Del., Jan. 18.—Dying, Oswald von Untz, 81, disclosed yesterday to his daughter, Mrs. Rosalina Kraus, that he and she were descendants of a noble family of Alsace-Lorraine, whose fortune he might have shared. He died at her home, 1508 Lincoln street.

He had lived here 60 years as Oswald Untz, carriage builder, anything but a patrician.

Joseph Kauffman, who died here recently at 104, was a brother-in-law of Untz, and it is said, inherited from the estate which Untz repudiated.

Collins and Hogan carried the insurance on the property of Harry C. Kiltredge, recently damaged by fire.

BURN KENTUCKY CHURCH
NIGHT RIDERS WARN TOBACCO GROWERS NOT TO SELL UNDER $9 —INHABITANTS FEAR RAIDS
LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 18.—Word was received last night of a raid made in Christian county, Ky., by night riders from Tennessee, who burned a church near the border line, warned several tobacco growers not to sell their product under $9 for 100 pounds and ordered wholesale dealers to cut the price of flour.

Rewards have been offered by Kentucky and Tennessee officials for the capture of any of the riders, who call themselves "Coon Hunters."

The centre of the night riders' operations seems to have been in the vicinity of Indiana Mound and Big Rock, Ky. The church burned was at Indian Mound. According to reports, farmers who had contracted for the sale of their crops were notified they must not carry out such contracts unless they get $9 per 100 pounds. Farmers who had not sold were warned that they must not sell unless they get that price.

Up to this time the warnings not to deliver tobacco which had already been sold have been obeyed, but indications are now that farmers will deliver their crops and be prepared to meet the situation should trouble come.

County Judge Knight and County Attorney Smith of Christian county have issued a public statement declaring that night-riding must be stopped by force, if necessary. Judge Tyler of Montgomery county, Tenn., has offered a reward of $100 for each arrest and conviction and will ask Gov. Rye to double this.

FEDERAL LEAGUE SUIT
ROGER BRISNAN DENIES TRADING BALL PLAYER FOR A DOG
CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—Additional affidavits were filed today in the U. S. district court by various officials of organized baseball supporting their contention that the Federal league was not entitled to relief asked in its suit for the dissolution of the national commission and its affiliated clubs as violators of the federal anti-trust act.

Denies Trading Player For Dog
In one of the affidavits, Roger Brisan, now manager of the Chicago Nationals, denies that while manager of the St. Louis Nationals he traded Booth Hopper, a pitcher, for a bulldog, Roger, with much detail, told of meeting Hopper in Tennessee while on a hunting trip, and of trying out the pitcher on a training trip and of seeing the bulldog which he admired. The dog belonged to Hopper, the affidavit declared, and was offered by the owner to Roger. The affidavit then continues:

"I told him I could not use the dog as I then had five of my own. Just before the opening of the regular season, the then manager and owner of the Springfield, Ill., baseball club, came to St. Louis in search of a pitcher. I told him we had a had named Hopper, a pitcher, for a bulldog, Roger, with much detail, told of meeting Hopper in Tennessee while on a hunting trip, and of trying out the pitcher on a training trip and of seeing the bulldog which he admired. LIFE IN THE TRENCHES

GERMANS AND ENGLISHMEN SHOOK HANDS, SWAPPED TOBACCO AND TOLD STORIES

PARIS, Jan. 18.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press).—The following is sent from the trenches in northern France by a correspondent who volunteered for service with the British army at the beginning of the war:—

"Although there was no formal truce declared during the holiday season, the fighters here had several days of quiet, by tacit consent.

"Germans and Englishmen met on the plain field between the lines, shook hands, swapped tobacco, told stories, and were even planning an international football game when the weather turned bad. All day long there was much searching for souvenirs to send home, and hundreds of fragments of shell or broken equipment were picked up in sections of the field where ordinarily it would mean sure death for a soldier to show himself.

"All life firing stopped at twilight on Christmas eve. During the evening both sides placed candles and little bonfires as Christmas lights along the top of the trenches. When it was seen that neither side intended to take advantage of the temporary peace, the soldiers began to climb out of their trenches and took up positions in the bright moonlight on the flat ground in front. Back and forth across that two hundred yard field they greeted each other with wishes for a Merry Christmas. There was much cheering, speed-making, singing carols, and a little dancing. The Englishmen got out their hymn books, with which most of the soldiers are provided, and sang 'Lead Kindly Light,' 'Auld With Me,' and 'While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks By Night.' The hymns were interspersed with such favorites as 'Auld Melody' and 'Tipperary.'

Everybody Unarmed

"Gradually a few of the groups from the two sides drifted closer together. Everybody was unarmed. One of the foremost German groups waved a bottle of wine toward the nearest English group and invited them to join the party. After a moment or two the Englishmen started, over carrying a Christmas cake and a box of chocolates. The men shook hands all around, and immediately changed changing came from both sides of the field, where English and German alike had been anxiously watching the meeting. The group had a smoke and drink together, and very soon large parties of the late enemies were seen chatting together. All the time in the distance could be heard the sound of artillery fighting.

"The Englishmen swapped pipe tobacco for German cigars, and British candles for German chocolates. Later in the evening the Germans sent over to the British trenches a small Christmas tree, with various cheerful messages and little gifts tied on its branches.

Weather Stopped Game

"On Christmas day the British soldiers brought a football out in front of the trenches and invited the Germans to send a team over for a game during the afternoon. They promised to do this, but the weather—or their officers—prevented it.

"Soldiers unslinging their cameras and took snapshots of little groups of men from both sides hob-nobbing together. During the morning some of the gayer spirits organized what they called a 'fantastic parade,' led by a German youth who had somehow obtained possession of a high hat and dress suit. Among the paraders were two soldiers mounted on old bicycles without tires. The happy scene was rudely interrupted about one o'clock in the afternoon by the arrival of a big shell, fired from a battery several miles in the rear, which sent everybody scurrying back to the trenches for a time.

"Later in the afternoon British soldiers helped the enemy bury ten German soldiers whose bodies were found in a ditch in front of the German trench. They were killed a few days ago in an attempt on the English outpost."

WOOD'S BUSINESS COLLEGE HAS GROWN RAPIDLY—HISTORY OF THE SCHOOL

One year ago today witnessed the establishment of the thriving institution for commercial education which at present occupies practically the entire top floor of the Traders' Bank building at 40 Middlesex street and is favorably known throughout Lowell and vicinity as Wood's Business College.

The first step toward the opening of a business school was taken by Mr. Elliot F. Wood six years ago when he began teaching stenography and bookkeeping privately in his home. This modest beginning was successful to a degree that influenced Mr. Wood to engage rooms in the building at 40 Middlesex street and open an evening school for instruction in bookkeeping, stenography and typewriting, starting in September, 1913, with a large attendance.

Mr. Wood then realized the great opportunity which this field offered and accordingly on January 18, 1914, one year ago today, he established Wood's Business College. This met with even greater success and the school grew so rapidly in attendance that its founder was compelled to secure larger quarters on the fifth floor of the same building. In September, 1914, Mr. Wood resigned from a responsible position in a local bank to give his entire time to the college.

Such is the history of one of Lowell's most prominent educational institutions and the continued brilliant success of the college is certain.

Wood's Business College is most up-to-date in every particular, possessing the most approved conveniences for efficiency in teaching the commercial branches. In fact, efficiency is the keynote of the school's policy and is reflected in the progress of the students which has in every case been commendably rapid. Many of Mr. Wood's former students are now holding responsible positions in the business field.

The office of the school is a model business office. It is furnished in mahogany, white the walls, curtains and rugs are a rich green, producing an effect most pleasing. The main class room has individual desks and chairs for about 10 students and there is also a recitation room with lecture room chairs to accommodate about 20. The typewriting room contains about a dozen machines of various standard makes. One notable feature of the rooms is the abundance of light provided by the large windows. The large class room alone having nine of these. In the evening the class rooms are lighted in the latest approved manner by electric lamps which give a soft, though brilliant light.

The chief assistant to Mr. Wood is Miss Anna A. Conley, who has had a wide experience in business instruction. She specializes in bookkeeping, in which she is an expert. Miss Lillian Ingalls and Miss Agnes Allen are both competent teachers in their respective branches. Capable instruction in all the commercial branches is afforded at Wood's Business College. The subjects include shorthand, Isaac Pitman and Gregg systems, typewriting, bookkeeping, business English, finishing course and civil service.

There can be no doubt that Mr. Wood will enjoy well deserved success in his institution, and the present Wood's Business College is a commercial school of which Lowell may well be proud.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

Tom Linton and his Jungle Girls, who will appear in front line position at the B. F. Keith Theatre this week, will provide the liveliest sort of entertainment. Their particular theatrical sketch is "The Up-to-Date Missionary," in which Mr. Linton will appear as the individual who was sent into the heart of Africa, and who there met a lot of cannibals who didn't wish to be converted. Instead they prepared to end the life of the missionary, who was saved by falling in love with the queen of the cannibals. There are many chances for good comedy afforded by the piece, and the musical numbers are specially selected because of their catchiness. The heavy of action, pretty young women appearing in the production will add materially to the snapiness of the piece. Assisting Mr. Linton in the leading role will be Miss Grace Lindquist, who will be the jungle queen; George Townsend and Frank Austin.

Albert Perry & Co. will offer the satirical comedy, "Reno and Return," which has a very positive set of complications to it, and which will be well played. Mr. Perry has the role of the young man who tires of Reno, and who starts for Reno, Nevada, there to have the bonds cut. How he changes his mind, and decides to stick to his young wife is told in the little piece. There is much delicious comedy, and the situations are numerous. It is, in fact, a fine type of real comedy. As Dorothy Donnelly, who has appeared on the stage in Lowell's biggest drama theatre, will be seen in Henri Bernstein's "The Thief," in motion pictures. This extraordinary announcement has been received with favor, and people have made many inquiries as to the time of performances. The play is in four acts, and will be shown afternoons and evenings for two days only, at about 8 and 10 o'clock. No half-hearted attempts to show good stuff, but the real article is always exhibited. Rarely, if ever, has a cast of the uniform standing of that assembled by the producers of "The Thief" been brought together. The play is a genuine psychological and thrillingly called for no ordinary actors, in order to adequately portray the complicated conflict of emotions evolved. So Miss Donnelly secured at a great expense, as may be guessed, and to "play up" to her wonderful acting, an actor of sterling worth, Mr. Richard Buckle, who has been a very important male role. Miss Donnelly is probably the only actress in America capable of giving a worthy interpretation of this remarkable character. Among the other five roles are "Wild West Love," a droll Keystone comedy, and "The Scrub," a delightful college play. A 10-reel show.

THE LOWELL THEATRE

Comfortable accommodations, colds are often most serious STOP POSSIBLE COMPLICATIONS

The disregard of a cold has often brought many a regret. The fact of sneezing, coughing, or a fever should be warning enough that your system is in need of immediate attention. Certainly loss of sleep is most serious. It is a warning given by Nature. It is man's duty to himself to assist by doing his best to get rid of the cold. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, based on a scientific analysis of colds, is at your druggist. Buy a bottle today.

How to stop dandruff and loss of hair with Resinol

Here is a simple, inexpensive treatment that will almost always stop dandruff and scalp itching, and keep the hair thick, lustrous and

At night, spread the hair apart and rub a little Resinol Ointment into the scalp gently, with the tip of the finger. Repeat this until the whole scalp has been treated. Next morning, shampoo thoroughly with Resinol Soap and hot water. Work the creamy Resinol lather well into the scalp. Rinse with gradually cooler water, the last water being cold.

Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment easily had at all drug stores. For sample free write to Dept. 25, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

WHAT HORTENSE TOLD ME

Hortense says my hair is too oily and has been using the following lotion which she prepared herself, with splendid results:

Borate of soda, 1/2 oz.; Bicarbonate of soda, 1/2 oz.; Eau de Cologne, 2 oz.; Alcohol, 3 oz.; Tincture of cochineal, 1 dram; water, 12 ozs.

My invaluable maid has also mixed for me a fine curling fluid which I enjoy very much. It is made of a tablespoonful of bruised quinces to which a pint of hot water is poured over the seeds and the whole allowed to stand for several hours. The resultant mucilage may then be thinned with a few drops of essence of violet. The hair is moistened with the fluid before curling.

A splendid cleansing and softening fluid for the hands is recommended by Hortense. Use one tumbler of Indian meal, fifteen teaspoons of grated toilet soap, two teaspoons of orris root; two teaspoons of borax; one teaspoon of sachet powder. Mix well and sprinkle on the hands.

Another good lotion which she swears by is to put into a bottle two ounces of glycerine; two ounces of water; four table-spoons of lemon juice and a few drops of carbolic acid. Shake well. After washing and drying the hands, rub a little of the mixture into them.

To bleach the hands raw tomato rubbed over them will whiten them and this treatment is perfectly harmless. It can also be used on the face and it removes fruit or vegetable marks from the hands. Let it remain on a few minutes, then rinse off in hot water.

Hortense discovered a little brown spot on my neck made from a too tight collar and immediately began work. "First of all," she said, "with warm water, an agreeable soap and a rough washcloth, cleanse your neck. Rinse it with clear warm water and after drying it rub into the skin the cold cream for which the recipe is here given:

Rosewater, four ounces; almond oil, four ounces; spermaceti, one ounce; white wax, one ounce. Add the rosewater slowly, so that it will mix well. When the skin has absorbed all it possibly can, rub the remainder with a piece of muslin and rub slices of a freshly cut cucumber over the neck. An occasional application of diluted peroxide also helps to bleach the skin.

Hortense has a splendid set of directions for reducing the hips by exercise which she has very kindly allowed me to pass along to you. Stand erect, she says, with the arms straight out from the sides on a line with the shoulders. Now bend the body from the waist to the right as far as possible, keeping the arms perfectly rigid; try to make the arms touch the hips without lowering the position.

Then bend slowly back to the left side the same as the right. It will take a lot of practice before you can touch the hips, but each day you can bend a little further to the side and eventually be able to at last very nearly touch the hip.

Then stand on an ottoman on the left foot, let the right swing entirely clear of it. Now swing the right leg from the hip back and forth, gradually increasing the distance until it is as high as it can possibly be. Swing each leg the same way twenty or thirty times night and morning, keeping the knee perfectly straight.

Hortense knows of a simple home remedy which she says she is sure will reduce the bust and make it firm.

Run a piece of ice over the breasts for three minutes daily. It is slow work, reducing the bosom, but if you keep it bandaged snugly in thin rubber by day as well as by night, inside of a few weeks you will be possessed of a small bust.

This bandage should be taken off for a few moments at bedtime and upon arising in the morning, and the flesh rubbed over with alcohol. Unless you do this you will be apt to take cold.

Hortense has just made me some new bath bags with the most comfortable mixture I ever used. Here is the recipe she uses: Four pounds of fine oatmeal, two quarts of clean bran; one and one-half pounds of powdered orris root, one and one-half pounds of almond meal, one pound of white castile soap, powdered and dried; three ounces of primrose sachet.

Instead of placing in cheesecloth bags, which is a wasteful way of using the delightful meal, sprinkle a little of the mixture on the moistened wash cloth.

This was a favorite bath with the ancients, says Hortense, for the enaciated. Mix one tablespoon of lavender water with several times the amount of pure olive oil. Apply a little at a time and rub it well into the body with the entire hand, using a rotary motion. Keep the body warm while taking the treatment.

venient location and every courteous attention, as well as the very best photography are causing more and more discriminating motion picture lovers to become regular patrons at the Academy of Music. The main feature today, Tuesday and Wednesday is a Paramount in four reels. "The Aftermath," telling a splendid, heart interest story and featuring Owen Moore. The Warner feature today and Tuesday, produced in two parts, is "Lost in London," and featuring Ivy Close, who, in a contest recently held, was pronounced the most beautiful woman in all England. These two big photoplays are well worth seeing, and in addition to them will be shown three single reel pictures. HATS AND COLDS

"I often wonder how I manage to catch so many colds," complained Mrs. Up-to-date Dresser. "I am always careful to wear my rubbers on these stormy days, and yet I am always sniffling and blowing. I can't understand it."

"Maybe your feet are properly dressed but your head is not always cared for," replied Mrs. Common Sense. "For instance, I saw you yesterday with your fur hat on, and today you are wearing a mere covering of gold lace and wire. Surely it is colder today than yesterday."

And Mrs. Common Sense was right. So many of us are careful about our throats being protected, and our feet dry, but we carelessly change our hats without a thought. No two hats are very often alike in weight. A velvet hat that fits the head closely is warmer than a flaring brimmed one of silk. A fur hat is warmer than lace, and so it goes. Today we took our head into a fur toque, and spend most of the time in the hot stores, and tomorrow we go to the bridge party wearing the lace one. Donning the early straw hat after wearing the heavy velvet and fur ones is indeed a dangerous feat, and is usually followed by a disagreeable head cold. Care should be taken in the choice of the hats to suit the weather as well as an article of our wardrobe.

QUAIL DISEASE APPEARS AGAIN

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 18.—The third known outbreak of quail disease has been discovered by the bureau of animal industry in quail sent for examination from the National Zoological park. These birds were received a few days ago from two of the principal importers in widely separated parts of the country. Most of the quail, however, on the market are imported from Mexico and are entered at the port of Brownsville, Texas. Under these circumstances all outstanding permits have been cancelled and further importations suspended for this season.

HAIR COMING OUT?

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a 25-cent bottle of Danderine at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it into the scalp. After a few applications the hair stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff.

REV. H. E. BENTON IS INSTALLED

Universalist Church
Yesterday

Laymen Present —
Other Church News

Rev. Herbert Elmon Benton was formally installed as pastor of Grace Universalist church yesterday. Rev. F. A. Bissbee, D. D., editor of the Universalist Leader, preached the morning sermon, his subject being "The Ways of God in the World of Man." Rev. Clarence R. Skinner, the former pastor, presided at the exercises in the evening. Rev. Charles T. Billings of the Unitarian church, made the prayer.

Rev. C. Guy Robbins of Lawrence gave the address to the people. Speaking of the relations between a church and its minister, he said:

"First of all, you have entered into a business relation with him. He has agreed to serve you, and you, on your part, have agreed to compensate him for that service, to the extent of paying him a salary. As the month comes around, let the check be ready to put in his hand, that he may keep his own credit good and be a credit to you. It will tend to his peace of mind, and better service on his part. If you will relieve him of any uncertainty as to when he will receive his check. Moreover, do not let the financial burden of the church rest entirely upon him."

"Second, you have entered into relationship with him as your preacher. He is to preach to you the word of life, which is the gospel of Jesus Christ. He will interpret that gospel to you, and show you how to order your life in your relation to God, to each other, and in your relations with God. He will, each Sunday, well prepared for giving you his message. He will stand here not simply as a man, but as an instrument of God. He cannot give you the message, unless you fulfill your part. It is for you to be here, to hear the message, to catch the inspiration that will come from the knowledge that you are here, and interested in the message that he has for you."

"Again, you have entered into relations with him as your pastor. He will visit you in your homes, and enter into social relations with you. Treat him as a man among men. Do not regard him as a minister, or as a practical value. Give him your fellowship, your sympathy and your confidence."

"Again: In being your pastor, Mr. Benton's services will not be limited to the parish. He will have a work to do outside the limits of this parish. As a citizen of this municipality, there will be duties for him to perform. Do not limit him in those duties. Think of him as the representative of Grace church and in every way possible, help him work; and together, go forward to larger and better fields."

Rev. G. W. Pennington of Peabody, was delayed by a slight accident to his train, and his address to the minister was supplemented at this point by a brief word from the presiding officer, Mr. Skinner, who said he was not going to give Mr. Benton advice because he does not need it.

Rev. G. E. Leighton, the new state superintendent of Universalist churches, gave the welcome to the state. Rev. Mr. Pennington having arrived, gave his address to the minister at this point. He spoke of his first parish, where Mr. Benton was a boy in the Sunday school, and of the occasion of Mr. Benton's first installation, when he also gave the charge to the minister.

Rev. A. C. Ferrin, pastor of High Street Congregational church, representing the Federation of Churches, welcomed Mr. Benton to the city. Dr. G. Forrest Martin, vice chairman of the board of assessors, extended the welcome of the church to the new pastor. Rev. Caleb E. Fisher, D. D., brought greetings from the First Universalist church. The service was closed with the benediction by the new pastor.

First Baptist Church

In banking and commercial circles a wise man would be considered one who had accumulated a fund of wisdom, one who had attained important public office; in military affairs, one who had become a great military general; and among many young people one would be thought wise who had found how to have the greatest amount of fun by day and the most amusement by night. But a higher and better definition is found, declared Rev. A. C. Archibald, at the First Baptist church yesterday morning, in the Book of Proverbs, 11th chapter, 30th verse, where we are told, "He that winneth souls is wise." Then the preacher proceeded earnestly to show that soul winning is the greatest work of Christ, because it is the command of Christ; it was his own work and example; it is the only business in which can be claimed the fullness of the blessing of the Holy Spirit; it is the most beneficent work in the world and gives the largest return; it is a work anyone can do. Pastor Archibald mentioned many of the church organizations by name, saying that everyone should be linked to the idea of winning and saving souls. The fame of men in this world does not last long, he said, but we are told that they who be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament and they that win souls shall shine forever and ever.

First Congregational Church

A meeting preliminary to the Sunday evening services which are to be conducted by Rev. W. A. Bartlett, D. D., was held at the First Congregational church Sunday evening. The pastor, Rev. E. H. Newcomb, conducted the service and called attention to the three "I Am's" of St. Paul in Romans, 1: "I am a debtor," "I am ready," and "I am not ashamed." The chorus choir, under Alexander Leggett, sang very acceptably. Dr. Bartlett appealed to Christians to give up offering excuses for not being true to the master.

Anniversary of First
American Printer

The 200th anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin, father of printing in this country, was observed in a fitting manner by the members of the Lowell Typographical union Saturday evening, the affair taking the form of a "Franklin Night." The celebration was held in the union's quarters, Post 120 hall, Merrimack street, and was largely attended. The program consisted of a brief business meeting, supper, entertainment and an address on the life of Benjamin Franklin by the president of the organization, John V. Donoghue.

At the opening of the evening the following entertainment program was carried out much to the enjoyment of the large gathering:

A SLUGGISH LIVER NEEDS CARE

Someone has said that people with chronic liver complaint should be shut up away from humanity, for they are pesky little devils, and see through a glass darkly. Why? Because mental states depend upon physical states. Bilelessness, headaches, dizziness and constipation disappear after using Dr. King's New Life Pills. 25c at your druggist.

program closed with the entire assembly singing "Tipperary," led by former Commissioner Donnelly.

At the close of the entertainment an oyster supper was served and a brief business meeting was held. In the course of which an interesting report of the committee on sanitation was made by Vice-President C. P. Foster, the report covering every newspaper and job plant in the city. President Donoghue then delivered a very interesting address on the life of the man whose anniversary was being observed. His remarks were in part as follows:

"Benjamin Franklin was born in Boston, January 17, 1706. His father was an Englishman. His mother was the daughter of the Quaker poet of Nantucket, Peter Folger. He learned the art of printing with his brother, but they disagreeing, Benjamin left Boston at the age of 17 to seek employment in the big city of New York; but, alas, without avail. He retraced his steps and found himself in Philadelphia, the city where he spent most of his useful life, where he was later looked upon as a wise, prudent and sagacious man, full of much well-directed public spirit. In Philadelphia he worked at his trade of printer, and attracted the attention of Governor Keith as a very bright lad, so much so that the governor induced young Franklin at the age of 18 to go to England to purchase printing material with the express understanding that he was to receive on his return most of the government printing. A tempting offer, to be sure, to a young printer. Franklin, the luckless one, was deceived, and he remained in London about 13 months, sticking type. He returned to Philadelphia in 1726, re-establishing himself as a printer, working diligently at his trade, saving the while his precious dollars for the future. After three years, he started the Philadelphia Gazette and his influence on the great questions of the day gradually became a potent factor in the city of Brotherly Love, and throughout the colonies. In connection with the Gazette, he also published an almanac under the nom-de-plume of Richard Saunders, and it became widely known as 'Poor Richard's Almanac,' containing many wise and useful maxims, mostly from the ancients, pointing the way to wealth and wisdom. Today, almost 125 years after his death, some of these proverbs are oftentimes quoted and re-quoted in the current publications."

President Donoghue gave a very interesting account of Franklin's life and works dwelling particularly on the influence of his life upon those engaged in the art of printing. In conclusion he said:

"Thank God for a Franklin, for a Washington, a Lincoln, for the be-

WINGO AND DOOIN WILL BE CATCHERS
FOR CINCINNATI REDS THIS SEASON

CINCINNATI, Jan. 16.—Manager Herzog believes that the acquisition of Red Dooin, formerly manager of the Phillies, gives him the best catching staff in the league. He had already signed Ivy Wingo, formerly with the Cardinals, and regarded as one of the real stars of the game. It is possible that Herzog will dispose of Wingo now that he has Dooin, as there are weak spots on the Cincinnati team that need bolstering up. It is doubtful if he can trade Dooin, as his salary is $6000 a year, one of the largest salaries paid to a catcher. Wingo also draws a good stipend, as he had jumped to the Buffalo Federal league team and was induced to jump back only by a substantial increase in pay.

high influence they exerted in the turbulent and stormy days of this republic. Let us be worthy of their steel and be true to the ideals of that democracy, which Carlyle said 'to be the result of printing.' If we but hold fast to that which is good then God's church, God's school, God's method of gently binding men into commonwealths as brothers, shall endure until time shall be no more."

CATHOLIC NEWS

Notes of the Services at
Yesterday Morning

Members of the Holy Family sodality of St. Patrick's church attended the 7 o'clock mass yesterday morning and received communion in a body. The celebrant of the mass was Fr. Rev. Monsignor William O'Brien, P. R., who was assisted in distributing communion by Rev. Joseph A. Curtin.

The parish mass was celebrated by Rev. Timothy P. Callahan, while the sermon on the gospel of the day was delivered by Rev. Joseph A. Curtin.

The members of the C. Y. M. L. have made arrangements for a ladies' night to be held at their well appointed quarters in the parochial school building tomorrow evening and the affair promises to be one of the most successful of the season. An elaborate entertainment program has been arranged for the occasion and a feature of the evening will be dancing with music furnished by Miner's orchestra. The committee in charge has spared nothing to make the event one of the best of its kind in the history of the organization and it is being predicted that a record crowd will be in attendance. The committee is composed of the following: Harri Murray, chairman, Patrick Harrington, Patrick Condy and John McDermott.

St. Peter's
The celebrant of the parish mass at St. Peter's church yesterday was Rev. P. L. Grayton, the sermon being delivered by Rev. W. George Mullin.

The members of the Children's sodality received communion in a body at the 8:30 o'clock mass, which was celebrated by Rev. Daniel J. Heffernan. Next Sunday the members of the Children of Mary sodality will receive their monthly communion. The regular devotion to St. Rita will be held Tuesday evening and on Wednesday evening the Married Women's sodality will hold a meeting.

St. Michael's
Rev. John J. Shaw, pastor, was the celebrant of the parish mass at St. Michael's church yesterday morning, while the sermon on the gospel of the day was delivered by Rev. Francis J. Mullin. In the afternoon the members of the Children of Mary sodality held an interesting meeting, during which considerable business was transacted.

Sacred Heart
At the 8:30 o'clock mass at the Sacred Heart church yesterday morning the members of the Holy Angels sodality received communion in a body, the celebrant of the mass being Very Rev. T. Wada Smith, O. M. I. In the afternoon the members of the sodality assembled in the church and received valuable instructions from their spiritual director, Rev. T. Franklin Wood, O. M. I.

The parish mass was celebrated by Rev. John P. Flynn, O. M. I. The sermon, which was on the gospel of the day, was delivered by Rev. Bernard Fletcher, O. M. I.

St. Columba's
The 9:15 o'clock mass at St. Columba's church yesterday morning was celebrated by Rev. Thomas F. Buckley, who also made the announcements. The parish mass was celebrated by the pastor, Rev. John A. Degan. The members of the Tabernacle society will meet this evening to elect officers.

The committee in charge of the annual parish reunion, which will be held at Associate hall on Feb. 9, held an interesting meeting and decided that the affair take the form of a Farmers' ball. The committee will meet again Wednesday evening at the parish hall and all members are requested to be present.

St. Margaret's
Rev. H. C. Reardon celebrated high mass and delivered the sermon at St. Margaret's church yesterday. A committee has recently been appointed to look after arrangements for the annual junior party to be held at Lincoln hall on the evening of Feb. 5, and arrangements are progressing rapidly. The affair will be held particularly for the young folks and a special program will be prepared for the occasion.

THE SWEDISH LUTHERANS

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CHURCH HELD YESTERDAY—OFFICERS CHOSEN

The members of the Swedish Lutheran church held their annual meeting yesterday and transacted considerable business, the feature of the meeting being the election of officers. The assembly was presided over by Rev. L. Hakenson of Quincy and the election of officers resulted as follows:

Clerk, Edward Wikstrom; deacons for three years, Carl V. Nelson and Olof Lindquist; trustees for three years, N. J. Anderson and John Adolf Nelson; Sunday school superintendent, Frank E. Lindquist; organist and choir director, William C. Heller; delegate to New England conference, Frank E. Lindquist, and alternate, John Alfred Nelson; financial secretary, N. J. Anderson; treasurer, Oscar Wikstrom; collectors, H. E. Stromquist, Thure Gifferson, Uno Nyatrom, Albert Palm, Manfred Phil and Helmer Nyberg.

Reports of committees were heard and the meeting adjourned until Feb. 10. It was announced that the pulpit at the church next Sunday will be occupied by Dr. Gustaf Anderson, president of Augustana college and theological school of Rock Island, Ill., who is coming east to attend a meeting of the committee making arrangements for the celebration of the 400th anniversary of the reformation.

WHAT THE FRENCH MAID SAID

CORRECT TABLE LINEN

"Father is going to have four men to a real dinner next week," excitedly burst out Marjorie to Marie who was in the dining room of Marjorie's aunt's house looking over some table doilies for possible holes or stains.

"Are you to get it up?" asked Marie.

"Yes," answered Marjorie, "and I have it all planned out so far as the calling part is concerned, but I am not sure on how to dress the table. Will you tell me? Father is very particular on this occasion to have everything nice. I suppose I shall have to buy some new linen too."

"A fine damask tablecloth is always in order for dinner," began Marie, "and from the simplest—which, however, you should buy in the desired length with a woven border design."

"There is a wide range in values up to the elaborate dinner cloth, with a centre of heavy lace, a wide band of real linen falling well over the edge of the table and a deep edge of real lace bordering this."

"Dinner napkins, which are always very large, may be either with or without a monogram in the centre of one corner."

"Tell me about luncheon linen too while you are on the subject, won't you, Marie?" interrupted Marjorie.

"Providing the table itself is made of fine wood and kept in faultless condition," went on Marie, "it is most beautiful for breakfast and luncheon when left uncovered except for the doilies for plates and glasses at each place, and for the necessary centerpieces to match or harmonize."

"These may be of linen with drawn-work or embroidery, or of old fashioned crocheted lace or of fine lace and embroidery according to the other appointments of the table."

"No doilies are more generally satisfactory than those of good linen embroidered with a neat design and having a scalloped edge."

"I like, myself, hemstitched sets for breakfast and luncheon made of plain coarse linen, that is 'coarse' in the sense of loosely woven, not meaning to imply poor quality."

"You are a jewel," said Marjorie gratefully. "I shall be quite a perfect housekeeper soon with your help."

WHAT THE COOK SAYS

Cook is a regular walking encyclopedia on everything to do with house-keeping. Note the following: To test tea, burn a small quantity on a metal plate. With good tea the amount of ash remaining is small, then increasing in quantity as the quality of the sample tested deteriorates.

To keep the table salt dry and soft, dry it, then crush it under a rolling pin till perfectly free from lumps, and sift into a tablespoonful of cornstarch.

Keep a large salt shaker in the hot closet over the stove where it will be dry to have handy to salt meat and other things cooking on the stove.

Cook tells me that a pair of long wooden knitting needles are most excellent for draining doughnuts. As the doughnuts are fried slip them on a needle, and when it is full set it on the top of a pan to cool. The doughnuts do not crush and the lard drains off.

After cleaning brass or copper with salt and vinegar she says to rub it with olive oil and the metal will not tarnish for a long time.

If the top of the kerosene lamp becomes loosened, it may often be effectively tightened by applying a little melted alum.

To clean lamp glasses, Cook says, hold them over a pot of boiling water until well steamed, then polish with a dry duster. It is far less trouble than washing and the glasses very rarely break.

When two glass tumblers stick together put cold water in the inner one and set them into warm water; they will separate at once.

To clean windows satisfactorily a little turpentine dissolved in warm water is the best thing to use.

A great many women, Cook thinks, when preparing a meat for dinner which takes a long time to cook, never stop to consider that if they would cook enough at one time for two dinners, they would make a very material saving in their gas bills. The meat could be served in different form the second day, but the long period of cooking would not have to be repeated.

When frying pork chops, make a slash in the chop before frying; this enables the chop to lie flat to the pan.

Otherwise, the chop humps up, and does not cook.

Potatoes are more nutritious if boiled in their skins after being scrubbed clean; they can be skinned before taking to the table.

Every woman knows how very difficult it is to remove a baked fish from the pan, without breaking it. Cook says if it is laid upon a piece of greased cotton cloth and then placed in the pan the cloth easily can be lifted out with the platter, then slipped from beneath the fish without danger to the latter.

To keep fish fresh, clean the fish and sprinkle the inside with brown sugar. Keep the fish in a horizontal position so that the sugar may soak into it as much as possible. Half an ounce of sugar will be found quite sufficient for three pounds of fish. If fish is treated by this method before salting and smoking the flavor is much improved.

Fish may be scaled much better by first dipping them into boiling water for a minute.

Cook wants me to give you this recipe for eggless coffee gingerbread which she thinks is especially good:

Use one and one-half cupsful of molasses, one level teaspoonful of salt, two and three-quarter cupsful of flour, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of soda dissolved, two-third cupsful of cold coffee, one-half cupful melted shortening and one teaspoonful ginger.

This quantity will make two loaves. Half a loaf will answer for a small family.

lively smock. At the lower edge, however, it was cut to form a point at the front and one at the back, and it was banded with the dark fur. Beneath it was a slip or lining with sleeves of the same silk, and with skirt of the same and in fact both sleeves and skirt were quite plain. But at the neck was posed an exceedingly becoming flaring collar of the fur, and around the neck and armhole edges was a little band of white chiffon embroidered in green. Over the hips was draped a sash which, by virtue of confining the fullness of the over-garment, gave to it the long-waisted effect that is essential to the carrying out of the Mogen Age idea. A second gown, on the same general lines, was made of green velvet with long plain basque like bodice and full gathered skirt, but the skirt was quite unusual in the finish of bound scallops at the lower edge, and the basque was richly embroidered in gold and green threads below the waistline. Although the upper part and sleeves were plain save for bands of fur upon the sleeves, and for the flaring collar of fur that finished the half-round neck. The front and back of the bodice was without fullness, but at the sides there was a little fullness, and these sides were cleverly extended to form a girde lace terminated with a single long sash end falling at the left of the front.

HINTS ON NEEDLEWORK

HOME

The scalloped edge is designed to be padded and button-holed. The flowers, leaves and circles can be worked either in solid embroidery or as eyelets, or in a combination of solid work and eyelets. The stems are to be outlined.

To pad the scallops rapidly and effectively, work chain stitch between the lines, nearest at the center, lighter at the points; or cut a skein of thread, apply two or more strands over the center of the stamped pattern, keeping within the lines; tack here and there in couching style, gathering the threads closely together at each point of the scallops, then proceed to button-hole closely over the foundation. When making solid embroidery, first pad the stamped figures by darning backward and forward, lengthwise, and then cover closely with over and over stitches worked in the opposite direction from the padding.

In a general way, it may be said that for all afternoon and morning occasions, the coat suit is the prevailing costume, although long coats and coats of fur are much worn over gowns of velvet and of heavy silk, of broadcloth, and of various other materials. Whether or not the military influence that is in the air, has had its effect, the tailored suit is a comparatively simple creation this season. The over-elaborate, dressy costume that has been put forth until such name during the past few years, is not conspicuous. While a great deal of fur trimming is used, and while braid of every kind is in evidence, there is a certain air of simplicity, and that simplicity always means a handsome and distinctive result.

At a first glance, the thought is that everything flares, that from being straight and narrow, we have suddenly grown voluminous, for in one way or another, in the coat, in the tunic or in the skirt breadth, width and ripple effect is to be found. But while this is true, a second glance assures recognition of the fact that in many instances women are clinging to straight lines, for they are loathe to give up all the slenderness which it has taken years to achieve. A very handsome coat suit seen during an afternoon session was for example, made of black broadcloth with narrow skirt and oddly shaped tunic, and the tunic was laid in many plaits. Consequently, when the wearer walked, there was much flare and breadth, but when she stood, there were straight lines preserved. The coat extended only a little below the waist-line, but hung in straight lines and was trimmed with collar and cuffs of blue fox, while the accompanying hat was a real "tricorn" with crown of silver brocade velvet with up-turned brim of plain velvet banded with fur of the same sort. An exceedingly handsome suit was made of combined broadcloth and baby lamb velvet in a wonderful shade of mole, the skirt or as much of the skirt as could be seen was made of the fur velvet with long flaring tunic of the cloth and the coat again was a short one of velvet to match the skirt, with sleeves of cloth, for this is a season of contrasting sleeves, and these appear in the coat suits of more elaborate sort as well as in the gowns. Beaver is more conspicuous than it has been in many years. A very elegant costume of green velvet de laine was made with circular skirt finished with a wide band of beaver fur and a coat that hung in straight lines to below the hips where it was finished with a full skirt forming a deep band at each side and this skirt was edged with a narrow band of the beaver, the same fur being used for the choker collar and wide cuffs. Chokers are unquestionably a feature, and trimming of opossum bands, and with real Bradenburs closing the simple coat, while above the fur the tunic was richly embroidered in subdued colors. The skirt in this instance was narrow and plain, the tunic full and much flared, but open at the sides in a rather unusual way, and the fur was approximately four inches in width and the embroidery above perhaps a little more. The coat was the almost inevitable one for suits of the kind, simple, plain, but taking straight lines under the arms, with a band of fur finishing it at just about the hip line, and the choker and the bands on the sleeves were also of fur. Fur coats always are sumptuous and always can be trusted to appear at the horse show, let that occasion come when it may. An exquisite one that is fairly typical of prevailing styles was made of Persian lamb with trimming of sable, the body portion being just loose enough for comfort with moderately wide sleeves, but below the waist it spread, and flared to reveal a lining of rich white satin brocade. One of sable skins made a choker collar, and there were two bands of equal width on each sleeve, with a brush finishing each, and at the low waist-line was arranged entire skins that formed a belt. Beneath the coat was to be seen a skirt of black velvet, and there was a tiny little toque of soft pilable fur with trimming of paradise. Almost by its side, was seen a costume of heavy faile silk, in a wonderful shade of chestnut brown with trimming of brown fox. The skirt was circular, generous flared and banded with fur, and the coat was in half length, with fur at its lower edges. But in this instance, in place of a collar was worn a fur scarf, although bands of fur finished the close fitting sleeves. The hat was again a tiny little close-fitting turban, with two little feathers that drooped coquettishly at the back of the hat, in place of standing upright.

Beneath the fur coats were worn a great many dresses in what is known as the Mogen Age style, and velvet is unquestionably a favorite for such, although velvet is often combined with other materials. A beautiful gown seen during an evening session, was of the favorite fall silk in a rich shade of green, with trimming of skunk, and the important feature unquestionably was an overdress or tunic in the real Mogen Age style, for it was cut with round neck and without sleeves, and was much after the manner of the prim-

No truth has been emphasized more frequently of late by all who dwell on possible municipal improvements than that the arteries of traffic and travel leading into our city and out of it in every direction should be such as to create a good impression on the mind of the tourist, and if this be true of Rogers street, Gorham street and other streets, it is doubly true of the river road from Lawrence. Leading out of the down river city a new and beautiful road skirts the river through a stretch of untraveled scenery until Indian Orchard is reached. Here it connects with a very poor stretch of road or street which in the First street end, runs along a steep hill and makes a most unpromising entrance to the city after describing various dangerous curves.

In other words, the state has constructed a fine roadway to within a stone's throw of Lowell and left one unlovely and dangerous link over which our constantly increasing traffic must enter or depart. Lowell suffers in consequence, not only by comparison with the Lawrence approach but even more directly, owing to the dangerous condition of the First street entrance. Before the construction of the new state road the possible reconstruction of First street had been agitated, but experts declared that nothing could be done to make it entirely satisfactory. The logical thing for the city to do, therefore, is to agitate the construction of a new link to connect the city with the recently completed road which ends at Indian Orchard.

Senator Marchand has brought the matter to a head by introducing a bill in the present session of the legislature making provisions for such a new link along the river bank. This bill should be supported by all our legislators for the suggested improvement is a benefit that would react on the city and all its people. With the possibility of annexation and with the certainty of future development the riverside from here to the Dracut line is a splendid site for a riverside park, and the construction of a new road would be followed by property improvement that would justify any expenditure that may be made.

SOME GOOD SUGGESTIONS

If the municipal council should sit still for the coming year and refuse to do anything of a constructive nature, the stagnation cannot be attributed to a lack of good advice or remedial suggestion. Rarely have so many excellent reforms of a constructive and progressive nature been agitated, not only by the board of trade and by the press but even more directly by the chief executive. Many of the recommendations made by Mayor Murphy in connection with his recent statement of municipal finance are timely and the entire program that he outlined shows that he is awake to the needs of the city and recognizes the danger of municipal inactivity. Many of the suggestions he has given out have already been agitated by The Sun, and we may, therefore, consistently hope that they will not remain in theory but will be accepted by the council and acted on promptly, provided, however, they be carried out in a manner that will show satisfactory results for every dollar expended.

The problem of street lighting, to which the mayor devoted some space, certainly calls for improvement. A better arrangement for the business district would have a direct effect in making the city more attractive and making business better for our merchants, and a proportionate improvement in the residential district would remove certain dangers that are only too obvious to those who remember the many holdups of the past year. The Sun would gladly welcome a plan for the better lighting of the principal business streets of our city, as it has advocated such a plan in the past.

The recommendations for the improvement of the arteries of traffic to and from the city, for the smooth paving of Rogers street and other street repairs and reconstruction have also been advocated by this paper. They are in keeping with the spirit of the plans formulated and sent to the council by the board of trade and their adoption would be a decided public benefit. Another plan that would be generally approved, if the expense would not be too great, is the suggested selling of the land opposite city hall and the extension of Dummer street, in line with the ideals of the "city beautiful."

There can be no two views of the excellence of the suggestion for the erection of a contagious hospital. This is a matter on which the last year's council bungled and retrograded shamefully and it is high time that the reproach be wiped out. By its procrastination and disregard for the law Lowell in this matter has attracted a most unsavory notoriety, and there is every incentive for our authorities to select some good site and build a contagious hospital in accordance with the state law.

The recommendation that two permanent street repair gangs be organized and kept at this specific branch of the city's activity is one that The Sun has preached until the subject is threadbare. With such a gang, composed of competent and industrious men the city would be safer for pedestrians and drivers of all manner of vehicles, our streets would look better and wear longer, money would be saved and there would be fewer law-suits. Here is something that ought to be acted on without delay.

The recommendation that the sewer problems of Wigginsville and South Lowell be attended to outlines a decided requirement, but the project would be a very expensive one. Were it to be adopted that other clause which states that less money be appropriated for sewers generally would be nullified. Yet, many prominent and well-spirited citizens believe that the city does wisely in attending to the sewer problems of all its sections as attention is generally followed by

In all of these matters and others more or less related there is a definite program of improvement which calls for attention and activity at city hall. The city cannot progress if we simply attend to routine business. To advance we must wipe out abuses and keep in line with progressive communities everywhere. The Sun congratulates the mayor in favoring so many of the reforms it has steadily advocated and will support the council in putting them into effect.

It is to be regretted that Mayor Murphy in making so many suggestions for future activities, many of them to meet public necessity, did not see fit to favor the annexation of all or the most desirable portion of Dracut as a very important and essential step in the progress of our city. But the mayor is but one of five members of the municipal council that may have to deal with the matter and he is no more responsible for the action of the entire body on any question than is any other member. Hence his opposition does not necessarily indicate the attitude of the whole council. The annexation of Dracut is bound to come in spite of all opposition because we need a convenient outlet for spontaneous growth and as Dracut lies nearest to the business centre, we should take at least a part of it in order to have a compact city rather than one like a big circle with an important segment cut off. The annexation of Dracut is bound to come.

FOR FIRE PROTECTION

The plan submitted by the Locks and Canals corporation to the municipal council whereby the canal system and the municipal water system might be so combined that the danger of conflagrations in the mills would be lessened is worthy of deep consideration, and if found feasible and desirable, of adoption. Remembering the protests that followed the alleged merging of the two systems in the city mains in the past, the Lowell public will not approve of the present scheme until it is cleared of the slightest suspicion of danger, but if it is certain that the combination could be effected with sufficient safeguards to health, there is no good reason why the request of the Locks and Canals company should be refused.

As submitted by Engineer Safford the plan is for the adoption of such a system of valves as would entirely protect the city supply while permitting the city to turn its water freely into the pipes of the private company in emergencies. These valves would let the water run only in one direction and pressure from the other direction would close the valves. To provide for the proper supervision of the valves and connections a system of inspection would be arranged whereby it could be readily ascertained if any canal water was leaking into the city mains. If the system is absolutely reliable and if constant and regular supervision is possible, it might be adopted with advantage. If there is no danger to public health, Lowell should do everything in reason to prevent a great conflagration in the mills which might throw thousands out of employment and put a heavy burden on the community. The plan is one that the public would approve if backed by the support of disinterested experts.

STOP THAT COUGH—NOW

When you catch cold, or begin to cough, the first thing to do is to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. It penetrates the linings of the throat and lungs and fights the germs of the disease, giving quick relief and natural healing. "Our whole family depend on Pink Pills for Coughs and Colds," writes Mr. E. Williams, Ham-liton, Ohio. "It always helps. Use at your drugist."

TO AID B. AND M.

The one clause of Governor Walsh's inaugural which was universally commended was that which contained his suggestion that instead of opposing the reconstruction of the Boston and Maine railroad by passing disruptive legislation, the state should do everything possible to help its reorganization by aiding those who are striving to repair the wounds made by past mistakes and persistent public bouding. The time has come when nothing is to be gained by further investigations or prohibitive laws, and when a great deal may be done by active and practical attention on the part of the legislature and friendly co-operation on the part of the public.

The governor has followed up his inaugural suggestion by standing sponsor for a bill which will present to the legislature in a few days, embodying his ideas of constructive legislative aid. Though the details have not yet been made public, the bill is said to be acceptable to the state officials, the trustees of the railroad and the federal department of justice. If so, it ought to be supported by the public which needs no further lesson on the effect of legislative activity on contrary lines, as demonstrated strikingly in the case of the New Haven railroad.

In explaining his bill, Governor Walsh said that what is most essential is that the trustees of the railroad be given authority to proceed with the reorganization of the property without having the shadow of an over-vigilant legislature forever before them. There can be no great danger in this as the railroad has seen the results of unwise management and evasion of law too strikingly demonstrated to be ignored. All question of a receivership has apparently been abandoned and the keynote of the whole situation as seen by the trustees and as seen by the governor is optimism.

It is not often that the number of dead and injured, following a great natural catastrophe, mounts higher with each report, but this seems to be the case in accounts of the Italian earthquake. Were the misery and destruction in one city, as at many times in the past, it could be relieved the more easily, but in this instance scores of cities and towns scattered over a wide area have been almost entirely ruined with an amazing loss of life. The earthquake will go down in history as one of the most disastrous up to this time. Its direct effect will, in all probability, put all thoughts of participating in the war out of the minds of the Italian public.

STUDY AND EXERCISE

Study does not hurt a child unless the study time is taken from time that should be spent in out-of-door exercises.

Overstudy and lack of exercise make thin, bloodless children. It is a combination that provokes St. Vitus' dance.

If your child is thin and pale, listless, inattentive, has a fickle appetite and is unable to stand still or sit still, you must remember that health is even more important than education.

See to it at once that the patient does not overstudy, gets at least two hours out-of-door exercise every day, sleeps ten hours out of every twenty-four and takes a non-alcoholic tonic like Dr. Williams' Pink Pills until the color returns to cheeks and lips and the appetite becomes normal.

For growing children who become pale and thin Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are not only safe but in the great majority of cases they are the very best tonic that can be taken. They build up the blood and strengthen the nerves and assist nature in keeping pace with rapid growth.

The Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., will send you two books on the blood and nerves if you mention this paper. If your child is very young ask for the booklet "The Care of the Baby." Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

SEEN AND HEARD

NO LAND WIRELESS

A Swiss officer who spends most of the year in an Alpine fortress says that wireless telegraphy is not being employed on land.

"In peace," he says, "we are constantly receiving wireless messages in the Alps from liners in the Atlantic, and at the beginning of the war we received (involuntarily) many military messages in cipher, both from Germany and France. But they have stopped. The armies have found that wireless messages are too dangerous, and they have been replaced by the telephone at the front."

GUNPOWDER NO RAIN PRODUCER

English scientists have again been compelled to assure the public that neither the smell of powder nor the concussion of gun fire has the slightest connection with the rainfall. From several sources it has been ascertained that the heavy and persistent rains recently experienced in Southern England and Northern France were attributed to atmospheric disturbances produced by artillery fire at the seat of war.

Like the supposed influence of the moon upon the weather, the popular belief that powder brings rain is baseless," writes a scientist in the Times. "About four years ago the First Lord of the Admiralty was gravely asked in the house of commons whether he would instruct the fleet to carry out its heavy gun practice at some other period of the year than in the middle of the harvest time, when the resultant heavy rains may cause serious loss to the farming community." The idea is absolutely without foundation. Experiments made in America and on the continent show that in dry weather no amount of concession has the slightest effect in the production of rain."

WAY TO FORTUNE

"The Germans, lacking gasoline, are making a substitute for their automobiles out of fat," said a local automobile dealer in the hands of the Germans with their submarines and Zeppelins and Taubas and what not, certainly put modern progress to good use.

"In this knack of turning all sorts of modern things to good use the Germans are like the inventor who visited the capitalist and said: 'I've got an invention here that will make you fortunes. It is an alarm clock that we can guarantee—that we can positively guarantee—for it will make every single purchaser jump out of bed like a shot.' 'Hump. That's what they all say. But here's here's here's,' said the skeptical capitalist. 'She don't ring,' said the inventor, smiling proudly. She honks.'—Exchange.

LADY LOOKABOUT

The Boston board of health has taken a very wise move in issuing an order to prevent children from playing over rubbish in the various dumps of the city. Not only are children who are thus employed liable to contract and spread disease, but a far greater injury both to them and to the community is wrought. Students of sociology have followed cases and have learned that many plunders and sneak thieves received their training on dumps. A few cents given a small boy for a bit of lead pipe or a few rags, encourages him to continue his pilfering in new fields, and eventually we find him in police court.

A short time ago, The Sun published an able editorial on this subject, calling the attention of parents to the ways of wrong-doing which offer themselves to children who are allowed to pick over the rubbish on dumps.

Getting Out the Vote

I am glad Governor Walsh has considered the matter of conveying voters to the polls in carriages and automobiles on election day, of sufficient importance to dwell upon it in his inaugural address. It has always struck me as lazy on the part of a voter in good health to be seen on election day in the conveyance of a candidate who, in order to secure his vote must tote the elector to and from his home. Only a lazy man would allow it. It is to lead the franchise is wasted on electors who must be coaxed, wheeled, bribed, practically, to make them use it.

In the case of the aged and infirm, it is, of course, another matter, and they deserve it as a matter of courtesy, but even in these cases, it seems that the city should provide the conveyance, and thus relieve the candidate of the expense, and the voter of the compulsion to place him under to vote as his benefactor dictates.

I have in mind two or three able-bodied men in my own neighborhood who boldly assert that if their vote is worth anything to a candidate it is worth nothing after it has been counted. The real reason for this is that the vote of one of these men counts just the same as the vote of a white man who would scorn to ride to the polling booth. Why cannot the different candidates make an agreement among themselves to eliminate this feature of their campaigns?

The Immigration Question

In connection with the controversies heard from many sides in regard to the literacy test proposed against immigrants, it may be interesting to note that two leading citizens of the country, one representing wide experience with the practical phases of immigration, and the other, a man whose name is known to all, have declared themselves opposed to the bill. These men are Chas. Nagel, secretary of commerce and labor, and Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard university, the latter sane on every subject save that of religion, on which he appears to be as much of a pagan as any of the old Romans.

Mr. Nagel places himself on record as being unqualifiedly opposed to the literacy test. To quote his exact words: "I care more for the sound body and mind and the straight look out of the eye, and the ability and willingness to work, than for any other test that can be given."

Mr. Eliot says: "The only questions which are appropriate are: Is the healthy, strong desirous of earning a good living? Many illiterates have common sense; sound bodies, and good characters. Indeed, it is not clear that the increase in much the amount of common sense which nature gave the individual."

These two opinions, coinciding as they do, should carry weight in the deciding of the question. It is absurd for the rank and file of the American people to close the doors of our country to the immigrant who fails to pass a literacy test, when none of us need go very far back to find his ancestors, many of them innocent of the very rudiments of the three R's, landing at Castle Garden, or some other equally historic point, and making good from the start.

Give over the foreigner, who, if he cannot himself be fully Americanized, is anxious to have his children assimilate all we can offer them, with a view to becoming the citizens of the next generation, and who has the straight look out of the eye. That is the part of Mr. Nagel's opinion I like the best.

Billboard Nuisance

That the billboard has become frankly a nuisance, none can deny, and that the planning board may be successful in removing it from the urban landscape is a possibility. The billboard is a legitimate institution, its existence is not discordant with any law or ordinance. We have a right to assume that the city owners have formed with every rule of the public buildings department and of the fire commissioners. Therefore, it is not unconstitutional and it is not in restraint of trade to advocate placing such a high tax on these unsightly objects, that their use must be discontinued. Now none is more opposed to these disagreeable adjuncts to our city buildings and streets than I, and more than I have I berated them with my pen, for presenting so invitingly to the attention of our impressionable children and youths, beer, tobacco, cigars and cheap shoes. Yet a sense of fairness compels me to observe that the recommendation of the planning board that they be taxed out of existence, savors of the high handed, landlording, and worthy of a republican form of government. Therefore, the city has not met with any particular difficulty in passing an ordinance when it was considered necessary to the public welfare. Why not resort to this means of getting rid of the billboard?

As to Fire Prevention

Since the Salem fire many building restrictions, some new, others simply revived, are being enforced in order to prevent repetition of the disaster. Boston's fire commissioner is trying to secure legislation against the use of the wooden shingle, not only in Boston, but in the 22 cities and towns which comprise the metropolitan district. Now that New York city has been the scene of a dreadful subway accident, for which the shingle streets were largely responsible, the city government is legislating the wooden car out of existence. When a fire of any consequence occurs in Lowell for a few days following there is an unusual sale of fire extinguishers, and then the incident is forgotten.

It is too bad a dreadful accident must occur before we rouse ourselves to an appreciation of our laxity in the way of prevention.

Votes for Women

Jan. 11, 9:30 a. m. I have just finished perusing the evening papers and they report that all Washington is agog with excitement over the suffrage amendment which is to be voted on tomorrow. Antis have come from across the country to preach the "anti" doctrine. "Home-keeping husbands are happiest," "Wasting paradoxes, I call them. They assert that the resolution will be defeated by more than two-thirds majority, while the suffragists are making no claims. They know they will lose. They realize that the time is hardly ripe for success as yet. The campaign of educating the public to recognize the value of woman's help in the affairs of any kind which touch on the welfare of home and family, and therefore of state, has not as yet progressed sufficiently far to insure the passage of the amendment. Victory not ultimately, but at the present time, is as far from their minds as from the minds of the anti, yet they willingly go forth to defeat, knowing that only by keeping their cause at all times before the attention of the law-makers, can they eventually attain success.

Personally I do not think the amendment will be defeated by so large a majority. It is safe to assume that the representatives from those states where suffrage for women has already passed successfully the experimental stage, will vote for the resolution, and surely the champions of the cause, even though in the minority, are not confined to these states alone.

More than one paper, I observe, commends President Wilson for the irrevocable pronouncement he has now made for the sixth time that suffrage for women is a question each state should settle for itself.

This project of "state rights" on issues purely national has been tried out before now. As long ago as 1836, the state asserted that any state not recognizing suffrage for women had no goods as required by national law. This was when Governor Hayne of South Carolina threatened that if the government should use force in executing so distasteful a law, his state should secede. The ensuing controversy was the occasion of Daniel Webster's famous "Reply to Hayne." In this day known as the most remarkable speech ever made in the American congress, and by which the execution of the national tariff law was accomplished in South Carolina and the Union remained intact.

Again, later, when slavery was the burning issue, each state tried to maintain that she alone held the right to decide whether she would be a slave or a free state. In asserting the authority of the nation in issues national, the Civil war resulted, and when the smoke of battle had cleared, slavery had been abolished, national law prevailed over state rights, and again the nation was intact.

Thus it may be seen that from time to time the states have attempted to settle for themselves questions of national moment, and while things went on in a make-shift style for a time, in every case the United States government was at length compelled to step in and settle the question once for all.

For a while, equal suffrage may hang fire as a state issue, but sooner or later, I believe, it will be recognized as a national issue, as was the enfranchisement of the negro, and he treated accordingly.

January 12, 9:30 a. m. Low hanging clouds and a cold, heavy rain falling in local politics these are omens of democratic victory, and as I recall the democratic majority in the house at the present time, I am encouraged. Perhaps the same spirit that influences the local democrat to emulate Ajax and defy the elements may also have the same effect on his national brother, for democrats as a body are not wholly opposed to suffrage, at least on a state issue.

If only I knew if it is raining in Washington! If only I knew if the weather man is an anti! With impatience I await the evening papers.

Same day, 7:30 p. m. Such a long day! I have just learned that the suffrage amendment was killed, 204 to 174. I protest the word "killed." It was not killed. It was only beaten and there is a great difference. If you are killed, you are done for forever, but if you are only beaten, your chances of "coming back" are excellent.

As I look over the returns tabulated by parties, I conclude that it was a fair day in Washington, and that the weather man is an anti, for I find that 174 democrats voted against and 204 for the resolution. It must have been an exceptionally good day in the capital city. Still there is an excuse for this delinquency. Their leader, without commenting on the merits of the cause, spoke for his party when he asserted that he considered suffrage a state issue.

"The republican party leader was one of the chief speakers in favor, and his party voted 72 for and 33 against. A two-thirds vote is required to pass the resolution.

The measure, therefore, really was defeated by 73 votes, but the anti's failed of the two-thirds vote they claimed by 45 votes.

Well, the cause may be defeated, beaten, if you will, for the present, but "killed," never!

SAVED FROM SHIPWRECK

19 Lassoed in Gale—Men From Steel Bark Pilgrim Tell of Disaster Off Virginia Capes

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Thirteen men of the American steel bark Pilgrim, which originally was the old British bark Gael and was transferred to American registry several months ago, arrived here yesterday by the American liner St. Louis. They abandoned the Pilgrim about 350 miles east of the Virginia capes on Dec. 14 while she was almost on her beam ends in a fierce southeast gale.

All hands, save the cabin boy, Earl Hoyd of Bristol, 17, who was swept from the forward rigging and lost when the blast drove the ship down, were lassoed from the wreck by the Norwegian cotton steamship Tholma, from Mjølle to Copenhagen.

When the Tholma saw the Pilgrim's signal of distress, a tar barrel blazing from the poop deck, a living gale was vented from putting out a boat. It took six hours to get lines aboard the wreck and rescue all the 19 men. Every one leaped himself in a bowline, jumped and was dragged through the combbers to the Tholma, which was hoisted to about 30 yards away. All were landed at Kilsval on Jan. 1.

The men who told yesterday the yarn of the Pilgrim's tribulations said she was making an effort to leave to and was rolling and pitching violently when her pebble ballast shifted and she was knocked down to port almost as her beam ends. The skipper, Capt. A. A. Sorn, and Mate L. C. Trefrey were aft and Second Mate Blacksmith was forward. The men say the second mate was the most cheerful man in the ship's company and the skipper was inclined to pessimism.

The port watch was below and the optimistic second mate made his way to the forecastle companion way and yelled, "All hands on deck!" They had been turned out of their bunks by the heeling of the ship and they were on the way to the deck even before the second mate had shouted.

The blast increased and the old bark reeled further over to port. The cabin boy was snatched from the forward rigging into the tumult and soon disappeared. For more than an hour the men were waiting along the plates of the starboard side of the vessel. The skipper remarked that it was no use trying to do anything, as the ship was gone. The cheerful second mate volunteered to make an effort and he lowered men on lines down the churning deck of the cargo ship. They came up with axes and hacked at the wreckage or starboard shrouds. It was expected the masts, relieved of the support of the starboard rigging, would go by the board and that the ship would right. The masts of steel did not go, but the ship came up about four feet.

At a o'clock the next morning in response to the blazing tar barrel signal the Tholma came within halting distance and arranged the rescue. The castaways believed the Pilgrim would soon founder, but they heard before sailing from Liverpool that the derrick was still afloat on Sun. 5. When she evened up, the ship was hoisted, deck awash, by the Italian steamship Tichino in the path of navigation, about 125 miles from the scene of her mishap.

DOCKET IN POLICE COURT

Charged with the larceny of forty dollars from his room mate, Christos Preveras was arraigned before Judge Enright in the local court this forenoon and through his attorney, William A. Hogan, entered a plea of not guilty. The case was continued until Saturday for trial.

The complainant in the case is Vaghius Photopoulos. It will be recalled that Preveras and Photopoulos were recently adjudged guilty of assault and battery on a young woman in that they seized her as she was returning from work about 5:30 o'clock one evening and carried her off in an automobile. The case was a mystery to the police for a time but later the young woman appeared in the clerk's office and asked for warrants against the two men, stating that they attempted to take her to a nearby city in the automobile but her strenuous objection caused them to return to this city. Photopoulos, it was alleged, had been keeping company with the young woman and Preveras was assisting him in carrying out his plans of matrimony.

Since that time, the police allege, the two men have been very good friends, rooming together and spending much time in each other's company. Last Saturday morning, according to the complainant, he left his room to go to work leaving the sum of $40 tucked away in a corner of his room. Upon his return from work he missed the money and reported the matter to the police. Sergeant Pettie was detailed on the case and yesterday arrested Preveras, who was this morning accused of the larceny.

Sentenced For Larceny

The alleged Moody street hold-up on the night of January 9, when it is claimed Joseph Corbin of 41 Prince street was knocked down and robbed of $250 was also in court today when Narcisse Bourret was found guilty of larceny in connection with the matter and sentenced to four months in the house of correction.

The complainant testified that as he was going home about 12 o'clock on the night in question he was attacked by four or five men and upon coming to his senses found that he had been robbed of a small amount of money. He could not identify any of the men. He said that he did not report the case to the police but gave the story to a representative of The Sun.

Joseph Denault, Adalard Gervais and George Coutu testified that as they were returning from a party late Saturday night their attention was attracted to the corner of Moody and Colburn streets, where Corbin was lying on the street with two or three men standing around him. They all stated that Bourret was one of the men. None of the witnesses saw anyone take money from Corbin's pocket, they said, but in the struggle a bottle was broken and they witnessed men remove the broken glass from Corbin's pocket.

When Bourret was called to the witness stand to testify in his own behalf he said that he was intoxicated on the night of the trouble and could not remember all that occurred. He admitted having a part in knocking the complainant down but denied taking any money.

Larceny of Cloth

Edward S. Passoff of Boston pleaded guilty to a complaint charging him with the larceny of three and one-half yards of cloth from Harry Raymond of Gorham street tailor, on last Saturday. Passoff, who is but 18 years of age, said that he came to Lowell Saturday, got drunk and could not remember what occurred.

Patrolmen Noonan and Conney did not believe the young man was so drunk, however. The former said that Passoff went into Raymond's store to look over some goods and while the clerks were busy, he picked up a piece of black cloth and started to take it away with him. The policeman splashed him in the act and gave chase, following him through Gorham street to Appleton street, where Patrolman Conney joined him. The defendant was apprehended and placed under arrest.

When questioned relative to his home, the defendant admitted that he registered at the station under a fictitious name. He said this was done so that his mother would not hear of his wrong doings. He pleaded with the court not to notify his parents of his whereabouts and was informed that he would be given as much right in this respect as possible. The case was continued until Wednesday for further investigation.

Disorderly Conduct

Two complaints were lodged against Philip Dussault and Charles Queltette, both aged about 21 years, one accusing them with drunkenness and the other with being idle and disorderly persons. Each denied the latter count but after Patrolmen Breaux, Hessian, Regan and Lemay had testified His Honor was convinced that the young men spent too much time in barrooms and he ordered each sentenced to the house of correction for four months.

Larceny and Non Support

Charles Lafavey pleaded guilty to the larceny of $40 from Edmund Berger. It was announced that an agreement between the parties was about to be reached and the case was continued for two months.

John C. Cox was arraigned charged with drunkenness and non-support of his wife, Catherine E. Mrs. Cox testified that she had received no money from her husband since October 1. She said she was heavily indebted to neighbors his two children, a boy and a girl, were in the house of correction for four months on the non support charge while the drunkenness complaint was placed on file.

Albert Patch was brought before the court on continuance for the alleged larceny of goods from the store of J. A. Pollard's store. A representative of the store informed Judge Enright that the case had been investigated and Mr. Pollard did not wish to prosecute the defendant. The case was ordered placed on file.

John C. Cox was arraigned charged with drunkenness and non-support of his wife, Catherine E. Mrs. Cox testified that she had received no money from her husband since October 1. She said she was heavily indebted to neighbors his two children, a boy and a girl, were in the house of correction for four months on the non support charge while the drunkenness complaint was placed on file.

COUPLE STARVED TO DEATH

—Man Found Claspng Body of Wife

PASSAIC, N. J., Jan. 18.—Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Stevens Farley of 178 Passaic street, who had not been seen for several days and who found this house apparently locked and deserted when they called, became uneasy and Frank McGuire, owner of the house, suggested to Policeman Vanderhoven that he investigate. He knew that Farley, a mechanic, had been out of work for months, but not until yesterday did he suspect that all might not be well. Farley never complained, and Mrs. Farley had always seemed cheerful when McGuire saw her.

With Vanderhoven, Mr. McGuire broke into the house yesterday. There was no one in the front rooms, but they heard someone in a bedroom breathing heavily and they stepped eagerly toward the room, thinking to surprise Farley asleep. They found him, not asleep, but in coma. In his arms was clasped the body of his wife. Starved to Death.

A doctor later said Mrs. Farley had been dead for several days and that she had starved to death. There was not a bit of food in the house. The Farleys, too proud to beg or to acknowledge their predicament to their friends, had eaten the last of their food and had lain down together to die.

Farley was taken in an ambulance to St. Mary's hospital. He was comatose at the time and he rushed along, but as it drew up before the hospital he died.

The Farleys had lived in this town for years. Farley came from New York and worked in various mills here. He made good wages and both he and his wife were members of St. Nicholas' church. Years ago they had been active in church work and had a great interest in this line had been more limited and their friends in the church saw less and less of them.

There were many persons who called occasionally on the couple, and when they learned that Farley had lost his employment they made veiled hints at helping the couple. The offers never were accepted. The Farleys gave the impression that they were well able to weather the financial storm, and not one of their friends ever suspected that they could be without food.

According to the doctors, Mrs. Farley had been dead for three days at least, and it was supposed that all this time Farley held her body in his arms while he waited for death himself. Farley was 50 years old and his wife two years younger. That he should have lived several days after his wife showed he was strong enough to call help had he wished. Apparently, while he made plans for his life, he had determined to make a last effort to save it after weeks of searching for work had proved unavailing.

ROME, Jan. 15.—Rescue work throughout the wilderness created by the earthquake last Wednesday continues slowly and under great difficulties. Each reported excavation serves to verify earlier reports of the probable casualties, though here and there despite the fact that five days have elapsed since the catastrophic living victims are being released from their prisons of crumbling plaster and fallen timbers.

Thousands of soldiers and civilians in great numbers including many members of the nobility gradually are systematically the relief work and are getting food and shelter supplies over the obstructed roads to stricken towns and villages.

Pope Has Fund of $4,000,000

WINTER CAMP SCENE IN SERVA AND WOUNDED SOLDIERS AT ENTERTAINMENT IN HOSPITAL

One of these pictures shows a typical winter camp scene in Serbia. The sentinel stands still and silent like a frozen statue—and as a matter of fact he probably was nearly frozen when this picture was taken. The other view is of wounded English soldiers enjoying an entertainment in the ballroom of the Hotel Astoria, Paris, now a hospital. English singers were entertaining the men, some of whom were on cots in the front.

DRANK POISON BREAK IN SEWER

Joseph Beasky Made a Dangerous Work for the Sewer Men - School Taking a Drink

Joseph Beasky of 117 Howard street is at St. John's hospital suffering from the effects of a poisonous substance which he drank at noon today. The doctors at the hospital were unable to state the contents of the liquid which the man took, but it was stated that his condition was not very serious.

Mr. Beasky resides with his family on Howard street and the poison was taken while all were eating dinner today. It is thought that the man drank the substance by mistake. The ambulance was summoned and he was rushed to St. John's hospital where the doctors worked over him for some time.

WOMAN IS IDENTIFIED

SHE HAD $170 IN HER POSSESSION WITH OTHER VALUABLES—SENT TO HOSPITAL

The woman found sitting in the rest room of the Bon Marche early Saturday evening and later taken to the police station where she was held for identification, has been identified as Hattie A. Follet, aged 64 years, formerly a house-keeper for a family named Heland on Mammoth road. She was taken to the Chelmsford street hospital for further investigation.

When Mrs. Follet was booked at the police station, it was found that she carried in her pocket a small gold watch with the name "H. A. Follet" engraved on it, besides a thimble and other articles. For some time no clue to her identity could be learned by the police or by Dr. M. A. Tighe, who diagnosed the case as that of senile dementia. Later, however, Mrs. Heland and others identified the woman and today she was removed to the Chelmsford street hospital.

WOMEN'S PRISON URGED

COMMISSIONER WADE OF NEW YORK RECOMMENDS THAT IT BE BUILT ON A FARM SITE

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 18.—The construction of a new state prison for women on a farm site in the vicinity of New York city, to take the place of the present state prison for women at Auburn, is recommended by Commissioner Frank B. Wade of Buffalo in a report of inspection of the Auburn institution.

"Auburn prison is not designed for a prison for women, either in construction or location," says the report. "Most of the inmates are committed from New York city. The prison should be constructed according to the plans of the reformatory for women."

The report recommends that the school of letters be extended and instruction given to the prison body, that some vocational training be given and that every woman be taught a useful trade before leaving the institution.

"The number of women in the institution," says the report, "is comparatively small and there appears to be no reason why every one should not have at least an hour's instruction each day. Vocational training should also be given. Aside from the laundry work and the few who learn commercial work it is doubtful if many of the women who go out of Auburn prison are equipped to do any kind of effective labor. They do not receive instruction in the sewing and domestic work in the institution are of the simplest kind."

GIFTS FOR SAYRE BABY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—President Wilson received a long list of callers at the executive offices later than usual today because of his desire to stay as long as possible with his small grandson, the child of Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, born at the White House yesterday. If the Sayre baby follows the precedent he set during the first night he will be a model infant. He gave his attendants little trouble. A large heap of rattles sent by the Wilson and Sayre families and friends were ready for the baby as soon as he should show interest in them. Several baby baskets had also been sent to the White House but the one used was prepared by Mrs. Sayre herself.

Mr. Sayre arrived from Williamstown, Mass., last night after the birth of his son.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

CHANGES WERE TRIVIAL

DURING EARLY HOURS OF TRADING—IMPROVEMENT IN AFTER-NOON—CLOSED STRONG

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Conflicting gains and losses characterized today's early trading in stocks although changes were trivial at the outset. A majority of the leaders made slight improvements over last week's prices while some less prominent issues were lower. London's attitude toward this market was not encouraging, nearly the entire international list showing declines which extended to a point or thereabouts in Reading, St. Paul, Southern Pacific, Mexican Central and Atchafalaya. By the end of the hour the local market showed a firmer tendency all around, Canadian Pacific gaining a full point.

Profit taking had some effect after the opening, most prominent shares losing their advantage by midday. Reading and U. S. Steel dropped off slightly. Fertilizer issues, notably American Agricultural Chemical, Carolina Chemical and American Fertilizer, were better, and among motor stocks Studebaker was conspicuous for its new high price. Several sales for its new high price. Several sales for its new high price. Several sales for its new high price.

THE UNITED IRISH LEAGUE

TREASURER FITZPATRICK OF BOSTON SENT $10,000 RECENTLY TO HON. JOHN E. REDMOND

In transmitting a check for $5,000 to Hon. John E. Redmond a few days before Christmas, Thomas B. Fitzpatrick, treasurer of the United Irish League of Boston, wrote the following letter:

"Boston, December 15th, 1914.

"Dear Mr. Redmond—On December 5th, I sent your board of trustees one thousand pounds. Today I have forwarded by mail draft a like amount, one thousand pounds.

"We have, as you know, very many would-be patriots here, who pretend to know more about things in Ireland than you or any member of the Irish party; and, although these men are not, in the main, very free with their financial contributions, they are wonderfully generous in speech and counsel; and my own belief is that it is a waste of effort to get into controversy with such men, and to bring them into the notoriety which they seek. Better let them cool off, and they may come to a sense of their own littleness.

"I know you have confidence to believe that, when occasion requires, the real friends of the Irish people can be counted upon. With the rank and file of those who have aided the United Irish League in this country there is, I am satisfied, no defection. They reason that you and your associates in the Irish party have guided wisely and safely Ireland's interests for nearly forty years, and, in the long-fought battle, won a glorious achievement in the final triumph of home rule. It is, therefore, logical for these old supporters of the league to reason that you and your colleagues, being thoroughly conversant with the situation, and, on the ground, know best how to deal with all matters concerning Ireland and Ireland's interests. To take any other position would be illogical and presumptuous.

"With kind regards, I remain,

"Very respectfully yours,

"T. B. FITZPATRICK,

"Hon. J. F. Redmond, M. P.,

"House of Commons, England."

WHEN MADERO DIED IN 1912

EL PASO, Tex., Jan. 18.—Gen. Villa, with the main group of his army, expected to return today to Mexico City in an attempt to adjust the situation of the convention government incident to the flight Saturday from the capital of Eulalio Gutierrez, the provisional president, and the appointment to that place of Roque Gonzalez Garza.

Mexico City was reported in a condition of disorder and excitement approaching that which attended the

some day; if so I shall be pleased to reciprocate.

The first step toward itemizing the valuation of city property was the installation, by the assessors, of a card system, identical with the card system used in connection with the taxable property, the only difference being that the city property cards are marked "exempt."

After the cards were prepared the assessors took them out and went over each item of city property, placing valuations, and these valuations appear on the cards that are marked "exempt," so that if one wants to know the value of any public building in the city the assessors can turn to the cards which, by the way, are gotten out under department heads, and tell at a glance the valuation asked for. This the proclamation of Wilhelm II. as German emperor and in the British capital it is expected that the day may bring news of a widespread German effort to follow up with a still more important movement the success achieved last week in the neighborhood of Solons.

LATE WAR NEWS

Germans on Defensive Near Warsaw

In London it is believed that the German army adopted what is virtually a defensive role to the west of Warsaw, some British observers arguing that this has been forced upon them by superior Russian numbers—and that these defensive tactics synchronize with the movement of many thousands of troops from Poland to the French and Belgian battlefields.

Attempt to Cross Alsace

The fighting at Solons some British commentators declare to be the precursor of the entry of these new troops upon a vigorous offensive, perhaps an attempt to cross the River Rhine. At Solons the French failed to hold their positions on the northern bank of the river and for the Germans to attempt to gain the southern bank is regarded as a development to be expected. As to future engagements in this region it appears to be a fact that the French artillery on the hills south of the Alsace comes all approaches to the river and that it will have to be reckoned with.

Germans Driven Back

In the eastern area of the war the steady Russian pressure which the allies have enabled the Muscovites to exert upon the Germans, according to news despatches reaching London has been slowly pushing back the German line to the west of Warsaw. News despatches today reported the Russian occupation of Plock. This report has not been confirmed officially, but the Russians on Saturday crossed the Skrawa river a few miles below that point, may have been able to occupy the city. Russian forces already had reached Sierpce and Gombin, lying respectively directly north and south of this provincial capital.

Defeat of Turks by Russians

The Russian defeat of the Turks, if the claims of Petrograd are fully borne out, was so decisive that it may mark the close of the Ottoman attempt to invade Russia in the Caucasian region. The Russian victory probably will free enough of the Caucasian army to oppose effectively in the future the Turkish forces which are approaching the frontier further eastward, through Persia.

Berlin Report The French

TRENCHES CAPTURED AND OTHER SUCCESSES

BERLIN, Jan. 18.—The German war office today gave out an official announcement as follows:

"In the neighborhood of Neuport yesterday there were artillery duels but nothing else. No attacking movements have been undertaken by the enemy in the last few days.

"At La Boisselle, northeast of Arras, the German army again had established themselves in the church of Boisselle and in the hamlet to the southwest attacked the French with the bayonet and drove them from their positions. We took prisoners three officers and 100 men. Several French trenches have been captured in the Argonne forest.

Fighting Still On

"The French attack on our positions to the northwest of Pont-A-Mousson, against a hill which is a mile and one-fifth south of Velez, advanced as far as our trenches. This fighting is still going on.

"In the Vosges and in Upper Alsace a heavy and long battle was preceded by interfering with the fighting.

"The situation in East Prussia has undergone no change. In northern Poland the Russians attempted an advance across a branch of the river Skrawa near Radziszew but were repulsed. Nothing was reported as having transpired on the Polish front.

"British mines have been washed ashore at several places along the coast."

PARIS REPORTS RECITE FRENCH SUCCESSES AT VARIOUS POINTS

PARIS, Jan. 18.—The French official statement given out this afternoon recites French successes yesterday at various points along the battle line, most of them artillery engagements. None of the actions seems to have been of great importance. There was stormy weather yesterday in Flanders as well as in the Vosges.

was not possible under the old system. The report includes schools, library, city hall, police station, and other city buildings, also parks, fire department, water works, charity, department, etc., added to the real estate and personal valuation. The report represents no small amount of work on the part of the assessors to say nothing of the clerical work in connection with it. One has but to see the report in its entirety to realize what Mr. Tarbox's request meant to the assessors and their clerks. The report was sent to Mr. Tarbox, who was prepared by Miss McGrath and is now in construction as it is complete in detail.

The high school is valued at $300,000; has a land area of 11,194 feet and a land valuation of $32,000. The annex in John and Paige streets is valued at

NO SAY IN MANAGEMENT

ENTERMAYER TALKS OF SHAREHOLDERS IN REORGANIZED CORPORATIONS

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Samuel Entermeyer, testifying today at the investigation of the federal industrial relations committee into the great philanthropic institutions, asserted that the shareholders in corporations that have been reorganized by banking interests have absolutely no say in the management, the directors and the situation, but that a question affecting labor conditions could almost be decided from one office.

As remedial measures, Mr. Entermeyer advocated the establishment of federal labor exchanges, compulsory state regulated insurance against sickness, accident and unemployment, general regulation of corporations, controlling large amounts of capital and the abolition of proxy voting by the representatives of financiers desiring to dominate the industries.

Speaking of the accumulation of large fortunes, Mr. Entermeyer said the methods adopted in the armament of the world could never be repeated. This was due partly to the so-called muck-rakers, to further government control and to general publicity, through and frequent examinations like those of the life insurance companies.

Gen. Angeles, the Villa commander, who yesterday occupied Monterey, has appealed for the immediate sending there of American Red Cross supplies, contracted for some weeks ago by the U. S. Army. The American consul general, Gen. Angeles, described as desperate the condition of the populace at Monterey.

Angeles probably will proceed at once to Mexico City to assist Villa in his adjustment of conditions there, Villa abandoning temporarily, at least, his campaign against the Carranza forces. Angeles has been mentioned prominently as a possible successor to Gutierrez.

KING THANKS PRESIDENT

EMMANUEL OF ITALY EXPRESSES GRATITUDE OF THE ITALIAN PEOPLE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—President Wilson received a cablegram today from King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, thanking him for expression of sympathy following the recent earthquake.

The message follows:

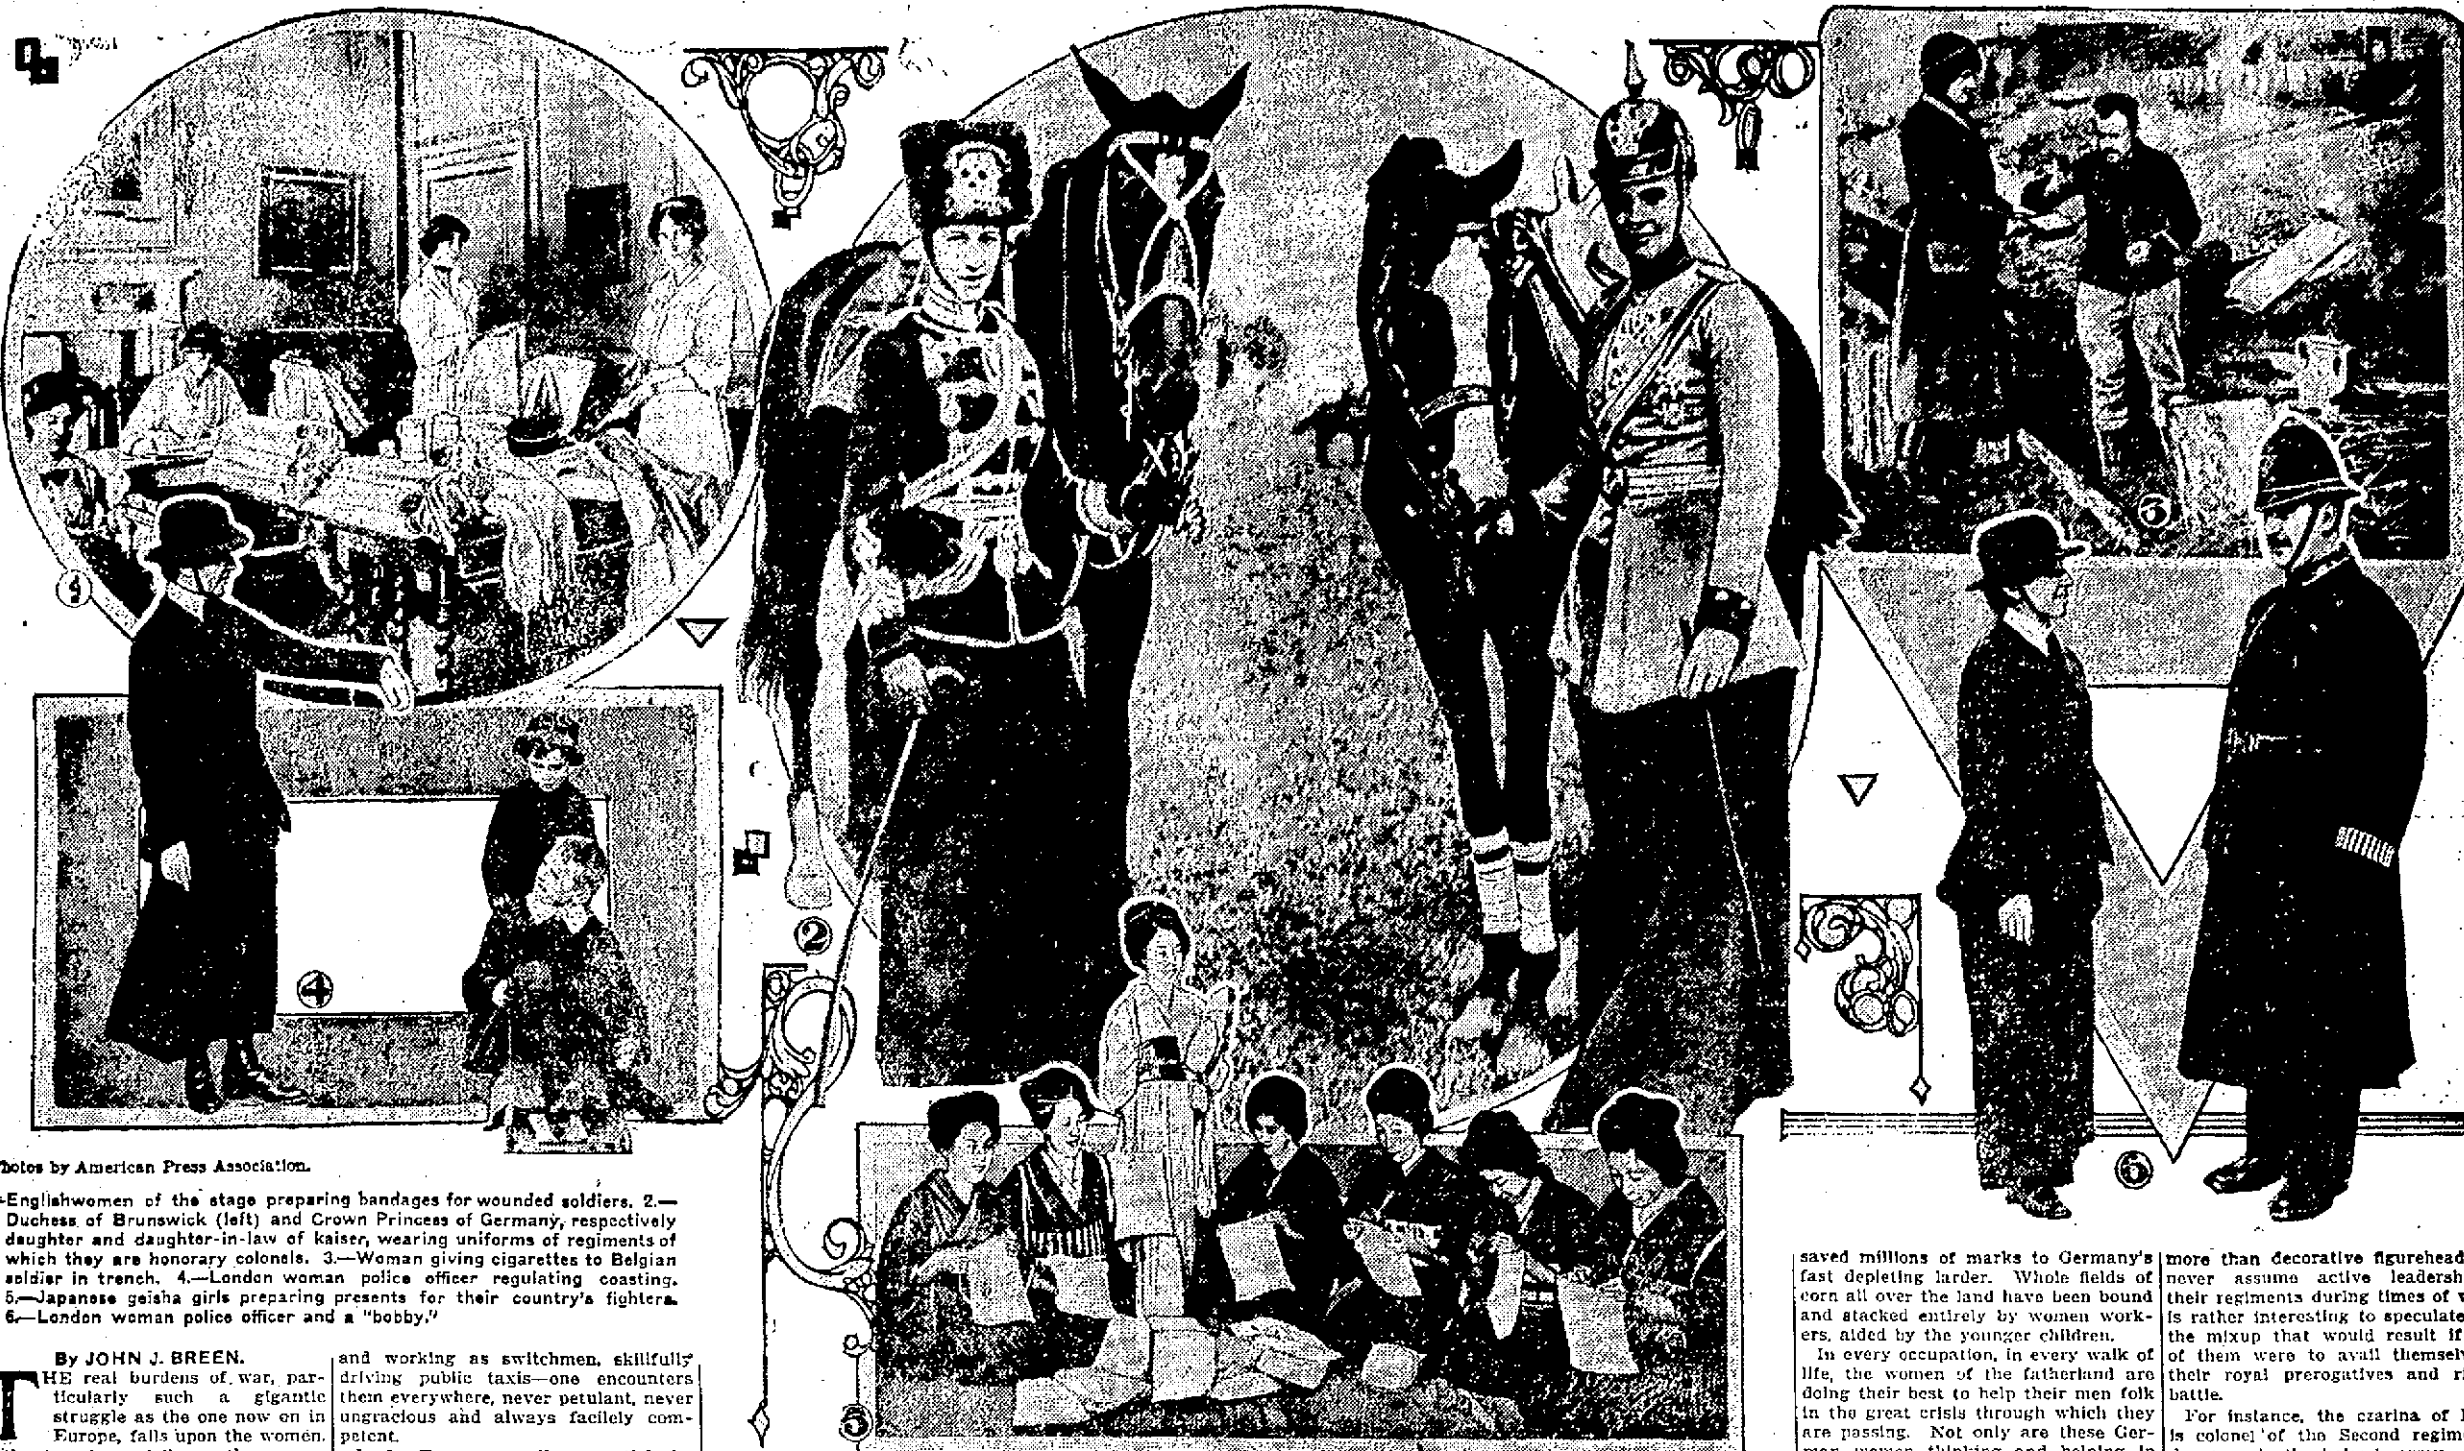

"I am sensible very much of the expression of sympathy you have been so kind as to send me in this colorful occasion. Please accept, with my sincerest thanks, the heartfelt gratitude of the Italian people."

Wireless Men Listening for Word From the Steamer Camino

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 18.—Wireless operators along the Nova Scotia coast were listening today for some word from the American steamer Camino which reported yesterday that she was helpless at sea, having lost her rudder in a storm, and was unable to move up to noon today. The Dominion Government steamer Lady Laurier was dispatched from here on receipt of the Camino's call for help with a view to reaching the disabled craft tonight and it was expected that the Lady Laurier would be back here by tomorrow night.

WOMEN BEAR REAL BURDENS OF WAR

By JOHN J. BREEN.
THE real burdens of war, particularly such a gigantic struggle as the one now on in Europe, falls upon the women.

In the American civil war the women at home suffered more than did the soldiers in the field. And the women of Europe are proving their splendid work in the terrific struggle.

Everywhere one hears and reads tributes to the wonderful women of France, who, in the lowest class as in the highest, attest their loyalty to their country, their patience under laws which are difficult to endure, but are made necessary by the dominance of military authority, and their marvelous industry.

In the Normandy fields garnering the grain, in the Paris shops and markets taking the places of those who are mobilized, receiving fares on the trams and working as switchmen, skillfully driving public taxis—one encounters them everywhere, never petulant, never ungracious and always facetiously competent.

In Le Temps recently an article by one of the leading writers entitled "Les Femmes Françaises" says:

"What a comforting spectacle! These wives, these mothers—the most of them have no news of their best beloved. Where are those dear ones? They do not know. Some letters without postmark—such is the mandate of the state—have come to them. It is true, but the letters have been delayed, the army has moved. This uncertainty is cruel, yes, but the women of France are above selfish sentiments at such a time. They do not complain. They remember that in the Balkan war the government suppressed entirely the correspondence between the soldiers and their families. Hard law! Dure loi! The French people are fortunately less severely treated than that.

"The secret is a weapon of war, a fierce weapon, which makes the hearts bleed even in sight of victory. They comprehend the cruel necessity, and, like Cornelia of historic chronicle, they bow without a murmur to the rigorous necessity. They may suffer, but they realize that all indiscretions must be avoided and even the indiscretion of a postmark in these times is serious.

"In these dread hours every one makes a useful sacrifice. None lives for herself, but all are living for each other. Let us salute the courage of our women, worthy mate of the valor of the Frenchman before which already recoils the Germanic horde."

German Women Organized.

The war has brought German women their great opportunity to show the value of women's organization and their comprehension of their country's needs. They have stepped into the breach caused by the withdrawal of the masculine population and have given the lie as never before to Bismarck's never forgotten platitude, "War is none of women's business." To the Kaiser also they are proving that kirche, knecht and kinder do not entirely fill the horizon of his country and that it is a very fortunate thing to day, at any rate, that they have not taken his sage advice and kept only to these essentially feminine occupations.

Without the women's co-operation in many other ways Germany would be having a very bad time indeed. It is their philosophical adaptation of the present crisis alone that has enabled the domestic and retail trade of the country to carry on its increasingly desperate struggle for existence, while in the harvesting emergency of the last two months they have unquestionably saved millions of marks to Germany's corn all over the land have been bound and stacked entirely by women workers, aided by the younger children.

In every occupation, in every walk of life, the women of the fatherland are doing their best to help their men folk in the great crisis through which they are passing. Not only are these German women thinking and helping in the present; they are looking forward with increasing attentiveness to the future. They are asking themselves what it will mean to them when thousands and thousands of the flower of German manhood are rendered crippled and helpless, while thousands more will never return to their country to take up their responsibilities and duties.

The women of England, Russia—in fact, every country involved—are doing splendid work and making noble sacrifices.

Many Women Colonels.

Many royal women in Europe are colonels. While they are scarcely more than decorative figureheads and never assume active leadership of their regiments during times of war, it is rather interesting to speculate upon the mixup that would result if some of them were to avail themselves of their royal prerogatives and ride to battle.

For instance, the czarina of Russia is colonel of the Second regiment of dragoons in the Kaiser's army. If she led her troops to war she would have encounters with her own subjects in the Russian ranks. The dowager queen of Italy, Margherita, whose regiment belongs to the Hessian yager (hunters) corps, might have a similar experience in case Italy re-enforced the allies and marched against the Germans.

Other women who might find themselves in embarrassing positions were they called upon to fulfill their official duties are the princess royal of Greece, the Kaiser's sister, who has honorary command of a German regiment, and the Princess Louise, duchess of Connaught.

BURYING THE DEAD OF BATTLE

Photos by American Press Association.

Upper.—Burying German officer with military honors. Lower left.—Graves of English soldiers in northern France. Lower right.—Graves of German soldiers in France, showing helmets of the dead.

THE gruesome task of burying the dead in the European war has been turned into a business. In most cases the dead were piled along scientific lines. After the battle of the Marne great mounds of dead were left on the field of battle.

obliged card (known officially as Army Form B 2067), which is stitched inside the tunic. On it are entered particulars of the man's name, and regiment, next of kin, etc. Besides this, Tit-Bits says, every article of the man's clothing is stamped with a number which corresponds to one written opposite his name in the regimental records, as well as the county depot of his battalion.

Great Britain's method is a little more elaborate than that of Germany, whose soldiers carry a metal disk bearing a number which corresponds with a number at the Berlin war office. After a battle numbers, not names, are telegraphed and verified. And the effectiveness of this system may be judged by the fact that after the fighting around Metz in 1870, when the casualties exceeded 40,000, complete lists were posted in the capital two days later.

The Japanese system is very similar. Each man has three disks—one around his neck, another on his waist belt and a third in his boot—on each of which are three numbers corresponding to the wearer's name, corps and brigade respectively, while the Russian soldiers wear a numbered badge shaped like an "ikon"—sacred picture—which is formally blessed by the priests.

The United States government uses a simple cloth tag woven into the shoulder strap of the tunic. Italy uses a small zinc plate affixed to the trousers at the waist, on which are embossed the soldier's name, place of origin, number and date of enlistment, while the Portuguese cavalry soldier has a number stamped on his spurs, the infantry having a similar number stamped on their leggings.

The French, who formerly used little aluminum nameplates, which in war with savages seemed an irresistible attraction to the enemy, now use little cards like the English, but Austria still has an ornate identification badge of gun metal, shaped like a locket, with inside all particulars inscribed on little parchment leaves.

Turkey alone among the nations issues to her soldiers no formal identification badge. Said Edhem Pasha when remonstrated with regarding the omission: "A dead man is of no use to the sultan. Why, therefore, trouble about him?"

Describing the dead and dying on one of the battlefields of Europe a correspondent says:

"The whole of the district northeast of Paris is one big heartache. Imagine driving in an automobile through the lovely roads of France with the harvest ripe and trees laden heavily with fruit and everywhere—in the fields, on the roadsides, on the hill and in the valley, sitting, lying—no harvesters nor holiday makers nor happy idlers, but dead men, stiff and stark, covering the fair fields—men in uniform, who lay or sat or stood as they shot or had fallen from mortal wounds.

WILLIAM SCOTT.

"MOLE TEQUOP" NEW ARMY HEAD

AN unassuming white haired man stepped into the office of the chief of staff of the United States army a few weeks ago. With less formality than accompanies the assignment of a policeman to a new beat Brigadier General Hugh L. Scott assumed the most important military position of the nation.

It is a fitting testimonial to a life time of hard work. Since General Scott was graduated from West Point he has been one of the busiest military men in the nation.

He entered the cavalry. In those days a mounted soldier spent four-fifths of his time in frontier service. Scott was an exception. He spent all his time there.

He campaigned against the Blackfeet, the Sioux and several other tribes of the northwest. He fought them so well that the Indians began to admire him. He turned that admiration into a deeper regard, and, perhaps more than any one man, General Scott brought about tranquil conditions on the Indian frontiers.

His secret of success with Indians was his understanding of their ways. He learned to speak their language. He "thought Indian." A half dozen tribes adopted him. Hugh L. Scott disappeared to the Indian mind, and "Mole Tequop," which means "he talks with his hands," took his place. The young cavalry captain was more proficient in sign talk than Indians themselves. His monographs on that phase of Indian life, and also on many other phases, are the highest authority known.

Scott was a major when the Spanish-American war began. He went to Cuba, becoming at the close of the war adjutant to Major General Wood, military governor of Cuba.

Colonel Scott left Cuba to command the most trying post in the army at that time, the governorship of Sulu. His success there ranks him as one of the greatest of colonial governors. It is said that when he was ordered from Sulu to the United States as superintendent of the academy at West Point Jamulal Kiram XI, then sultan of Sulu, begged on his knees for the colonel to take him to America. The colonel, of course, had to refuse.

"Then I will come some day and bring the chief priest, the prime minister and all the cabinet," the sultan replied. He fulfilled his promise, arriving in New York only a few months after Colonel Scott, who is known in Sulu as "Father of All the Moros."

If any one doubts the versatility of General Scott, the wide range of his assignments ought to prove it. From the governorship of the piratical, half-savage Moros he took up the chancellorship of a technical university—West point. He was there a few years governing the college and figuring much in society. His next station was colonel of the Third cavalry on the Mexican border when war looked certain.

He lived in the saddle until General Wood retired as chief of staff, then went to Washington as assistant to General Winters. Upon the latter's retirement he became chief.

When Colonel Roosevelt was president he wanted to promote Scott, then a major, to be brigadier general, a rank he attained only under President Wilson. The appointment was blocked in the senate, which occasioned Colonel Roosevelt's remark that it appeared that "army officers could only win promotion by senility."

The stories of Scott that are told in the army would make a big book. Of his work in Cuba the records in Washington show a service of honor and fidelity to his government and his superiors. He is an old and intimate friend of General Wood, and a great deal of his hardest service has been under General Wood's command in Cuba and the Philippines. He is a native of Kentucky, and Benjamin Franklin is one of his ancestors. He is a graduate of West Point of the class of 1879.

RUSSIANS IN COMPLETE VICTORY OVER TURKS

PETROGRAD, Jan. 18.—A late communication of the army of the Caucasus gives some details of the Russian victory at Kara Urgan. It says: During the last three days of the battle of Kara Urgan a violent snowstorm raged unintermittently. The conflict terminated in a complete victory for us. Thanks to the efforts of our Caucasian and Turkestan regiments the resistance of the enemy was broken up. The rear guards which covered his retreat were destroyed and the remainder of the Turkish army fled toward Erzerum.

Our troops pursuing, found in the ravine parts of the Turkish cannon which the fleeing enemy had abandoned in their flight. The pursuit continues.

GEN. VON HOENHORN APPOINTED QUARTERMASTER GENERAL OF GERMAN ARMY

BERLIN, Jan. 18.—The appointment of Gen. von Hohenborn as quartermaster general of the German army in succession of Major Gen. Volghits Rhets, who died suddenly of heart failure on Nov. 14, has just been announced.

FEATURES OF LAST NIGHT'S WAR NEWS-IN BRIEF

RUSSIANS REPORT REPULSE OF GERMANS SOUTH OF PINEZOV, POLAND, AND CAPTURE OF KIRILIBA PASS ON FRONTIER OF TRANSYLVANIA.

Russians said to have wiped out Turkish army corps in Caucasus; take 3000 prisoners and enormous quantity of supplies.

Fighting in west confined largely to artillery duels, though Germans claim progress in the Argonne. Snow and rain hamper operations, especially in Vosges.

French declare progress continues near Nieuport and Lemmerzyde; also claim gains near Orbec, in Vosges.

Germans place allies' loss in last four weeks at 150,000, or four times that of the Kaiser's forces.

Official figures place number of prisoners in hands of Germany and Austria at 800,000.

Girl Who Eloped With Young Knox to Sue for Divorce

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Philander Chase Knox, Jr., son of the former secretary of state and United States senator, and his young wife, who, before he eloped with her from Providence in March, 1910, was Miss May C. Boller, a shopgirl, have separated. Both have left their charming little home in Charleston, W. Va., and come to New York, Mrs. Knox for the purpose of beginning an action for separation and filing a theatrical engagement and young Knox for the purpose of inducing his wife to forgive and begin all over again.

It was while she was a student at the Morris Hills Preparatory school that young Knox met and fell in love with the Auburn-met salesgirl. After a whirlwind courtship they eloped and travelled vainly through three states before they could find a clergyman to perform the marriage ceremony. Finally a minister in Burlington, Vt., united the runaways.

The elder Knox refused to receive the couple and the young couple returned to Providence, where they gave out many brave interviews, in which young Knox declared his intention of going to work to support his bride, and she insisted that she would stand by her "Dear Tip" through thick and thin.

Young Knox got a job selling automobiles, but something must have gone wrong with the trade that year because he soon turned to other lines of business.

About this time the elder Mr. Knox, pleased with his son's endeavors, forgave the young couple and took them to his handsome country home at Valley Forge to live. The young pair had a little trouble last year, but finally made up and went to live in Charleston.

Mrs. Knox, when found in a little apartment on Madison avenue yesterday reluctantly admitted she had engaged counsel and was preparing to sue for separation.

"It is true that I have left Mr. Knox," she said, "and this time it is for good. I cannot discuss the matter; everything is so tentative. I would prefer that you call upon my attorney, William Allan Ullman, who has been so kind as to let me to break my heart to even talk about the matter."

"While the newspapers were printing stories of my being received by my husband's family and entertained, I was suffering terribly. The whole cause of our trouble is money. Ever since our marriage my husband has been declaring he would go to work to support me, but he never did. We were entirely dependent on the generosity of his parents for our support, and it was horribly humiliating; I could not stand it."

"My husband's parents were kindness itself to me. They gave us a fairly good allowance, and Mrs. Knox provided me with money for dresses. But Tip had no idea of the value of money. He was dreadfully extravagant; his foolishness in spending money annoyed my father. I dare say he grew tired of paying our bills, because just a year ago he cut off our allowance."

Banker's Widow Fell From Fifth Story of Boston Hotel

BOSTON, Jan. 18.—Dazed on awaking suddenly, Mrs. Elizabeth Whitney, 63 years of age, an invalid and the widow of George Whitney, former president of the National Union bank, opened a window of her room on the fifth floor of the Hotel Abbotford, 158 Commonwealth avenue and fell 70 feet to her death in an area in the rear yesterday morning about 7 o'clock.

Her death was probably accidental, although the medical examiner's report stated it was due to injuries from jumping or falling from a height. Mrs. Whitney was said by members of her family to have been suffering from a form of depression developing from illness.

Windows Were Locked

Mrs. Whitney came with her maid from a month's visit in New York city several weeks ago and took an apartment in the Hotel Abbotford. The maid, Rebecca Wyness, said that both she and Mrs. Whitney retired at about 10 o'clock Saturday night, and that at that time the windows were locked. She went to her own section of the suite and did not awake until the excitement caused by the accident brought her to a window.

Mrs. Mary McLaney, employed in the kitchen, saw something white pass the window of the first floor about 7:10 o'clock Sunday morning. She ran out and saw Mrs. Whitney unconscious on the area pavement. She called to Patrolman Larnach of station 15, who was in front of the hotel, and with the assistance of some of the hotel residents placed Mrs. Whitney in the station ambulance which the patrolman called. Mrs. Whitney died before reaching the city hospital.

Daughter Notified

Mrs. Archibald Blanchard of 222 Marlboro street, a daughter of Mrs. Whitney, was notified of the accident and with other relatives took charge of the body. Misses Mary and Alice Whitney, who live at the Marlboro street address and are members of the Whitney family, were also notified. Two sons, George and Richard Whitney, who are in New York city were sent for and arrived here this morning.

No one saw Mrs. Whitney yesterday before the accident. Medical Examiner Leary found no notes to indicate how the accident occurred, but that the family said that while Mrs. Whitney had been ill and had suffered from depression, her mind was strong and active for a woman of her age. The illness had lasted for about two years at the time of her death.

FOUR BURNED TO DEATH

DEAD ALL MEMBERS OF ONE FAMILY—MAN PERISHED IN VAIN ATTEMPT AT RESCUE

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 18.—Four persons were burned to death early yesterday in a fire that destroyed their home. Four others were injured, one seriously, when they plunged from the third story of a burning building. The dead and injured were all members of the family of Fritz Skubinsky, who perished in a vain attempt to rescue his younger children.

The fire started on the ground floor of the building, which was occupied by Skubinsky as a clothing store. It spread so rapidly that members of the family, who were sleeping on the two floors above, had not time to reach the stairway, the only exit from the building.

Skubinsky helped his wife and two daughters to a front window and then went back for the smaller children, when he was overcome by smoke. His body was found beside those of Helen and Bella, 14 and 12 years old, respectively, with that of Rachael, 22, lying near them.

Mrs. Skubinsky and two other daughters, 18 and 13 years old, and a son, 17, leaped from a third-story window into the arms of a policeman. The mother was badly hurt, but the others got nothing more than a severe shaking up.

PATHETIC SCENES IN DEVASTATED DISTRICTS

2000 Soldiers Work on Ruins—Dead at Avezzano Now Estimated at 20,000—Titled Women Aid Sufferers

AVEZZANO, via Rome, Jan. 18.—Though buried in the debris for three days, 15 persons were taken alive from the ruins caused by the earthquake here. Some of the rescued were buried more than 30 feet and when extricated were in such condition that they immediately collapsed.

Rescuers believe there are many still lying beneath the tons of debris and desperate efforts are being made to reach them.

Most of the irregular masses of stone have not yet been touched with pick or shovel. This is the fault of no one, because it would take a thousand workmen several days to turn over and examine a whole train-load of slowly quarried and built up during centuries.

The earth shook again yesterday for about 10 seconds. The shock occurred at 2.10 a. m. and consisted of a gentle rocking movement. The people left their shelters and gazed in terror at the streets where they remained, fearing to return.

Capt. Pisani Vettori, who has charge of the relief work here, estimates that there are 15,000 dead in Avezzano, Capelle, Magliano and the villages in this immediate district. Up to midnight Saturday only 500 bodies had been taken from the ruins. They were laid irregularly in open spaces all over the city. It was semi-officially estimated that there are 12,000 bodies buried in the ruins of Avezzano alone.

Supplies Pouring In

Supplies are now pouring into Avezzano. On Saturday there were received 25,000 cans of preserved meat, nearly 20 tons of rice, nearly a ton of coffee, a ton and a half of sugar and a ton of milk. Whole train-loads of tinware also arrived, as well as tents for 12,000 persons and materials for illumination.

Scores of survivors were half-starving yesterday before food arrived from outside, although under the walls of Avezzano granary there were 100,000 bushels of wheat.

In the midst of the desolation, which reminded correspondents who had been at the battle front of Soissons after 100 days' bombardment by German and French artillery, are campfires around which parties of the survivors are cooking army rations distributed to them.

They sit shivering in the sharp winter air on the high tableland of the Apennines. An eight-day clock, hanging on the only fragment of a wall which remains standing, was still striking the hours.

A Father's Sad Story

A dozen bodies ready for burial are lying in the square of Torlonia. "In this square," said Capt. Vettori, "I saw a father place his body in the arms of his wife, three sons and three daughters. I think that was the saddest incident I have seen."

"One little boy stood beside the father as he arranged the bodies. The child seemed not to realize what had happened. This man so terribly afflicted was vainly trying to make those who speak to him. He has not eaten for two days."

The correspondent, going about last night with two soldiers bearing torches, came across the bodies of a family of seven, father, mother and five children.

There was a ghastly row of more than 100 lying near the splendid villa of Prince Torlonia, in which were found the bodies of 32 domestics and employees on his estate. Neither the prince nor any member of his family was in the great country house, which was destroyed by fire.

There were 34 schoolmasters in Avezzano before the earthquake and only four survived, while only one of the 16 schoolmistresses is living. All the professors are dead.

Levelled in 31 Seconds

Churches with massive walls, the ancient castle of Orsini, new structural steel and brick business blocks, all were levelled by the earthquake, which lasted only 31 seconds.

The castle of Orsini was used as a local administrative building. Twelve gendarmes happened to be in the guardroom when the earth rocked. Eleven were killed and the 12th was seriously injured.

A railway carriage has been transformed into a residence and office for the authorities, who wish to leave all available tents for the survivors. Another car is used as a telegraph office.

Valuables already removed from the ruins are estimated to be worth $1,000,000, and it is expected that much more will be found as the excavation continues, for several important banks have branches here.

Looking After the Injured

Deputy Federico di Palma of the Italian parliament, whose wife was Miss Rosalia Agnes Williams of Lowell, and his colleague, Deputy Francesco Ciccarone, are directing the work of looking after the injured.

Dr. Sabatino, more than 70 years old, for three days and three nights ceaselessly nursed and treated the wounded at Cenchio and then collapsed. His son, also a physician, has been working at home to take his place. No other doctor has yet reached Cenchio.

SAYS DEAD IN AVEZZANO WILL REACH 20,000 AND IN-JURED 10,000

AVEZZANO, Jan. 18.—More than 2000 soldiers are at work on the ruins here, which may be described as a wilderness of several square miles. Signor Sufelli, minister of public works, estimates the dead in Avezzano will reach 20,000 and 10,000 injured. So ruined is the city that it is difficult for the inhabitants to recognize streets much less houses. Avezzano was an important manufacturing center. Prince Torlonia, one of the greatest land proprietors in Italy, is the largest loser financially.

Titled Women Aid Sufferers

Among the titled women who have come here to aid the injured is the Marchesa Di Sostegno of Florence. She is working as a nurse in one of the military hospitals. Incidents in which remarkable rescues were made are gradually coming to light. One tells of the experience of a Lieutenant of engineers who came here and located the residence of his mother. He worked for some time alone pulling away stones, but presently he was assisted by some soldiers. After seven hours of labor he found his mother alive and not very badly injured. She had been protected by an unbroken piece of wall falling over the corner in which she was sleeping.

Mother Digs Out Daughter

In another instance, a mother who had escaped, believed her daughter must be alive under the fragments of her house. She organized a party of women and herself stimulated them to work at reducing a heap of limestone. The mother on Sunday heard a voice beneath where the women were working and they finally reached the young woman who had been protected by two parts of walls forming an angle. She had been without food or drink for four days and had been nearly suffocated by the dust of the mortar which sifted down through the crevices.

MATERIAL DAMAGE OF EARTHQUAKE WILL EXCEED $50,000,000

PARIS, Jan. 18.—The Rome correspondent of the Latin telegraphing the scenes in the earthquake district says: The rescue work continues with activity. A man still living was taken from the ruins of Avezzano Sunday morning. The railroad is now repaired and supplies are arriving regularly. Prince Borghese, who in an automobile was the first to reach the scene with blankets, food and bandages has undertaken the task of cabling the names of survivors to their relatives in the United States. The frequency of the shocks is diminishing. The seismograph has registered only 11 in the past 24 hours in the region of Avezzano and Sorra and none in Rome. The material damage, it is estimated, will exceed 300,000,000 lire ($50,000,000).

21 PERSONS CHARGED WITH INCITING RIOT

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—Twenty-one persons, members of a social settlement here, were to appear in court today charged with inciting a riot. Mrs. Lucy Parsons, widow of the anarchist hanged for murder after the Haymarket riots several years ago, was among those arrested. She did not spend the night in jail, however, as social workers obtained her release on bail. Seven others also were released on bail. Irwin Tucker, who said he was a printer and an editor of a paper, was among the thirteen compelled to spend the night in a police station.

The riot was the result of an attempt of about 1500 unemployed men and women to parade. Some of the marchers carried black banners on which in large, white, letters was the word: "Hunger." On other banners were "We don't want charity; we want jobs" and "Give us this—our daily bread."

Police Draw Revolvers

Police demanded that the marchers halt as no permit had been issued for them to parade. The marchers, according to the police, began to push the banner bearers forward. Fighting started instantly. Police with revolvers and clubs drawn, rushed the crowd, telling all within their reach. Women marchers grabbed the policemen by the legs and threw them to the street, biting and scratching at their faces with fingernails. A number of shots were fired by the police in their attempt to drive back the crowd.

Reserves had to be called out before the police could take their prisoners to the station.

NATURALIZATION COURT

Large Crowd at Court House for Second Papers Today—Other Sessions

A naturalization session for second papers is being held at the local court house today and although the first session had been advertised for 10 o'clock, long before the hour set for the meeting, the corridor of the court house was filled with men, some of whom were desirous of filing their petitions for second papers, while others were there to act as witnesses. About 150 men applied for their second papers and Clerk Dillingham who was in charge issued papers at the rate of about 25 per hour.

The crowd of men was composed of representatives of numerous nationalities, and all were very anxious to go through the necessary mode of procedure in order to file their petitions, and in their anxiety they crowded at the door of the room, where Clerk Dillingham and his assistant, F. C. Bean of Boston were stationed to receive them.

One of the busiest men was certainly Mr. Bean who distributed petition forms to the large gathering who called out the names of the various candidates. Each time Mr. Bean came out of the clerk's room he was surrounded by a large group of men seeking information as to what they should do.

In conversation with the writer Mr. Bean said today's session for filing petitions for second papers was one of the most largely attended for a long time, but despite the rush Clerk Dillingham managed to release about 25 men per hour. After adjourning for one hour for luncheon this noon the session was resumed this afternoon. A similar session will be held tomorrow and on Wednesday petitions for first papers will be received.

INDUSTRIAL AND STORE NEWS

The Loomvaders union will hold an important meeting in Carpenter's hall tonight and business of much importance will come up for transaction. President Pierre Couty, who attended the convention of the United Textile Workers held in New York last week, is expected back and he will have a very interesting report for the members.

Carpenters Union

The Carpenters union, local 49, will hold a big meeting in the union quarters in the Runels building tomorrow night and all members are requested to be in attendance. The forming of a Building Trades council will be the subject of much discussion, and members of other labor organizations will be present and speak on the subject.

Freight Handlers Union

The members of the Freight Handlers union held a largely attended and enthusiastic meeting in Trades & Labor hall in Middle street yesterday afternoon, at which a gist of routine business was transacted. Several interesting reports were also read and the secretary's report showed the union to be progressing rapidly.

Saco-Lowell Order

A statement was published in this paper about two months ago to the effect that the local plant of the Saco-Lowell shops would receive an order for the building of machinery for the Naumkeag Steam Cotton Co. of Salem, whose mills were destroyed by fire. This order has been received and will be started upon soon. The order calls for machinery for the picking and finishing departments and will keep a number of men employed for about six weeks.

Trades & Labor Council

The Trades & Labor council, it is understood, will ask for an appropriation for a Labor day parade at the meeting of the municipal council to be held in February. Last year no appropriation was asked for. The year previous however, a sport program of unusual excellence was run off on the South Common under the supervision of members of the council. The expense was borne by the city that year. Under the able leadership of President Frank Warnock the council gives promise of accomplishing great things this year.

Building Trades Organize

Members of the Carpenters, Bricklayers, Plasterers, Lathers, Electricians, Plumbers and Steamfitters unions met in Carpenter's hall in the Runels building yesterday afternoon to consider the advisability of forming a Building Trades council and, judging from the amount of enthusiasm shown, the aforementioned unions will be members of the council within a week's time. The meeting was by far the most important held in many years.

Messrs. William Sheehan, Major Wright, James Stott, F. J. Warren, E. B. Golden, Frederick Webster, James Ward and Frank Warnock were appointed as delegates to visit the meetings of the local building trade unions and explain the situation, reporting back at the meeting to be held next Sunday.

BARRY FOR GOVERNOR

FORMER LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR FAVORED BY SPRINGFIELD MEETING

SPRINGFIELD, Jan. 18.—At a meeting of the Western Massachusetts Democratic Chairman's association yesterday afternoon, in the Hotel Worthing, ex-Lieut. Gov. Edward P. Barry was informally suggested as a leader of the party ticket next fall, the second place being delegated to Henry I. Bowles of this city, a member of the executive council last year.

When asked as to the reason for the so-called boom, Mr. Barry refused to commit himself. He praised Mr. Bowles as a valuable member of any party, however, and stated that he would back a fine lieutenant governor.

Mr. Barry arrived here yesterday afternoon in company with Michael O'Leary, chairman of the democratic state committee. Mr. Bowles is present in Florida. The meeting was attended by more than 30 chairmen of cities and towns in this part of the state.

creek emptying into the Pines river on the Lynn marsh. The barking of his dog led Carl G. Hobart of 13 Martin street to the spot, about 500 feet from the state highway.

The police received a report Dec. 30 that a man was seen to jump into the stream from the highway bridge, but an investigation at that time revealed nothing. The body was that of a man 50 to 60 years old, comfortably dressed, but with nothing in his pockets to aid in identification. He was about 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighed about 140 pounds. He had brown hair, partly bald, gray mustache and no teeth, wore a black overcoat and black underwear and most striped trousers, gray coat sweater and gray mittens. The body was removed to the North Grove street morgue, Boston.

Medical Examiner Magrath said last night that the body evidently had been on the marshes several days. The medical examiner will perform an autopsy today to determine the cause of death.

THE SUN IS ON SALE AT THE NORTH STATION BOSTON

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The Lillian Nordica will case again occupied the attention of Surrogate Cohan and of Justice Lehman of the supreme court when the "scandalous and irrelevant" letters were the subject of argument, but were not to be seen. There was a great deal of talk, but the upshot of the matter was an indefinite adjournment.

George W. Young, the banker, husband of the famous singer, appeared in the surrogate's court ready to testify concerning the alleged "scandalous" letters, the authenticity of which is doubted by Young and his counsel, Bainbridge Colby. On motion of Enlie Dreyfus of counsel to George S. Baldwin, nephew of the singer and one of those opposing Young's claims to the estate, the examination was adjourned, the date to be fixed later.

The supreme court two motions affecting the Nordica will were argued, and decision was reserved. The first of these, made by Colby, was for an order making permanent the temporary injunction granted by Justice Goff prohibiting the publication of the letters which, Baldwin alleges, were written by the prima donna concerning her family affairs. The second was a motion made by Baldwin for an order restraining Young and others from proceeding in the orphan's court of Monmouth county, N. J., with any action looking toward the probate of another alleged will of the singer's than that in the New York court.

PRES. COMPEERS AND COUNCIL OF THE A. F. OF L. ASK PRES. WILSON TO SIGN MEASURE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—President Wilson was asked by Samuel Compers and the executive council of the American Federation of Labor to approve the immigration bill now before him and to do everything in his power to secure the final passage of the seamen's bill, a bill to regulate the use of convict labor and a workmen's compensation bill for employees in interstate commerce.

The president made no definite promises regarding any of the bills, but after Mr. Compers said he was "greatly encouraged" and that the president's attitude had been "very cordial and sympathetic."

The president informed the delegation that a public hearing on the immigration bill would be held one day this week. He is expected to veto the bill because of the literary test feature, but has not definitely announced his intention.

The seamen's bill has passed the senate and house in different forms and is now in conference. Mr. Compers told the president that he expected the bill to be passed finally within the next few days. The president is expected to sign it.

The bill to regulate the use of convict labor passed the house and is now pending in the senate, and several bills having been introduced providing for workmen's compensation for employees in interstate commerce.

The executive council of the federation finished today a meeting which has been in session here for several days and during which various matters of legislation and internal affairs of the organization were discussed. Among the communications received was one from the Federation of Tradesunions of Holland, asking assistance for the Belgian victims, and it was decided to publish the letter in full in the American Federationist.

POLICE RAID UNION SQUARE WHOLESALE COMPANY OFFICE AT SOMERVILLE

BOSTON, Jan. 18.—Investigation by the Somerville police into the status of the Union Square Wholesale company of that city resulted yesterday in the arrest at Chambers of Joseph Koszoda, alias Joseph Miller, aged thirty-four, and the seizure in his office in the Hill building, Union square, Somerville, of 400 letters from Pollak people who complained that they had received neither goods for nor acknowledgment of money mailed to the Union Square Wholesale company, in response to advertisements in Pollak papers offering to sell various kinds of goods at very low prices, prepaid.

These letters came from various parts of this country outside of Massachusetts as far west as the Mississippi river and from Southern states, and even from Canada.

Koszoda was arrested on a charge of having violated the statutes, in that he had failed to file with the city clerk of Somerville a certificate showing the character of the business he was conducting under the name of the Union Square Wholesale company.

HAVERHILL Young Woman Victim of Explosion in Gas Range—Sister Sworn During Accident

HAVERHILL, Jan. 18.—Miss Pearl Horne of 174 1/2 avenue was badly burned on the face and head yesterday by flames from a gas range in her home. Miss Horne, who is a teacher, attempted to light the gas in the range and did not notice that the oven was filled with vapor.

As she stooped over the range the gas in the oven caught fire and exploded with a blast which enveloped her. Her younger sister, Theresa, was in the house and swooned. Miss Horne ran to the yard, where her plight attracted the attention of neighbors, who extinguished the flames.

Because the flame struck her with full force in the eyes it was at first feared that her sight would be ruined, as well as her unusual beauty; but it was stated that the flames would leave no traces.

The opened burners filled the house with gas until neighbors entered and found there was no danger of fire.
